TEN PERISHED IN MYSTERIOUS FIRE

Blaze of Unknown Origin Wrecks Five Story New York Tenement House

Eight Bodies Found Huddled Near Doorway — Many Injured

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Ten lives were lost and more than a score of persons injured in a fire of unknown origin which partially destroyed a five story tenement house on West 17th street before dawn today. The building, occupied by 15 families, mostly 35 Americans and Greeks. Eight bodies were found huddled together near a doorway on the fifth floor of the building. Two men and one woman were seriously injured, while 20 others were treated for abrasions and shock.

Many of the people who lived in the tenement groped their way to windows, where they clung to ledges and screamed for help.

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF IN ASSAULT CASE

A superior court jury this morning awarded Charles Gould $500 in his $5,000 suit brought against Myer Fineberg et al. for personal injuries, the result of a fight on Chelmsford street Aug. 1, 1919. Judge Bishop was on the bench. The jury was out only one-half hour.

According to testimony, Gould, who

INFANT MORTALITY LOW THIS YEAR

Agent Francis J. O'Hare, of the health department reports that during the first ten months of the present year the death rate of children under one year of age is exceptionally low. In fact the lowest in the department's records.

The live births for the month of October were: males, 129; females, 115; a total of 244. The deaths under one year were: male, 15; female, 3; a total of 18. This makes the total of births for the ten month period, 2473 and the deaths 244, a death rate per 1000 live births of 98.6. The deaths in the same period of 1920 were 357 and in 1919, 322. In a manufacturing city this is considered a very gratifying showing, as the usual rate is over 100 and often as high as 120 or 130.

The health department has submitted its monthly report to the mayor, and the report shows the following balances on hand: November 1, $205,842; authorized appropriation, $400,000; medical inspection, private schools, $150.

SOME EXCITEMENT TODAY AT OFFICE OF ELECTION COMMISSION

Candidate for Councilor Declared Out of the Running by Commissioners Announces That He will Run on Stickers

There was plenty of excitement for a time at the office of the election commission this morning when Joseph J. Sweeney, who had been declared out of the councilor fight in ward 8 on account of insufficiency of signatures, appeared at the office in company with a lawyer.

In checking the names on Mr. Sweeney's papers it was found that out of 67 names contained thereon only 40 would serve the purpose for which they were affixed. Of the 13 which were discarded, several were names of those who had signed other councilor papers in the same ward and announced that he would run on stickers.

Britain and Japan to Accept "In Principle" American Proposals

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Great Britain's acceptance "in principle" of the American proposals for limitation of naval armament, was definitely forecast today in a statement on behalf of the British delegation. Japan's acceptance "in principle" at least, has been forecast by statements by Baron Admiral Kato and others of the Japanese delegation.

Blazing Steamer Heads For Bermuda

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The steamship San Francisco, which caught fire yesterday about 1000 miles southeast from New York, is heading toward Bermuda, radio messages from the ship said today. The fire was reported to be spreading. It broke out in the cross bunkers and then crept to No. 2 hold. The steamship Ramon d'Larrinaga was reported standing by.

Jugo-Slavia Rejects Allies' Decision

BELGRADE, Nov. 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Jugo-Slavia cannot accept the decision of the allied council of ambassadors' delimiting the boundary line between Jugo-Slavia and Albania, the cabinet decided at a meeting last night. A note to this effect will be sent to the allies. It is stated in official circles here that the Jugo-Slav troops have not advanced beyond the legitimate boundaries of Serbia. The ambassadors' council recently sent a note to the Jugo-Slav government demanding immediate withdrawal of its troops from the territory within the limits previously defined by the council. The newspapers are unanimous in declaring the ambassadors' decision unjust, and urges strong opposition to a further meeting or consultation on the subject. Thirty thousand troops are believed to be advancing toward the Serbian border.

Hundreds of Jewish Families Shot Down

KISHINEV, Bessarabia, Nov. 14.—Hundreds of Jewish families have been shot down while attempting to cross the Bessarabian frontiers to escape an anticipated clash between the forces of Gen. Petlura and the soviet government, according to unconfirmed advices received here. The Rumanian government is said to have issued orders instructing its border guards to admit no refugees and suspending the intended expulsion of thousands of Ukrainian Jewish refugees.

Removal of Bodies of Americans

BREST, Nov. 14.—Disinterment of the bodies of American soldiers buried here during the war has been completed. The army authorities have forwarded to the four permanent American cemeteries in France 1080 bodies, removal of which to the United States was not requested by relatives.

PUBLIC NOTICE IN THE DISTRICT COURT

"In the summer of 1908 I was suffering with rheumatism and general breakdown of the system. My circulation was so impaired that the doctors gave me strychnine for breakfast, dinner and supper. About the time that I thought my time was up on earth, I received some of your circulars and at once ordered a box of Tekol Tablets. I found it to be exactly what I needed, and my circulation began to improve from the first dose, and after using two boxes my circulation was as good as it had ever been in my life. In the last year and a half I have used five or six boxes of Tekol, and can heartily recommend it for poor circulation, heart trouble, rheumatism, loss of vitality and as a general brace for run-down systems. At fifty-one years of age I am a stronger, healthier man than ever before in my life. The tonic effects of Tekol are far superior to whiskey, and there are absolutely no bad after-effects. Tekol is a panacea for despondency, blues and brain fag. In fact, it is far superior to anything I have ever seen for a general run-down condition of the system."

NEW MEMORIAL DEDICATED

Pres. Harding Speaks at Laying of Corner Stone for Victory Memorial

Marks Beginning of Fulfillment of Provision of Washington's Will

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Speaking today at the exercises attending the laying of the corner-stone for the new Victory Memorial, President Harding dedicated the structure as "a gathering place for Americans, where Americans begin the fulfillment of one of the striking provisions of the last will of George Washington, which set aside a bequest for the founding of 'an institution to disseminate learning, culture and a proper understanding of right principles in government.'"

The president's address was given largely to an analysis of the less well known attributes of the first president which, he said, made Washington "on his private and personal side, a very model of good citizenship."

"It is an impressive fact," Mr. Harding said, "worthy of our especial thought, that in the century and a half since Washington became the leader, the heart and soul of its struggle for independence and unity, this nation has so many times found occasions to record devotion to the principles which he laid down for its guidance. So today, after more than a century's delay, we are come to pay tribute to the foresight which first encouraged and endowed the institution here established—an institution which is to be alike a monument to those who sacrificed in a noble cause, and a beacon to shed afar the light of useful knowledge and grateful understanding among men."

FORMER LOWELL MAN ARRESTED IN MAINE

In connection with a liquor raid in Saco, Me., yesterday, the police of that town arrested a man who gave his name as Uthald Dube of Lowell. Such a name is not contained in the 1921 directory but it does show in the directory of two years ago. It gives a number on Middlesex street below the Boston & Maine depot as the address. The plant uncovered by the police was one of the most complete yet found by the police in that state, according to reports that reached here. A still, mash and bottled moonshine were seized besides other paraphernalia that goes to make up a first-class distillery. Dube, according to newspaper reports, was in the building when the raid was made and was placed under arrest.

TRIAL OF FATTY ARBUCKLE OPENS

Court Room Crowded Long Before Opening of Trial—Bitter Contest Expected

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Roscoe C. ("Fatty") Arbuckle, favorite motion picture comedian, went to trial today on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, motion picture actress, September 9. Scores of witnesses on both sides awaited the call to the stand. The crowds began to surge early through the narrow corridors on the third floor of the Hall of Justice where the trial court is located. The admissions were limited to approximately 300, which included more than a score of newspapermen.

For more than a week the contending sides have had their decks stripped for action, and the eagerness with which they called all possible evidence indicates a hard and bitter contest.

DIST. ATTY. PELLETIER ASKS POSTPONEMENT

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—Postponement until January of the proceedings begun by Attorney General J. Weston Allen for the removal of District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, of Suffolk county, was asked by Mr. Pelletier in the supreme court today. Mr. Allen's petition charges the district attorney with using his office for improper purposes. The delay was opposed by the attorney general.

Mr. Pelletier pointed out that he was a candidate for mayor of Boston which required much of his time. He asked that action be delayed unless the present proceedings could be consolidated with a petition for his disbarment which is to come up tomorrow. His candidacy, he said, occupied much of his time, and he believed that had it not been for his candidacy the removal petition would not have been filed at this time. The latest of the charges against him, he said, was four years old and others were much more remote.

"BIG TIM" JAILED AND FINED

Chicago Gang Leader and Union Head Given Six Years and Fined $30,000

Judge Landis Hands Down Decision—Was Implicated in $360,000 Plot

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—"Big Tim" Murphy, former state representative, gang leader and president of the gas-workers and street-sweepers' unions, was sentenced to six years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $30,000 by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis today for his part in planning the $360,000 Dearborn station mail robbery here last April.

SUN REACHES 'EM ALL

Federal Officers Say That Notices in The Sun Bring Results

Notices in The Sun surely obtain results. This is the opinion of Federal Officers Harrington and Donoghue of the income tax department. Last Monday The Sun published an article calling the attention of delinquent taxpayers to the fact that Uncle Sam was jawing to the fact. Uncle Sam was through fooling with them and that warrants had been issued to collect back taxes. Immediately the office of the collectors was visited by people who had seen the article and who desired to liquidate their obligations.

Mr. Harrington was high in his praise of the results The Sun obtained. He said, "That front page article surely stirred up delinquent taxpayers. People have been coming in who have let their bills run a long time. But it's a good thing they did come in or they would have been right up against it for fair. There are a lot more who had better heed the warning because we are going right ahead with the warrants and mean business. The government has been good to its debtors, but the time for action has arrived."

The office of the collector was not open during the week but many made it a point to get in touch with Mr. Harrington.

A traveling man realized the evil of not paying his bill and got to Mr. Harrington on the hoof. He was unable to get home but wanted his bill sent to Northampton.

There are many who have requested bills since the article appeared, several claiming they have forgotten just how much they owed.

According to Mr. Harrington, the big trouble in collecting the bills is that a number of those who owe them have changed addresses and moved away. But this will not excuse them and they will be run down some time. It might be well to state right here there is a stiff fine connected with the non-payment of taxes. The government may assess a fine for each day the bill is not paid.

The new rates for taxes are not ready as yet but it is expected the present rates will be changed over quite a bit when they are finally made. Under the present ruling the greater number of cases deal with net incomes. Under the proposed changes the cases will deal with gross incomes.

The exemption for a married man probably will be raised to $2500, with $100 for children. Those who do not have that stimulus income drawn up be required to file it is believed. This will eliminate a great number. But if the present plans go through all concerns having a gross income of $500 or more will have to make a return regardless of the fact they made a profit or not.

This will increase the number of people to file greatly. There is hardly a business which does not take in at least $100 a week. The matter is fixing up personal income taxes is comparatively easy when the business accounts are taken into consideration. Business accounts involve much more work, figuring and minor reports than personal returns.

Within a month the income office will be a busy place preparing for the 1921 return. The officers wish once more to call attention to the fact that the government is bound to collect the back taxes and that warrants have been issued for that express purpose and will be served by the collectors.

CITY AND STATE PAY TRIBUTE

Program Opens With Presentation of Medal by Gov. Cox and Key by Mayor

Colleges Confer Honorary Degrees—Parade of Former Service Men and Women

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—Marshal Foch, acclaimed by thousands, was the guest today of Greater Boston. The lengthy program, prepared for his entertainment, started with the presentation of a gold medal by Governor Cox and a key to the city by Mayor Peters. Chief among other functions were the conferring of honorary degrees by Harvard and Boston universities and Boston college, and a parade of former service men and women.

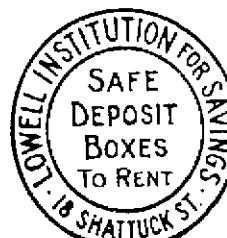

Greeted at South Station Ready to greet him on arrival at the South station in his special car from Providence, was a reception committee comprising city, state and American Legion officials. A troop of cavalry was provided for the escort of the marshal's automobile to the state house to receive the state's official welcome and to the city hall for reception by the mayor.

Boston college was next to claim the attention of the Allied generalissimo. The degree of Doctor of Laws awaited him there. The exercises were also timed so as to permit him to return to the city in season to be the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the city and the Legion at the Copley Plaza hotel.

The first event on the afternoon program was the presentation to Marshal Foch of a miniature replica of the monument erected by the 10th Infantry at Westfield, designed by Bruce Wilder Saville from a photograph showing the regiment's "colors" being decorated by the French. Maj. Gen. William C. Hayes, retired, former commander of the 10th, was to make the presentation from an old box car drawn up in front of the 10th (Frankie Division) clubhouse and filled with overseas veterans.

Adventures of The Twins

THIS MORNING I FOUND SOME OF THE WIGGLEFIN PEOPLE DEAD

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
 "Niek," said Cap'n Pennywinkle, "when the twins had returned from an important errand, 'something' happened last night and I don't know where it was."
 "Yes, sir," answered the little boy politely.
 "It happened in the ocean, but the ocean is a big place, so that doesn't mean much. Also it made a terrific noise. It woke me up and it woke Curly up, but it wasn't thunder. It was louder than thunder. Moreover, this morning I found some of the Wigglefin people dead. A loud sound in the water kills fishes, because it breaks the floaters they carry inside of them to balance with."
 "It might have been a torpedobomb out practicing," said thoughtful Niek.
 "Nebbe," agreed the Cap'n.
 "Or it might have been a bombing plane," the little boy suggested.

BOSTON CITIZEN WAS READY TO GIVE UP BUT IS NOW WELL MAN

"The way Tanlac has rid me of a case of rheumatism of twenty years standing seems more like the effect of a miracle than that of a medicine," said Thomas L. Gannon, 30 Worcester street, Boston, an officer for the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad for the past ten years.

"It just seemed like every bone in my body ached, and I was so bad off all last winter that I hardly left my house. My knees were so stiff and swollen it was all I could do to bend them, and they pained me as if they would drop off. I couldn't raise my right arm to comb my hair, and it was impossible to lie down comfortably. Why, I could hardly bear the weight of the bed clothes on me, was nervous, break and played out, and was about ready to give up in despair."

"Well, what Tanlac has done for me seems almost unbelievable, but it's every word the truth. It has relieved me so completely of the rheumatism and limbered up my knees and joints so that I could get out on Boston common and clip off a hundred yards dash with most anybody. Why, I'm as sound as a dollar now, and feel 'top top' in every way. It's certainly a blessing to be strong and healthy like I am now, and I owe it every bit to Tanlac."

Tanlac and Tanlac Vegetable Pills are sold in Lowell by Green's Drug store under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative by Wright Drug Co., Billerica, Mass.; A. D. Fells, Chelmsford, Mass.; Snow's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggist in every town. —Adv.

"All very good," said Cap'n Pennywinkle, "but I don't think so. It was too dark. What I'm afraid of is that it's a new island and that it might not stick up far enough."

"You see," went on the fairman, "every once in a while we get a new island, and do you know, we have an awful time finding it. Worse 'n' finding a needle in a 10-ton haystack."

"And do they make a noise?" asked Niek.

"Do they? Yes, indeed. You see, there are volcanoes under the sea as well as on land, and when they explode and a lot of rocks 'n' things come bursting out, they pile up on each other clear to the top of the water and that's an island. If it doesn't get up to the top, but stays just under the water, it is dangerous. So, Niekie, we must find that island and learn if it's a safe one. If it isn't, we'll have to build a lighthouse or put a bell-buoy on it."

WAS TENDERED BACHELOR PARTY

George Picard, a well known business man of the West Centralville district, who on Thanksgiving will be married to Miss Irene Parent, a charming young woman of this city, was tendered a bachelor party at the home of his father, Mr. Elie Picard, 307 Hildreth street, Saturday night. The affair was attended by about 150 friends of the young man, and all spent a most enjoyable evening.

As a token of esteem on the part of his many friends the young man was presented a purse of gold, the presentation address being delivered by E. S. Desmarais. Mr. Picard responded in appropriate terms and an evening of pleasure followed. There were vocal and instrumental selections by E. S. Desmarais, Leo Silverio, Frank Lambert, Joseph Harvey, J. Tessier, E. J. Laroche and others. In the course of the evening refreshments were served and the party broke up at a reasonable hour after all present had extended their best wishes to the bride-to-be. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Sam Parent, chairman; Frank Lambert, Omer Hebert and Ludger Picard.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR LADIES NIGHT

The committee in charge of the ladies' night entertainment, of Lowell Council, Knights of Columbus, has completed all plans and a most successful affair is anticipated. Grand Knight John E. Hart will be general manager, and Frank C. Green floor marshal.

The committee in charge of the "stag party" by Bishop DeWay assembly will hold a meeting tonight to check up the cards returned by the members. It is evident that the affair is to be a pronounced success, judging from the interest aroused.

Hon. B. F. Flaherty, the new state deputy of the N. of C. in Maine, is well known locally as a member of the Portland council, and is said to be quite an ardent worker.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The tryout of the cast of the high school play, will take place this week at the high school hall. The high school play this year is Penrod and is adapted from the famous story of Booth Tarkington. Work on the play begins in earnest this week. The cast in all probability will not be announced until next week. Then Miss Mary C. Joyce, the director of all the high school dramatics, will know the ability of her cast and make it known. The cast of Penrod will include 18 boys and girls. The play will take place at the Opera House Jan. 30 and 31, through the extreme courtesy of Mr. Schaeke, the owner.

Tickets for the Lawrence-Lowell game on Thanksgiving day morning were sent to the down river school by Faculty Manager James F. Conway today. A large delegation of fans from Lawrence is expected to witness the game. Mr. Conway is also starting work on putting out a program for the game. The lineup of the two teams and the picture of the rival captains will be included in it.

The November issue of the Review will be published and put out by Tuesday, November 22.

A party of Miss Stevens' third hour English class will be held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock in the hall. The committee in charge is composed of James Harley, Charles Connor, Grace Hall and Hazel Yeomans.

A debate will be held in the school hall Friday afternoon. The question is: Resolved, That disarmament would tend toward internal prosperity. The affirmative will be upheld by Geary, Crowley and Court, while the negative will be upheld by Lipschitz, Arlinsky and McCarty.

BREAK UP BIRTH CONTROL MEETING

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Margaret Sanger and Miss Mary Windsor of Philadelphia were arrested last night after they were alleged to have defied the police by addressing a mass meeting in Town hall in the interests of birth control. The police broke up the meeting.

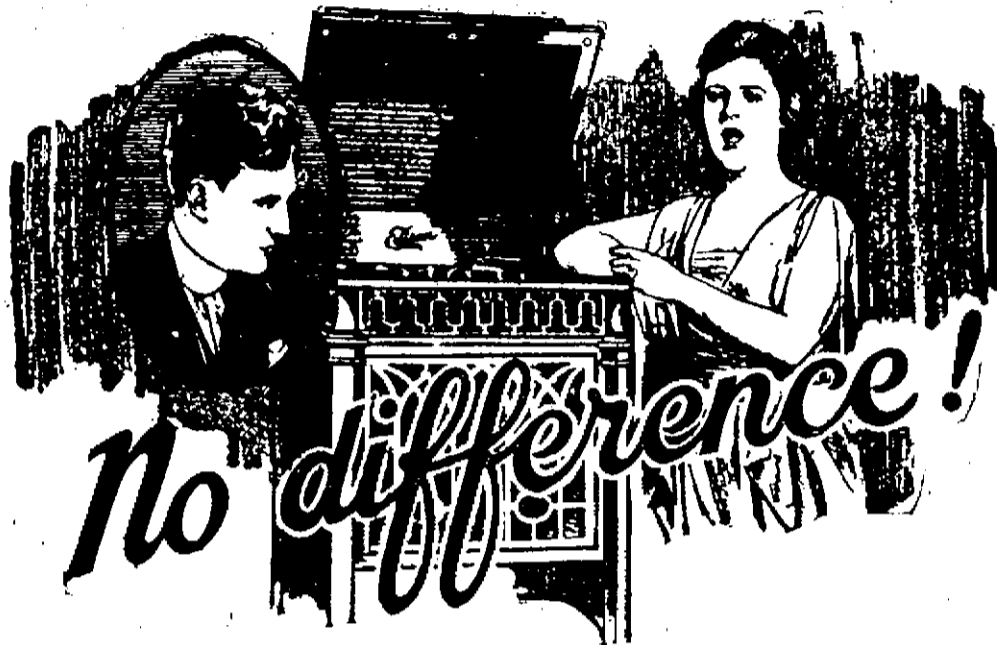

The two women were taken to the West 47-st. police station, where technical charges of disorderly conduct were made against them. A crowd of several thousand persons followed them to the station house, many of them hissing and jeering the police, and it was necessary to call out reserves to disperse them. The two women later were paroled in the custody of their counsel for their appearance in the West Side court today.

BIG AUDIENCE AT COLONIAL HALL HEARS HELEN DAVIS AND VICTOR YOUNG IN EDISON TONE-TEST

In a test of direct comparison, made last Wednesday night at Colonial Hall, before a large audience, the New Edison scored a complete and convincing triumph.

Helen Davis, the famous mezzo-soprano, sang in direct comparison with the RE-CREATION of her voice by the New Edison. To the ear, there was no difference between her living voice and her re-created voice.

This is the most drastic phonograph test known. No other phonograph has ever sustained it. No other phonograph has even attempted it.

The New Edison's marvelous performance of last Wednesday night vindicates everything that has been said or claimed for its perfect realism.

Half-way through her song, she suddenly stopped singing. The New Edison, at her side, took up her song,—and continued it alone.

Singer and phonograph thus alternated, throughout the song.

The only way the audience could be sure which was singing, was by watching Miss Davis' lips,—so exactly like the living voice was the RE-CREATED voice.

Victor Young made the same test of comparison with the RE-CREATIONS of his piano selections. Again the same result—there was no difference between the RE-CREATED performance and the living performance.

Proof was piled upon proof! Evidence was massed on evidence! The end of the concert found the audience absolutely and completely convinced, through its own personal experience, that there is no difference between an artist's living performance and its RE-CREATION by the New Edison—that listening to the New Edison is, in literal truth, the same as listening to the living artists.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

Only one question can still bother your mind. This question we now answer.

The instrument used in last Wednesday's tests was not a special model. It was an Official Laboratory Model, taken from our regular stock. Every Official Laboratory Model in our stock is guaranteed to sustain the same test of direct comparison with living artists.

You can have an Official Laboratory Model in your home. You can own an instrument which will do everything done last Wednesday in the test. Come in. Hear the wonderful Official Laboratory Model for yourself. Learn about our Budget Plan, which puts our Official Laboratory Model into your home for no more than you would "put down" for a talking machine.

GREATEST BATTLESHIP

Superdreadnaught Maryland Went Onto Rockland Trial Course Today

ROCKLAND, Me., Nov. 14.—The superdreadnaught Maryland designated by Secretary of State Hughes as one of the battleships which will escape the scrap heap, provided this country's naval proposals are accepted by the armament limitation conference, went onto the Rockland trial course today for the beginning of her official standardization test.

The program mapped out by the board of inspection and survey called for three runs at 17, 19 and 21 knots speed over the mile course and five runs at maximum speed to be followed if permitted, by some of the backing and steering tests.

Motion picture men were at their wits end to devise some method of obtaining more audacious pictures than any which previously have been made, for these are to be exhibited before the conference in Washington Thursday, showing the world's greatest battleship in a supreme endeavor to better the speed of 21 knots which is required of this type.

The Maryland is said to have already done this unofficially, but as the craft had not been standardized the results were not marked by dependable accuracy.

Excelling in every other department of naval architecture and equipment, the Maryland has the distinction of being the first battleship on trial with armament of 16-inch guns. When these weapons do their barking along the New England coast in the runs from Rockland to Boston Wednesday, real shells will come from the muzzles, each weighing 2100 pounds and having a carrying distance of 20 miles.

The big electric propelling motors are of a different design than those of the Tennessee, which craft attained a speed of 21.264 knots on a similar trial off Rockland in the early summer. The Maryland's trial displacement today was announced at 2400 tons which is slightly greater than that of the Tennessee.

The Maryland is in command of Captain Charles F. Preston, and the board of inspection and survey is headed by Rear Admiral C. P. Plunkett. In spite of the threat implied by the proposed 10-year naval holiday, practically every steel shipyard in the country is represented by the 150 observers on board.

How Gude's Pepto-Mangan Relieves Ill Humor or Bad Health

When ill humor becomes chronic and a man or woman who should be genial becomes known as "grouchy," nine times out of ten the cause is physical. When blood gets weak and full of poisons it leaves the body weak, the face pale, and causes a tired feeling. There is no endurance. Nerves get all rattled, because in a weak-blooded condition the body is not nourished sufficiently with the oxygen that rich red blood supplies.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is a blood-builder and when taken in steady doses for a while it causes a flood of fresh red blood cells to stream through the body, bringing robust health and strength. With good blood, rich and red, there are no "grouches." Life looks good and pleasures are keenly enjoyed.

Druggists have Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid and tablet form. Be sure to get the genuine with the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package.—Adv.

A pretty wedding took place this morning at St. Joseph's rectory when Mr. George Parent and Miss Annette Giroux, two well known young residents of this city were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 8 o'clock in the private chapel of the rectory by Rev. Guillaume Ouellette, O. M. I. The bride wore a dark blue traveling suit with hat to match and carried American beauty roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Estelle Giroux, who was also attired in a dark blue traveling suit with grey hat and carried American beauty roses. The best man was Mr. Louis Parent, a brother of the groom. At the close of the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Della Giroux, 14 Endicott street and present at the festivities were guests from Somerville, Brockton, Taunton, New Bedford and New Hampshire. CARDINAL ISSUES STRONG PASTORAL ON INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

Rights and Duties of Employer and Employee Laid Down—Work and Christian Principles of Justice and Charity the Remedy

In all the Catholic churches in the city yesterday, and in fact all churches of the Boston diocese, a long pastoral letter was read from His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell on "Religious Ideals in Industrial Relations" of which the following is a part:

To establish peace in the world Christ came among men. The pagan nations, ignorant of God and His laws, had attempted, with but small measure of success, the reconciliation of human and divine rights and duties. They knew no law but the law of force. Brutal tyranny stalked abroad. Gods there were, but none with power to help the weak. There was a god of war and a god of wealth, god of beauty and a god of pleasure. There was no god of poverty, of humility, of pain. Envy, jealousy, hatred of man for man, of tribe for tribe, of nation for nation naturally followed the rule of might. This was no place for justice and charity. He is banished from society, peace and good will among men are banished with him. Modern paganism, too, has its gods. Peace is not among them.

The heart of the world is fired of strife. Peace—peace is on every lip, the echo of every heart. But there is no peace, and there will be no peace until the cause of strife is removed. It would be false optimism to say, "All is well," when we know that with the rapid growth of wealth the selfishness of man has kept pace; that the gap between rich and poor is constantly widening; that the very basis of society is being disrupted; that religion and industry are blaspheming away the very foundations of faith.

Not with a wall of pessimism do we raise our voice but with affectionate warning. Modern paganism has done its work, but the God of our fathers is with us still. He will save us. We have but to put into practice the justice and charity of Christ. When Christian ideals rule the world, then, and not till then, we shall have peace. "Jerusalem, Jerusalem, if you didst but know the things which are for thy peace!"

The existence of deep-seated discontent and far-reaching resentment in the industrial world of today is not to be questioned. Wage earners are restless; the wealthy are apprehensive; petty strikes are of daily occurrence; great strikes threaten national disaster; class consciousness is on the increase; class hatred is being fomented by unscrupulous agitators.

The Remedy for Strife

Over a quarter of a century ago Leo XIII, with unerring instinct placed his finger on the sore spots of the modern industrial world and offered religious ideals for labor and capital. He pointed out that large numbers of workers were destitute and that "to exercise pressure on the indigent and the destitute for the sake of gain, and to rather ones profit out of the need of another is condemned by all laws, human and divine. To defraud any one of wages that are his due is a crime that cries to the avenging anger of heaven." The rich must religiously refrain from cutting down the workman's earnings, whether by force or by fraud, or by usurious dealing and with all the greater reason for the laboring man is, as a rule, weak and unprotected, and because his slender means should in proportion to their scantiness be accounted sacred. . . . were these precepts carefully obeyed and followed out would they not be sufficient of themselves to keep under all strife and its causes?"

No one can doubt that had the voice of the Pontiff been heeded the world today would be immeasurably better off. But the new paganism of materialist philosophy has passed the portals of the schools and has poisoned the very sources of civil and industrial light. "Might is right," "the survival of the fittest," "the battle to the strong"—these are principles of action in the industrial world.

Labor and Capital

The general public has grown distrustful and suspicious, and the consequent note of pessimism has wrought incalculable harm to the business prosperity of the world. Misguided men, oftentimes ignorant of the true issues involved, have lent themselves to the propaganda of radicalism. Not only are present systems of government the object of increasing attack, but even the more fundamental ideals, the ideals of the family, of religion, and of authority itself.

Without minimizing the evils of the present industrial system, nevertheless, we refuse to believe in the hopelessness of the situation. We believe that the present evils can be gradually remedied; that reforms can be introduced and that the world will go forward to better and higher things.

We believe that labor and capital can get together. Labor needs capital, capital needs labor. In the recent hour of national distress, labor and capital worked together for the successful prosecution of the war. There were mistakes and there were a great deal of there; but they were exceptional. This shows that they can work together in peace and harmony for the common weal.

It would be particularly sad at this time, when the world has been torn apart when large sections of Europe have been devastated, when families and plagues are raging, if we, the leaders in world production, should lose this blessed opportunity, rendering service to stricken humanity, friend and foe alike; if we who were so ready to furnish weapons of destruction should fail so lamentably in the work of reconstruction.

The Fundamental Mistake

The fundamental mistake in the contemporary situation is a mistake in the point of view. Statesmen and legislators, philanthropists and economists have persisted in regarding the problem as a merely economic one. Economists, philanthropists and statesmen may alleviate distress. They cannot heal the wounds of society. These lie too deep.

For underneath the turmoil lies a wrong philosophy of life, a misunderstanding of the destiny of man and his relation to his Creator. The question of human and divine rights involved in the industrial issues of the day is a moral question. The well-being of the individual and family is connected with the reciprocal rights and duties of those who make claims and of those who resist them. The problem is a moral aspect which cannot be ignored. It is above the domain of mere economics.

To find a remedy for the evils of the industrial world, to reconcile conflicting interests, to make practical application of the religious ideals of Christianity in everyday life, to restore peace on earth, is a work which should be done to every economic end. For the flag, and to which every Christian and every patriot may well consecrate his most sacred endeavor.

No crusade for social betterment can succeed without justice and charity. Men and nations must return to truth, to a sincere and persevering effort to do right, to a brotherly love. The principles underlying social reform must portend the existence of God and the immortality of the soul. The law of God and Lawgiver. His laws may not be violated with impunity by state or individual. His sanctions are inevitable. Social action must be based on love of God and love of his neighbor. Without these principles there will be no solution to the difficulties with which we are beset.

Labor

"In the sweat of thy face shall thou eat bread." "If any man will not work, neither let him eat." There is no place in the modern world of our society for the idler. Activity of either production or service is obligatory on all.

This is an obligation which springs from the need of society, but even more so from the need of the individual. Work is our protection against moral, intellectual and physical atrophy. The rich man is not freed from this obligation. He is released from the common burdens, but by this very fact he is the more obliged to serve society.

Duty of Employers

To enjoy work, however, man must be maintained in a state of physical efficiency. Suitable wages are necessary that he may have food, clothing, shelter and recreation. Demands on endurance must be reasonable. Working conditions should be pleasant and healthful as far as possible.

The workman thus treated should be honest, subordinate, devoted to the interests of his employer, and considerate of his associates. He should be conscious that he is carrying out the divine command to labor. If society is to be improved the worker must do his part. The church is not afraid to demand that the laborer fulfill his rightful obligations. He should be honest in his labor. Just agreements made with the employer should be faithfully kept. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

The worker should safeguard the property of the employer as if it were his own. He should make the interest of the firm his interest. He should be reasonable in disputes and urge his claims in a fair and just way.

We have counseled workers to be just and charitable. We preach the same commandments of Christ to employers. We would even urge them to do more than justice demands and to emulate the charity of Christ and His apostles which know no limit or bound.

As an obligation, not of charity, but of strict justice, in which if they fail they will be answerable to God, if not to men, the employer should see to it that of their profits a fair amount is set apart for the wage of their workmen, that they, too, may live and may support their families.

Employers should be faithful to the agreements which they have made. Let them remember that before God, who is no respecter of persons, all men are equal. Let them see the image of God in the workman, for God has created every man to His own image and likeness. Let them have regard for the dignity of the workman, his right to health, to safety and to recreation, that he may restore the energy expended in toil. Let them see to it that ample time is given not only for requisite recreation but for the due performance of civil, domestic and religious duties.

Workers' Rights

The evils and abuses of the present industrial system cannot be too strongly deplored. The aloofness of the employer from the worker, the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few, the oppression of the worker, are abuses which, while not universal, are still altogether too common. Stories of excessive profits and low wages, of heartless dismissals, of inhuman disregard of labor, are a disgrace to our democratic state.

Happily, there are exceptions. Some industries are conducted in a manner

KIDNEY TROUBLES Conquered or Money Back

For 40 years, says Dr. Carey, I have been prescribing Marsh-Root for Kidney and Bladder sickness on the money back if dissatisfied plan.

If you are tired, miserable, tortured with nagging backache, lameness, acute, darting pains; subject to dizziness, headaches, slow skin, puffiness under your eyes, a tendency to rheumatic pains and bladder disorders, look to your Kidneys. Don't wait. Get your health back while you can. Drink lots of good pure water and start at once taking Dr. Carey's Marsh-Root Prescription No. 177, Liquid or Tablets. which reflects credit on capital. Health, morals, culture and the economic prosperity of the workers are regarded. These exceptions make us realize that what is needed is transformation of men and methods. Greed and avarice must be checked whenever possible.

Defense Against Oppression

Labor unions exist to protect the weak against the strong; to help the employee in collective bargaining; to defend the interests of the worker against the aggression of powerful and organized capital. Strong and well conducted unions generally see to it that agreements are kept.

The hostility to employers, the tendency to drift toward radicalism or into harmful, political activity, the fostering of useless strikes, the limiting of output, the demand for wages independently of merit and skill, are evils incidental to unionism, but not necessary. The more intelligent and better disposed trade unionists greatly deplore these abuses and earnestly seek to remedy them. They are striving to establish industrial peace.

However, until due recognition and help come to the worker from state or employer, he will be justified by self-defense in resorting to strikes. It is a natural right of man to give or withhold his labor. It is man's defense against injury and oppression. Man's right to strike is then a natural right.

A strike can be just and may be necessary. A strike is not war, save figuratively, but like war it should be considered a last resort. Workmen should think, long and earnestly, before using this weapon.

Strike Court of Last Appeal

They must see to it that the strike is just; that fellow-workmen are not intimidated by their action; that no just contract is violated; they must weigh well the chance of success; they must ask themselves if their prospective gain will compensate for the suffering and loss inflicted on themselves, their family, and the public at large.

Experience shows that a large number of strikes have failed and failure has often been disastrous to the worker and has always lowered the prestige of the union. Partial failures have ended in compromise which might often have been reached by arbitration without the bitterness of conflict.

When moral principles are not involved expediency may be consulted, and, even though there be cause for the strike, public sentiment or necessity may make action inopportune and seriously endanger the chances of success. Wise counsel and prudence exercised recently in the calling off of the threatened railway strike, should then prevail. Even victory at times does not compensate for losses sustained in conflict. The strike, like war, can be justified, but, like war, it is the court of last appeal. "The state has the right to suppress a civil war, but a strike should never be civil war. Sometimes incidental to a strike, but not at all necessary, and greatly to be deplored by true friends of labor, are intimidation, disorder, riot and violence. A strike of itself does not imply any disturbance of the peace."

The state should always maintain discipline and order, but the state has no right to prohibit a just strike. That is a natural right of man. It is man's natural defense. It existed prior to the state itself, and in a right which no society can annul.

Justice Done Not Enough

Religious ideals, then, which alone will bring lasting peace in industrial relations are the ideals of Jesus Christ—justice and charity. Justice alone is not sufficient. Justice looks to order and peace, but a world ruled by justice alone with its rigid standards would be a cold world.

Christian charity is not unselfish; it is unselfish love. It is not mere philanthropy or humanitarianism. These can never take the place of true charity. "And if I should deliver all my goods to feed the poor and if I should deliver my body to be burnt, and have not charity it profiteth me nothing."

Charity sees Christ in every man. "As long as you did it to one of these my least brethren, you did it to Me." Charity is the characteristic and distinguishing mark of the Christian. "By this shall all men know that you are my disciples, if you have love one for another." It springs not from mercy but from love; not from the pity with which men regard inferiors, but from the noble Christian sentiment that we are all brothers in Christ.

The letter closed with this appeal: We appeal to the justice and charity of the American people to take up this work of Christ—the restoration of peace and confidence in the industrial world today.

Let America, a true republic, lead in this work and by the force of its just and charitable public sentiment give an example of practical Christianity to the world—that all men may know that this government of the people, by the people and for the people respects the rights of God and man, and consequently will not perish from the earth.

EX-MAYOR WHIPPLE OF BROCKTON DEAD

BROCKTON, Nov. 14.—John Jay Whipple, a former mayor of Brockton and president of the Wildlife Savings bank of Boston since its institution, in 1892, died here today, in his 74th year. He was a direct descendant of the Whipple family which settled here in 1632. He served as mayor in 1888, in 1894 and 1895; represented the city in the legislature for three terms and was a member of the staff of Governor Robinson from 1884 to 1887. For some time he was secretary of the republican state committee.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—puffiness—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you 90 per cent. of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.—Adv.

For the way that brings prettier teeth

Do as millions have done—make this ten-day test. See how film removal beautifies the teeth. Learn how it makes safer teeth. Brush your teeth in the modern way and watch all the good effects.

Film makes teeth dingy

That vicious film you feel is the teeth's chief enemy. Most tooth troubles are now traced to it.

It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Old brushing methods did not effectively combat it. So very few people have escaped discoloration and decay.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Two ways to fight it

Dental science has now found two effective ways to fight film. They are combined in a new-day tooth paste—Pepsodent—made to meet modern requirements.

Pepsodent PAT OFF
REG. U.S.

The New-Day Dentifrice

The scientific film combatant, approved by modern authorities and now advised by leading dentists everywhere—to bring five desired effects. All druggists supply the large tubes.

Each use of Pepsodent brings five effects which dentists now desire. It attacks the film. It keeps the teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

It increases the salivary flow, which is Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That to digest the starch deposits which otherwise may form acid. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Thus Pepsodent is bringing to millions whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. Leading dentists everywhere are now urging its adoption.

Results are delightful

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the vicious film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

MAKES COMEBACK

Champion Rough-and-Tumble Fighter Fit to do Battle
Again

"Mickey the Fighter," a regular dog and the terror of Tyler street and vicinity, is back on all four feet again and meeting all comers. Announcement was made today that Mickey had been cured of a cauliflower ear and several rib lacerations received about three weeks ago in a bad jam with a fiver.

Veterinary Surgeon Eaton said he was afraid Mickey might not survive his experience, for the fiver missed fire right afterward and nearly overturned a telephone pole. Mickey was in really bad shape when his young owner, whose name Mr. Eaton did not secure, brought him into the Humane society clinic rooms. The ear was finally adjusted and no more was made to open the gas box, where a good many canines are given tickets to the happy hunting grounds.

For three weeks and every second day—the Mickey of Tyler street and nearby backyards was brought faithfully by its anxious little owner to the society rooms and had his wounds dressed. Then, when the work was done to everybody's satisfaction and the society officer properly thanked Mickey and his owner went away. Late last week, the door of Mr. Eaton's office was pushed open suddenly, nearly causing the surgeon to spring for his trusty Colt. It was Mickey, the fighter—cured and happy, and barking joyously—back again to see Eaton and ask him, in dog language, how's everything.

Mr. Eaton called to Mickey, but he gave another yelp, turned tail and fled. The veterinarian actually believes that canine came back to thank him for dragging him out of an early grave.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By Theatres Own Press Agents

R. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

A bill of extraordinary merit will be produced at the R. F. Keith theatre this week, and in the very forefront will be the wonderful Armistice day pictures shot in Washington on Friday. These will show not only the solemn procession from the ruins of the capital to Arlington National cemetery, but many of the finer details attendant upon the funeral of the "unknown soldier." They are said to be very wonderful pictures, and they will attract a well-merited attention on the part of Lowell citizens.

Harry Hayden & Co. in "The Love Game," have a swell little dramatic comedy. Hayden is rated as one of the very best juvenile actors on the stage today, having been associated with the Belasco forces in "The Boomerang" for some time. He is the author of the comedy, and he has brought to it one of the very best comedies of this type are exceedingly rare.

In "Georgia on Broadway" there will appear Claude Powers and Vernon Wallace, an attractive pair, who will demonstrate much of that mellowness which goes with the life and the soul of the southland. They are typical of the better life below the Mason & Dixon line, and they give not an imitation of it, but a real slice, for they are Southerners.

Roller skating comedy is the hardest in the world to put over, for a person on skates can't always tell just how he is going to tumble. Jack McAllen and "Olio" May farrow will demonstrate, however, just how they can extract the last piece of fun from roller skating falls. The act is a perfect scream all the way through.

If you want a little bit of fun and music look over Viola Russell and Edward Dunigan, whose "Revues" are of the neatest possible type. Madelon and Paula Miller are youthful and musical comedians and versatile and Raymound Wilbert is an unusually funny man. Bins & Grill will close the bill with gymnastic work.

Pathe Weekly will also be shown.

THE STRAND

A photograph of unusual excellence, "The Search Light," featuring Alice Joyce, will head the bill at The Strand today. "All Fair in Love" will be the other attraction.

OPERA HOUSE

Mother love and devotion, a theme generations old, and quite as popular and interesting to us as ever, and is at present enjoying a wonderful strong melodrama, "Over the Hills," which is to be presented this week by the Lowell Players at the Opera House. The piece is founded on Will Carleton's famous poem, "Over the Hills to the Poor House," and also from the companion poem, "Over the Hills From the Poor House." One of the greatest motion pictures of all times has been made from the poem and is at present enjoying a wonderful success. The piece is one of the large theatrical centres of the country. This together with the fact that the play is to be produced in 20 different theatres of the country during this week, attests to its popularity and favor with the theatrefolk. The story is a simple, little recital of events, which moves the audience for the action of it. A mother and her two sons are found living together. One of the boys is the black-sheep of the family, while the other is a snob. The latter, who has been a snob, has attempted to dishonor his mother and drive her from her home. He not only establishes his innocence but brings his mother back into her own and points out to her a bright and happy future. One of the best productions of the year is presented by the Players. Between the acts James L. Wood will sing "Over the Hills," a song inspired by the play, the motion picture and the poems. Order your tickets well in advance. A capacity business is looked for.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE: William S. Hart and Jane Novak in "Three Word Brand" and "The Doctor's Daughter." A Grand Crisp production. Are the feature attractions at the Merrimack Square theatre.

TAKES CARE OF 5 CHILDREN

Mrs. Taylor's Sickness Ended

by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Roxbury, Mass.—"I suffered continually with backache and was often dependent, had dizzy spells and at my monthly periods I was almost impossible to keep around at my work. Since my last baby came two years ago my back has been worse and no position I could get in would relieve it, and doctor's medicine did not help me. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have found great relief since using it. My back is much better and I can sleep well. I keep house and have the care of five children so my work is very trying and I am very thankful I have found this Compound such a help. I recommend it to my friends and if you wish to use this letter I am very glad to help any woman suffering as I was until I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. MAINE E. TAYLOR, 5 St. James Place, Roxbury, Mass.

Backache is one of the most common symptoms of a displacement or derangement of the female system. No woman should make the mistake of trying to overcome it by heroic endurance, but profit by Mrs. Taylor's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"STOPPED INSOMNIA BY INTERNAL BATHS"

Mrs. William Kindeg of 537 West 44th St., Dayton, Ohio, writes to the Hygienic Institute of New York:

"Much medicine for physis and the internal poisons from Constipation caused me to have insomnia, but the 'J. B. L. Cascade' corrected all this and is still giving me wonderful results. The 'J. B. L. Cascade' cleanses the lower intestine its entire length and keeps it always free of poisonous waste. Thousands testify that Constipation, Indigestion, Stomach Troubles, Biliousness, Headaches and all the many serious troubles which they cause are absolutely relieved and prevented by this Nature Treatment. Liggett's two stores, 61-63 Merrimack St., Central, cor. Merrimack, will gladly explain to you the simple operation of the 'J. B. L. Cascade,' why it is so certain in its results, and will give you free of cost an interesting little book containing the results of the experiences of Dr. Chas. A. Terrell of New York, who was a specialist on Intestinal Complaints for 25 years in that city. Why not cut this out as a reminder to get this book as soon as possible. Remember, please, it is free.

At city hall the marshal was greeted by Mayor Peters and members of the city government. Handing him a gold-embossed key to the city, a foot long, the mayor said: "This city is your home, as in every city, town and hamlet in our country. Wherever courage, patriotism, self-sacrifice and devotion to the principles of freedom are held high, there you will find home."

TROUBLED WITH PIMPLES 2 YEARS

In Blisters On Forehead and Face. Itched and Burned. Cuticura Heals.

"For about two years I was troubled with pimples. They first broke out in little blisters on my forehead and later on my face. They itched and burned so that I had to scratch them, making them worse, and sometimes they festered. My face was disfigured. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment which relieved me. I purchased more, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Helen M. Aronson, 8 Dunkeld St., Roxbury, Mass., Feb. 18, 1921.

For every purpose of the toilet and bath, Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are wonderfully good. Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 44, 147 West 24th St., New York City. Ointment 25c, Soap 25c. Cuticura Soap shavers without mug.

Exercises at Boston College. Swinging out to Newton through the snow, Marshal Foch found the exercises at Boston college moved indoors because of the storm. After Rev. William Devlin, S. J., president of the college, and its faculty had greeted him, back by the student body in caps and gowns, the party went to the Administration building, where Father Devlin conferred on the French the degree of Doctor of Laws. He saluted him as a fellow graduate of a Jesuit college, as he did so.

WILL HELP BUSINESS

Among government financiers the belief is spreading that the process of deflation has been carried altogether too far, with the result that business has suffered unnecessarily. There is now an indication of an effort to reverse the process and to offer loans at lower rates of interest and to be more liberal in extending credit to business men of undoubted solvency.

An indication of this tendency is found in the new issue of treasury certificates at 4 1/2 per cent. Evidently the treasury department has discovered that high rates of interest are destructive of business and low rates an encouragement.

The process of providing cheaper money is also favored by the Federal Reserve banks which carried the deflation idea to an injurious extreme. It appears that English financiers are likely to follow the same process inasmuch as London dispatches report that Lloyd George now favors mild inflation. In his speech at Liverpool, he stated that there are many able men who believe that Britain and America have gone too far in the matter of deflation.

The two elements of high taxation and restriction of credit are among the worst handicaps to business recovery; and until there is some relief in both directions, it can hardly be expected that prosperity can be restored.

Lower discount rates will help struggling business concerns and will increase confidence which had been reduced during two years of severe liquidation. The Federal Reserve banks now realize that they can safely reverse their policy to some extent. The only danger to be guarded against is, that if the new movement be overdone, it might lead to an outburst of speculation that would bring damaging results. This, however, will doubtless be carefully guarded against by those in charge of the banks. It is true, however, that practical business men hold to the idea that the evil effects of deflation can best be overcome by deeply cutting national expenditures and increasing individual production. The greatest possible production at reasonable cost is the demand of the hour. It will help employment and it will result in an increase in the purchasing power of the dollar.

The enactment of the revenue bill by congress will remove a state of uncertainty which will also help business, even though the taxes are not to be reduced to any great extent. As far as the tariff, the emergency act is to be held in force until the general act is passed, perhaps next spring. It is just as well to delay the general tariff law for the reason that at the present time, the republicans in congress seem unable to settle upon any fixed policy in dealing with the tariff beyond that of piling up unreasonable duties on every line of imports. With the arms conference now in session, congress is not likely to do much business for the remainder of the year beyond finishing up the revenue bill and sparring over a number of side issues.

STILL ANOTHER CRISIS

Another crisis has arisen in the Irish situation resulting from the unwillingness of Ulster to join with the rest of Ireland under a central parliament. Ulster has already made very positive declarations of "no surrender" but so far as can be learned Ulster is not required to make any concessions that would be regarded as a nullification of her rights. The trouble with Ulster is that her people have been so pampered by the British government that they feel almost insulted at being asked to join with the rest of Ireland on what may be supposed to be an equal basis. Under the rule of Great Britain for practically the last century, Ulster has been in the ascendant in Irish affairs and she is now asked to enter a national parliament while retaining her own provincial legislature.

Both Lloyd George and former Premier Asquith said repeatedly that it was unthinkable to coerce Ulster; but if Ulster is allowed to dominate the government of the British empire as it has done to a great extent since 1914, there is going to be more trouble in England and considerably more in Ireland. The result will be fully as bad for England as for Ireland, should the present outlook for peace and a satisfactory settlement be smashed by the obstinacy of a recalcitrant minority. It is noticeable that Bonar Law has come out of his retirement to lead the die-hards against yielding to the appeals of the premier, and as for Sir Edward Carson, who is ill, it is understood that as usual, he stands by Ulster as against the rest of Ireland. Thus at the moment when a satisfactory settlement of this long-controversial issue is hoped for, obstacles arise that threaten to blast once more the hopes of the friends of peace both in Ireland and in England. It remains to be seen whether Lloyd George can bring the Ulstermen to join in the new scheme under which Ireland as a united and self-governing nation would live in peace and harmony to work out her national destinies free from the incubus of alien misrule.

DISCARD THE UNFIT

One week from tomorrow the voters of Lowell will be called upon to select from the long list of candidates those whom they would prefer as public servants during the next two years. In spite of the fact that it has been stated over and over again, that each voter will have the right to vote only for as many candidates as there are offices to be filled, yet there seems to be much misunderstanding upon this point.

for one ward councilor and for nine candidates for the school board. That will make 17 in all; but it must be remembered that nine ward councilors are to be elected and, therefore, on the final ballot on election day, there will be 12 candidates for councilor at large, 18 for ward councilor and 18 for school committee. These, with two candidates for mayor, will make a total of 50 names to be on the final ballot. The two candidates getting the highest vote in the majority contest will be the winners and twice the number to be elected to the council and school board will be nominated at the primaries next Tuesday.

There the great sifting process will begin and unless the voters exercise good judgment in selecting the best and most capable men or women, their mistakes are likely to be reflected in the final results as it is not always possible at the final election to correct the mistakes made at the primaries. It is, therefore, of the greatest importance that the voters shall attend the primaries in full numbers. The present prospect is that the primaries will bring the largest vote ever cast in the history of the city. That will have at least one good result in that the candidates chosen will reflect the choice of the electorate. Whether the selection be good or bad, the electorate alone will be responsible.

There has been much said of the necessity of better government and the hope has been expressed that the new charter would bring good results; but in order to attain that end, it is necessary that the voters discard absolutely all unfit candidates and vote only for those who are strictly honest, and who from training and experience are capable of conducting the city's business with tact, foresight and efficiency.

THE WAITING ROOM

Editor Sun:

I am glad you have taken up the question of having a waiting room at the square as it is sorely needed by patrons of the street cars. I think it is a shame to have women and children exposed to the storms on the sidewalks while waiting for cars that are very often off schedule time. A waiting room is a public necessity and it will be much more so when the big auditorium is opened for public meetings at which thousands of people will be present. I hope you will succeed in forcing either the company or the city to establish a waiting room at the square.

Sincerely yours,

J. F. C.

In reference to the waiting room question, there is certainly great need of a waiting room at the square, and if the street railway company cannot provide one, then the city government should attend to it. The city provided a comfort station in the vicinity of the square; and during the coming winter, a waiting room will be needed quite as much. Since the waiting room was abolished, hundreds of people contracted severe colds, some of which developed into pneumonia, through waiting for cars on Merrimack square.

How long is this state of affairs to continue? That will depend upon the temper of the people and whether they will continue to tolerate present conditions. The lack of a waiting room is a serious handicap to business in the stores as women do not care to stand on the sidewalks waiting for cars while loaded with bundles in very cold or stormy weather.

The only solution of the difficulty is a waiting station that will save the public from dangerous exposure to the elements in very cold or stormy weather.

THE ARMS CONFERENCE

President Harding certainly made a strong and a really eloquent speech in opening the arms conference. He put the aims of the movement in the most convincing and appealing terms and apparently won the spontaneous applause of foreign delegations.

Thus far the conference goes well, but it has some very difficult matters to settle in the Far East before it can make any progress in the direction outlined by President Harding.

Japan has penetrated certain parts of China, Mongolia and Siberia and her right in Shantung will be sternly disputed, although she claims to have come legally by the German rights in Shantung. Germany took that territory by force and compelled China to sign a treaty giving her control of the peninsula. Japan claims that in taking Shantung during the war, she has the same rights previously possessed by Germany; but no such decision was made by the executive council of the allies and the United States naturally should have some voice in such matters as we were associated with the allies on equal terms during the war.

This and other questions affecting the rights of Japan in certain islands in the Pacific will all come up for settlement. But unless the differences of Japan and China can be reconciled and the "open door" policy maintained in China, the conference will accomplish little in the direction of limiting armaments. It will at least show the attitude of the various powers in reference to territorial designs and the possibility of future wars.

Marshall Field is acclaimed as the savior of New England today. He cannot come to Lowell, but if he did, he would get a rousing welcome as the greatest military genius of his time and a great democratic leader.

Don't believe all you hear from the street corner operators who appeal to prejudice and use base calumny to stir up class hatred.

And the primaries but one week away.

Winter weather seems to have come ahead of time this year.

SEEN AND HEARD

Every little penny has a value all its own around Thanksgiving time.

What happened to the cosmic urge, so popular several years ago?

Buying good race horses is no longer a gamble with Lowell fans—it's a habit.

The next time friend Linotype says up that line "More steam heat!" let it stand!

Every little flour has a blooming trademark, but the wheat grower prefers the name of Uncle Sam on the equivalent.

Two stories. The story of the jobber, with a high-pitched voice, to whom the broker said, after a lift, "I am no longer on squeaking terms with you." At the same time the story of a chief clerk who had a row with his employer one afternoon. Next day when the clerk got to the office he was surprised to find that the head of the firm was not feeling well and would not be at the office that day. "O, dear me," said the clerk, "I hope it's nothing trivial."

Didn't Pay In. He was giving his new airplane a trial, and all went well until he found himself directly over a football field where a game was in progress. There was a sharp report and a moment later he was lying on the ground with a group of officials bending over him. As he slowly opened his eyes the club secretary, with a sigh of relief, touched him gently on the shoulder. "Ah," he murmured, "I'm glad you've come round! I don't think you paid your admission, did you?"

Matrimonial Advertisement

"I want to advertise for a man," said a woman approaching the advertisement counter in the newspaper office. "I want a man to carry coal in the winter, shovel snow, mow the lawn in summer, tend the flowers, mow the children, wash dishes, sweep the front porch, run errands, and all that kind of work—in short I want a man who will always be around the place and can be called upon for any kind of hard work. He must be sober and reliable, of good appearance, not over 30." "Pardon, madame," said the clerk, "we cannot accept matrimonial advertisements."

Wise Old Lady

The old lady was timidly inspecting the stock of spectacles. "How much are these?" she asked, selecting a pair. "A dollar and a half, madam." "And how much without the case?" "Well, the case makes little difference. Suppose we say $1.45." "What! Is the case only worth five cents?" "Yes, madam," firmly.

"Well, I'm very glad to hear it; it's the case I want." And placing a nickel on the counter the dear old lady took up the case and walked timidly into the street, while the optician gasped for breath.

Looked Suspicious

A literary family to which a seventh child had just come was at a country house, and for a time a good deal of the care of the other six children devolved upon the father, who had Spartan ideas as to the bringing of his sons. One morning he carried his 2-year-old to the creek near his home to give him a cold plunge. The child objected lustily to this proceeding, but was firmly held and ducked notwithstanding. At the instant of the ducking, however, a brown hand seized at the Spartan father by his shoulder and flung him back, while the angry voice of the farmer, who was his nearest neighbor, roared in his ears: "Here! None of that! I'll have the law on you for this!" For some time the father endeavored to convince the farmer that he was not springing to drown the child. Even then he was not wholly convinced. To the very last minute he kept shaking his head skeptically and saying: "Well, I dunno about that, I dunno. You get six besides this."

MAN ABOUT TOWN

In making the rounds of city hall, it is difficult to find a place at this time where so much is done with so little fuss and feathers as in the election department. From the time the charter was accepted by the voters on Oct. 15 until last Wednesday, when the list of the candidates' nomination papers were filed, the election office was a very busy place from 9 a. m. until closing time. Since Nov. 1 there have been six days of registration for the voters, not to speak of special sessions throughout the city, and the work of the commission has been practically doubled. Yet chairman McCook, the other commissioners and the rest of the office force have always found time to treat every visitor, no matter what his errand, with perfect courtesy, although their tempers must have been sorely tried on many occasions. Now, with a primary election coming which promises to keep them on the move from early in the morning of Nov. 22 until the returns are completed some time the following morning, not to speak of the intervening preliminaries, such as fixing the candidates' positions on the ballot, the printing of ballots, the arrangement for election supplies and many other items to mention, they mention, they face the issue cheerfully, refusing to be disturbed by the prospect of some exciting incidents. Perhaps it should be mentioned that they are preparing to register voters for the city election, starting on the day after the primary.

CATHOLIC NEWS

At St. Peter's church yesterday the Married Ladies' sodality received communion in a body at the 7:30 o'clock masses. Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan celebrated the mass and was assisted by Rev. Peter J. Linehan in giving communion. At the 11 o'clock high mass which was sung by Rev. Francis L. Shea, the announcements were made and the pastoral letter from the cardinal was read by Rev. Fr. Linehan. On Wednesday evening at 7:30 the Ladies' Sodality and at the same hour Thursday evening the Society for the Propagation of the Faith will meet.

St. Rev. Monsignor William O'Brien was the celebrant of the 7 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church, at which the Children of Mary Sodality, Holy Family Sodality and Immaculate Conception Sodality attended communion. Rev. Francis L. Keenan assisted in giving communion. A meeting of the Holy Name society was held last night to arrange for the opening of the membership drive today. This drive will continue until Tuesday of next week. In the effort to secure new members the parish will be canvassed by a committee of 40.

The Immaculate Conception Sodality received communion at the 7 o'clock mass at the Immaculate Conception church yesterday. Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O.M.I., assisted the celebrant. Very Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, in giving communion. The same priests officiated at the 8 o'clock mass, at which the Holy Name society received communion. At the late mass, sung by Rev. Martin Norton, O.M.I., the announcements were read by the pastor.

The high mass at the church of the Sacred Heart was sung by Rev. George Fox, O.M.I., and the announcements were made by the pastor, Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I. The pastor celebrated the 7:30 o'clock mass, at which the Holy Name society received communion. He was assisted in giving communion by Rev. F. X. McGann, O.M.I. There will be a meeting of the Holy Name society on Tuesday evening at 7:30.

Rev. John J. Shaw, the pastor, celebrated the 8 o'clock mass at St. Michael's church, and was assisted by Rev. Fr. Lynch in giving communion to the Holy Name society, who attended in a body. The high mass was sung by Rev. Francis J. Mullin and the pastoral letter read by Rev. James F. Lynch. There will be a meeting of the Charity Guild at 7:30 Tuesday evening.

Rev. Charles J. Galligan, pastor and Rev. Wm. P. Drennan celebrated the early masses at St. Margaret's church yesterday. The late mass was sung by Rev. Stephen J. Murray. Arrangements have been completed for the annual parish reunion in Associate hall next Thursday evening and a complete success is anticipated. At 7:30 Tuesday evening there will be a meeting of the Ladies' sodality.

Rev. John A. Hogan sang the late mass at St. Columba's church yesterday. The early masses were celebrated by Rev. James F. Somers.

TO CARRY U. S. MAIL

IN ARMORED TRUCKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Preparations for guarding valuable mail at local postal stations and in transit with an armed force of marines were completed last night with the arrival of 201 marines under Lieut. Whittle, from Quantico, Va., making a force of 265 marines and four officers available for the postal authorities.

Capt. Norman Bates said last night that 65 marines will be used to guard the 40 trains leaving New York every day with valuable mail. The others will be used to guard the loading platforms at the various postal stations and ride with the drivers of mail trucks. A force of 75 men will be quartered at the Central postoffice. Four armored trucks, which will be used for valuable mail only, will be ready for use the coming week.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem Youth Eternal

Lord, keep me young, though my joints get creaky,
My hair turn gray and my eyes go bad,
Though the valves of my heart get somewhat leaky,
Yet my spirit still, be a spirit glad.
For arteries harden and thaws grow rusty
And the strength may be as a spring that's sprung,
But the mind and the soul may still be lusty
If You, dear Master, will keep me young.

Lord, keep me young, though the years may chill me
And love be only a tale that's told,
Life will have glamour and glow to thrill me
So long as the heart of me isn't old;
If my voice shall be too cracked for singing,
If my feet no more in the dance are flung,
I still can list to the laughter ringing
And find it good—if You keep me young.

Let me never sit in the corner, frowning
On fun and frolic and gaiety,
Let me rather smile at the joyous clowning
Of youth that merrily winks at me;
Then I shall not shudder at strength departed
Or growl and grumble with acid tongue,
But dream again with bliss light-hearted
If You, dear Master, will keep me young!

Billy Murphy of the Acre will be given a chance to show on Thursday night, whether he is ready to tackle the leading men of his class, not only in this vicinity, but from other sections, for upon his showing against the crafty and well experienced Kid Thomas of Lawrence depends his immediate future activities in the ring.

In all his bouts to date Murphy has clearly demonstrated his superiority over his opponents and his supporters are confident he will continue his victorious record against the down-river veteran.

If the local boy can win over Thomas he will be kept busy. That is his object and he has begun training under the capable direction of Martin Flaherty.

Today's Sport Angle

Is the bonus system a good thing in baseball?

For years certain managers have clung to the system of rewarding certain players on the basis of their accomplishments.

On the surface that seems like a perfectly logical way to determine the value of a player. It would seem that it would spur the player on to greater effort, because of the extra compensation promised.

It sounds well in theory but does not work out in practice. It has been customary to apply the bonus system to games won by a pitcher, also the ability to hit, to run, or to improve upon his average of the previous year.

In the early season I believe the bonus system may have some worthy features. It unquestionably makes the pitcher or batter buster because of his objective. Late in the season, with the result hanging in the balance, it seems to work just the other way.

In this connection I recall the case of a certain pitcher who was promised $1000 extra if he won 20 games. With only three weeks to go the pitcher had to win three games to receive the bonus. He had been going badly, and added to this was the fact that he wouldn't come through.

The club was in the fight for the pennant. Its pitching strength was crippled, and much depended on the work of the pitcher with the bonus contract. Ordinarily a pleasant chap, who accepted the breaks of the game without a murmur, he suddenly became a miser. I couldn't understand it, until one of the players told me of the bonus promise.

Now that he would lose the extra money made a had pitcher out of him at a time when his services were most needed by his club. Knock number one for the bonus system.

A certain infielder, promised $500 extra if he hit .300, reached that figure with two games still to be played. He reported sick the next day, and missed the last two games. The bonus caused him to place money above team spirit. Knock number two for the bonus system.—B. E.

LOWELL PLAYED AT 50-50 CLIP LAST WEEK

Lowell won two of its four games last week, a fair record when it is considered that all games were with first division teams.

On last Monday night Lowell defeated New Bedford here in a whirlwind game. On Wednesday night the locals went to Salem and lost out in a closely fought game. On Friday night the Providence Gold Bugs made their season debut here, and Lowell triumphed in one of the best games of the season by the score of 2 to 1. On Saturday night Lowell went to New Bedford for the second clash of the week with the Whalers, and met defeat by a narrow margin.

This week the team expects to gain some ground in the race, and will enter tonight's game against Woonsocket determined to get away to a good start.

The withdrawal of the Portland team, announced in another column, was not unexpected. The jump from the Maine city proved very expensive, and considerable time was lost in traveling back and forth. With Fall River replacing the Portland club, the circuit is more compact and it will mean a much better schedule.

New Bedford will also profit by Fall River's return to the league. These cities, like Lowell and Lawrence, are bitter rivals, and games between the two clubs always attract banner crowds.

The shifting of players as a result of the transfer is expected to help considerably. Barney Doherty, who is the "property" of the Portland club, but up to date has not reported, will go to Lawrence to replace Fole at halfback. Foley is a resident of Fall River and he was about to quit the Lawrence team, as he has a good position in his home city. His transfer to the Fall River club will enable him to hold his position and also play with the Bob Hart and "Doc" Harold going to Woonsocket, this club is expected to show considerable improvement.

Billy Evans Explains Why Babe Wins in Ruth-Landis Scrap

JUDGE K. M. LANDIS

BY BILLY EVANS.
(Copyright, 1921, The Lowell Sun.)
"Babe" Ruth does not confine his home-run hitting to mere baseball. The Sultan of Swat packs a punch in other activities.

I have in mind Ruth's recent skirmish with "His Honor," Judge Landis, doing the picking. Technically "Babe" lost the decision to the judge. However, he scored a moral victory for a principle, that is sure to work to the advantage of the ball player.

At the close of the World Series Judge Landis, doing the hurling for the magnates served the following assortment of mixed English for the "Babe's" consideration.

"Both teams that contest in the World Series are required to abstain immediately after its close, and the members thereof are forbidden to participate as individuals or as a team in exhibition games during the year in which the world championship was decided."

If you were a great ball player like Babe Ruth, possessing unusual ability as a batsman, that rule wouldn't make much of a difference to you. But the clause you have the reason for the recent difference of opinion between Judge Landis on the side of the magnates and "Babe" Ruth for the ball player.

Offered $40,000.
Ruth received about $3200 for his losing share of the World Series. If the Yankees had failed to win the American league pennant, Ruth would have received $10,000 for playing 25 exhibition games at the close of the American league season. There was nothing of the gamble about the proposition. The money was to be placed to Ruth's credit in a bank before the start of the tour.

When the Yankees won the right to play in the series, the offer still held good as far as the promoters were concerned, but the rules of baseball said nothing about the subject of exhibition games. From the playing standpoint, he resented the object of the rule, which would have taken the same attitude, with a $37,000 loss staring him in the face. He decided to test the clause forbidding a World Series player to leave-stern.

Yanks Offer Bonus
New York club, realizing Ruth's enormous value to the club and the American league, offered him a bonus of $25,000. I understand, to cancel out his loss of $37,000. The clause with Ruth and he turned down the offer. Ruth had no grievance against Judge Landis for his refusal to sanction the tour, but which the judge was compelled to enforce.

Ruth called off his exhibition tour after playing only four of the scheduled games. At first it might appear that the "Babe" was "kicked" by the judge. As a matter of fact Ruth accomplished the very thing he set out to do. He secured world-wide publicity of a manifestly unfair rule. I am positive Judge Landis entertains that opinion. It is almost certain that the rule will be changed. However, it would probably have continued to exist had not Ruth had the courage of his convictions.

Origin of Rule
The rule was inspired in 1910 because of the sorry showing made by the Philadelphia Athletics in Cuba. After having won the world championship, what was admitted to be one of the greatest teams in the history of the game, the Athletics were beaten in six out of 10 games by the Cuban team. The Athletics did not go to Cuba until seven weeks after the close of the season and were in poor physical condition.

The rule was adopted at the time it was a decided reflection on the world series to have the winners trimmed in such a decisive manner. However, to save the legislation against barnstorming.

It is apparent why the magnates do not desire a world champion team to barnstorm. They are absolutely certain that whatever is admitted to be a world champion team is hardly fair. The test case made by Ruth is sure to bear fruit.

Has Piled Up 83 Points On the Gridiron This Season—Robertson Second

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 14.—After acquiring a one point lead in the first period Saturday, Lowell lost the combination and the Whalers laced through a sequence of four goals. It was a fine game, with only one foul called, that by Dufresne. Alexander and Davies never worked harder, but their efforts counted for nothing after the first period onslaught. The lineup:

LOWELL: Dugan, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne.

NEW BEDFORD: Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne, Duffresne.

LOWELL HIGH PLAYS FITCHBURG SATURDAY

The Lowell high football team has two remaining games on its schedule and every effort is being made to win them. The games yet to be played are the games with Fitchburg at Fitchburg on Saturday and the big game with Lawrence on Thanksgiving Day at Spaulding park. Whether or not the local team defeats the strong Fitchburg team does not matter to Coach Eddie Cawley and he is anxious to win from Lawrence in the annual game on Thanksgiving.

The game last Friday showed that the Lowell team could and would fight. In the first minute of play even though beaten, the Lowell high team was defeated but it went down fighting. Every man on the team fought as hard as he knew how and in this spirit that was one of the features of the game to Coach Cawley. The preliminary season is now over and the final two weeks of drill begin today in preparation for the Lawrence game. The football season at Lowell high is always considered a success if a victory over Lawrence is registered. The entire Lowell squad is now on its toes eager to continue the work of last year's team.

Although the Fitchburg team is admittedly strong the Lowell team expects to give it a hard fight. Fitchburg defeated B.C. High last Saturday 12-6 and Lowell in the early part of the year with a team made up mostly of substitutes won 12-0.

One of the redeeming features of the game Friday was the play of the Lowell ends Gleason and Condon. The speedy Condon could do practically no end running around the two men. Gleason also started on down the field work. He was always under Condon's punts and nailed the man in his tracks. A fine punt was the flashy Bunney Shea of Fitchburg no end of trouble in this Saturday's game.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The Butters 2nd football team would like to hear from any 11-11-11 team in the city. Butters, St. Patrick's School, preferred. Send all challenges through the manager or phone Captain Sullivan, 457-W any evening between 5 and 6 o'clock.

The Glenmore defeated the St. Columba's in one of the hardest fought games of the season Sunday afternoon on the Textile campus. The line plunging and forward passing of Leo Daly, former high school star, was the feature of the game. The defensive play of Jim Graham and Henry Mahoney also deserves mention.

Sporting Editor of The Lowell Sun.

We noted in Friday night's issue of The Sun a challenge stating that the Mohawks would like to play the O.M.I. Cadets. Now if the manager of the Mohawks would meet me at the corner of Market and Lincoln streets at 11 o'clock, we could make arrangements for a game. Thanking you for your trouble, I remain, ED. MAHONEY.

O.M.I. Cadet Thirds.

The Glenmore's beat the St. Columba's Junior Holy Name team, 6 to 0. The Glenmore scored the touchdown in the first period. The defensive play of Jim Graham and Henry Mahoney also deserves mention.

The Butler A.A. 2nd football team defeated the Wanderers Sunday on the old Fair grounds by the score of 3 to 0. They say that we would not finish the game. This is not true, once in the first place it was agreed upon by both captains to play until the Indian game started, and the team the Butlers, claim the championship of the 115 pound class, as the Wanderers claimed to defend. The defensive play of the Wanderers should take their defeat like sports without any further dispute. Any teams in the 115 pound class desiring games may call Captain George Sullivan, 457-W. Yours in clean sport.

THE BUTLER A. A. SECONDS.

The Oak Leaves defeated the Imperial A.A. of Gloucester Sunday by a score of 7 to 1. Lynch and Irwin starred for the Oak Leaves.

Holds Five Walking Titles

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—William Plant, veteran pedestrian, who yesterday set a new American record of 2:02:57 3-5 in winning the Metropolitan A.A.U. 15 miles championship, now holds five walking titles. Besides the 15 mile championship, plant is both Metropolitan and national champion at three and seven miles.

Yale Favorite Against Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 14.—Should Harvard triumph over Yale on the gridiron at the Stadium Saturday, precedent in "big three" football history will be broken. The triangular series has never resulted in a triple tie, such as would be the case were Harvard, already beaten by Princeton, which in turn was defeated by Yale, become victor in the final game. The statistics which show the unbroken rule of no tie, show also that a crimson eleven has never defeated Yale after losing to Princeton, and that no Yale team which went into its last match undefeated for the season, as will be the case Saturday, has been beaten by Harvard.

POLO LEAGUE SHAKEUP

Portland to Quit—Fall River to be Admitted—Players Traded

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 14.—At a meeting of the American roller polo league at the Crown hotel here yesterday, the Portland club handed in its resignation to take effect next Saturday night, the team completing the current week. The season given for leaving the league was the high cost of transportation. It was stated that at the present time it costs the Portland club about $200 a week for transportation alone.

In the disposition of the players, Bob Hart and Harold will go to Woonsocket and Barney Doherty will go to the Lawrence club. The latter player will probably report some time this week.

To fill the vacancy caused by the leaving of the Portland club, Fall River was admitted to the league and will play its first game a week from Monday night. The Fall River team will be made up of the following players: Red Williams of Woonsocket; Earl Pierce, a brother of Pierce of Providence; Dick Brown, now playing with Woonsocket; Paddy Foley of the Lawrence team; and Heffner, Portland's goal tender.

St. Aubin and Jim Cameron of the Portland team will be without work for the present.

MASS. MILL TEAM WINS AT SOCCER

In a fast and exciting game the Arlington mills team of Lawrence was defeated by the Massachusetts mills soccer team at Bunting park Saturday afternoon.

In the early stages of the game the Lawrence team had things pretty much their own way, although they failed to push across a score. The Massachusetts mills team, however, found itself as the game advanced and came on strong in the latter stages of the play.

Although the game was bitterly fought in the second period, no more scores were registered. The Massachusetts mills team was strengthened by the presence of Wallace, formerly of the Ameskeag team, whose play was as good as expected. Both in attack and in defense the Massachusetts mills team outgeneraled their opponents. The lineup, score and summary:

O.M.I. CADETS DEFEAT PONIES

Yesterday afternoon before a gathering of more than two thousand enthusiastic football fans the Cadets carried the honors home from Lakeview avenue by defeating the Ponies on their home grounds by the score of 21 to 0.

The Belvidere boys outplayed their opponents at every instant. The first score of the game came when Johnnie O'Connor caught a long forward pass and raced 40 yards for a touchdown.

In the third period Jimmie Curran made an excellent catch of another forward pass and sidestepped through the whole Pony team for the second touchdown. The third game after a series of line plungers with Eddie Twomey carrying the ball for the Cadets, their last touchdown. Johnnie O'Connor kicked the three goals after touchdown. Final score, 21 to 0. Referee—Leo Heathcock. Umpire—Pinky Berkinhead. Head linesman—George Hammarley. Linesmen—Tom Twomey, Joe Kabrall. Time—Four 15-minute periods.

TEXTILE ENDS SEASON WITH 35 TO 0 VICTORY

Playing its last game of the present season before a home crowd the Lowell Textile gridironers plied a 35 to 0 defeat on the 8d yard team from the Massachusetts Agricultural school on the local campus Saturday afternoon.

The visitors were outweighed by the local players, but the game, although the score would indicate it was one-sided, was an interesting one to watch, the "Aggie" combination struggling on several occasions to cross the Lowell goal line. However, if the first team of Textile had been left intact towards the end of the game the score would undoubtedly have been larger. Coach Beckett, the second half decided to give some of his second string players a chance and put on the field a team mainly made up of substitute men. They held their own with the aggressive Aggie players, preventing, in the final

FORMER LOWELL MAN

Frederick R. Martin Speaks
For A. P. at Reception to
Jap Delegates

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (by the Associated Press)—Secretary Hughes' pronouncements at the inaugural session of the armament conference "have clarified" the situation, Admiral Baron Kato declared at a reception given last night at the Shoreham by Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador. The reception was arranged to present journalists who are reporting the proceedings of conference to the Japanese plenipotentiaries and had been postponed until last night on account of the assassination of Premier Hara. A number of distinguished Americans, not of the journalistic profession, also were present.

Baron Shidehara introduced Admiral Kato and Prince Tokugawa and then called upon Frederick R. Martin, general manager of the Associated Press, a former Lowell man, to respond as "the representative of American journalists."

Admiral Kato pointed out that up to the present Japan has had fears which have caused her to continue naval construction, but with fears on both sides obliterated, he was confident that an agreement, so far as Japan and the United States were concerned, could not fail to come.

Prince Tokugawa declared that if any one feared the failure of the conference before leaving Japan that fear had been dispelled since arriving in the United States.

Mr. Martin responding, declared that the press was "a powerful factor" in the conference, since its function was "to tell the waiting world what you do here, who leads, who follows, and the results." The "regulars" of the fourth estate, Mr. Martin said, who measured their service "not" by the column but by the year, pledged the conference their best efforts so that the world might profit by the deliberations here.

—"Diapepsin"

"Pape's Diapepsin" "really does" put bad stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that's just what makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and cruetate sour, undigested food and acid, head is dizzy and aches remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous—and the joy in its harmlessness. A large sixty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin is worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It's the most efficient antacid and stomach regulator in the world—adv.

WOOD ALCOHOL CAUSES
3 DEATHS IN 24 HOURS

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 14.—Three deaths from wood alcohol poisoning have occurred in this city within the last 24 hours. Saturday night J. W. Fay, 40, of Lynn, Mass., a barber, was found dead in his room in Free street, a medical examiner pronouncing death due to drinking the alcohol. James Tracy, 30, of Swampscott, Mass., Fay's room mate, told the police that he warned Fay against drinking any more of the stuff but late yesterday afternoon Tracy was taken from the same house ill from wood alcohol poisoning and died soon after he reached the hospital. In the morning Frank A. Latham of this city was picked up in Monument square by the police and rushed to the hospital, where he died.

WILL HELP TO RAISE FUND FOR RADCLIFFE

The Radcliffe Alumnae of Lowell have organized to help their college raise the large endowment fund that is needed for instruction, new buildings and upkeep. The chairman is

Miss Frances Materson, assisted by the following committee: Miss Rachel Woolworth, Mrs. Cyrus Woodman, Mrs. Helen Cullerley, Miss Anna McCarron, Miss Blanche Cheney, Miss Louise Jenkinson, Mrs. William Liddell, Miss Merton Miller, Miss Charlotte Murkland, Mrs. Benjamin Pouzner, Miss Mary Bred.

December third, at the Colonial theatre, the Harvard Dramatic club will again give a performance for the benefit of the fund. This is the first appearance of this club in Lowell.

Radcliffe was founded to give Harvard instruction to women. From the opening of the college in 1875 with a group of 27 young women meeting in Appleton Way, Cambridge, her purpose has been undeviating—to give the students the best education attainable. With the generous co-operation of the President and Fellows of Harvard college, instruction in Radcliffe is given entirely by members of the Harvard teaching force; a large number of even the elementary courses are conducted by full professors. Radcliffe students have thus always had an opportunity to work under some of the greatest scholars of the country. With a small endowment Radcliffe has been enabled to give her students unparalleled opportunities. But this condition has been owing to the devoted interest of the Harvard faculty. The time has come when Radcliffe can no longer in self-respect impose upon their generosity; she must give them a recompense more nearly adequate. Moreover, with the tutorial system, whereby instructors are giving more time to individual students—a system of endless possibilities which Radcliffe alone among the women's colleges is employing—there is an added expense. If Radcliffe is to hold the position which she has had in the past, an increased endowment is imperative.

FIRE ALARMS
The alarm from box 7 at 7:54 o'clock last night was for a slight automobile fire at Pawtucketville square. At 1:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a telephone alarm was sent in for a slight blaze in the bakeshop at the corner of Allen and Moody streets. At 6:57 o'clock yesterday morning a telephone alarm was sent in for what was believed to be a fire at 98 Fenwick street, but when the firemen reached the premises they failed to find any blaze. The automatic alarm at the U. S. Bobbin shop in Rogers street accidentally went off at 2:58 o'clock yesterday morning, giving the firemen a needless run to the premises.

GENERAL GUINNEY COUNCIL

A meeting of General Guiney council was held Sunday afternoon, Nov. 12, in the Guild hall. It was called to order by President Mullio at 3:30 o'clock. Communications were received and accepted by the council. A committee of five was appointed to accompany the president to the meeting in Boston. There will be a dance under the auspices of the council, held in Old Fellows' hall Wednesday evening, Nov. 16. It is hoped that this dance will be well attended. It was voted that the meetings be held on the second and fourth Sunday afternoons of every month instead of on Thursday evening. There being no other business, the meeting adjourned to meet Sunday afternoon, Nov. 27, at 3:30 o'clock.

OFFICE BUILDING AND HOME OF FAIRBURN'S MARKET

Rapid Growth of Fairburn Business
in Merrimack Square

Runels Building, Now Known as the Fairburn Building,
Has Undergone Extensive Alterations and is Now
Lowell's Latest Office Building

Lowell's long list of up-to-date office buildings was increased today by the formal opening of the thoroughly renovated and reconstructed four-story structure in the heart of the Merrimack square business district, formerly known as the Runels building and now proudly bearing the name of one of the city's foremost mercantile establishments—Fairburn.

Here is a practically new office building, in the center of the city, equipped with every modern improvement for the comfort of occupants. The four stories contain 30 modern, well-lighted offices, and "Service" has been chosen for the Fairburn motto.

It is an ideal location in every way, as customers of Fairburn's markets already know. Many of the new offices in the renovated building have been leased by permanent parties. The building is sanitary, well heated and ventilated, and "modern" in every part of it from the ground floor entrance to fireproof roofing. In fact, fireproof materials enter very largely into the work of reconstruction.

"Fairburn's market—on the Square!" An old familiar name—and not so old, either—with a business title and meritorious appellation for many years popular as a truthful slogan and sure drawing card for thousands of pure food shoppers in Lowell and suburban territory. The advancing years have failed to affect the vigorous quality of this well known concern's splendid constitution though, strictly speaking, Fairburn's is not at all old in comparison with some business organizations who can add a larger number of years to their incalculable life index cards.

Today the Fairburn market is reaping the reward of energetic management, conscientious service and constant effort to meet the demands of an exacting purchasing public by providing only high class foodstuffs at the lowest possible prices consistent with good management, coupled with an earnest desire, first, last and all the

The remarkable growth of this Lowell institution—peculiarly Lowell's in every sense of the word—has aroused the admiration of all who have an affectionate interest in ambitious local business concerns. Springing from a mercantile establishment of small area in the square, under the splendid management of that able and far-seeing marketman, the late George Fairburn, the Fairburn of today, with its spacious quarters, "L" shaped, and with commodious entrances on both Merrimack and Bridge streets, is a monument to rare business ability, crowned with success honestly earned and fully supported by the public.

In the earlier years, back in 1892, Fairburn's was located at one time on East Merrimack street. Then came a step forward, when quarters were engaged about where the Page establishment is today. The store was conducted here with continuing success, meeting the increasing demands of more and more customers, until arrangements were made to enter part of the present quarters. Again the store was moved into temporary quarters on East Merrimack street early in 1913, while the better location was being made ready.

In 1914, George Fairburn, founder of this great business, passed away, leaving the prosperous market and its increasing clientele of customers in the hands of his family. A corporation was formed in 1915, the members being George C. Fairburn, manager; Mrs. Annie Fairburn Collins and Mrs. Florence Jordan. It was known as "Fairburn's Market, Inc."

The following year the market proprietors acquired another addition for its quarters, which were fast becoming too small to meet the demands of the purchasing public. In 1918 the store of Grocer F. D. Munn was bought outright on Bridge street, thus giving the Fairburns the well known "L" arrangement that so many customers appreciate today for its handy shopping facilities. With entrances on both Bridge and Merrimack streets, and ample room for quick passage through all of the aisles around the attractive food shopping counters, this store is today splendidly equipped to meet all trade demands for some time to come.

In 1919 arrangements were made to purchase the large restaurant owned by Arthur Fox at 10 Bridge street, and today this popular refreshment resort is being conducted by the Fairburn corporation with a large number of regular and transient customers.

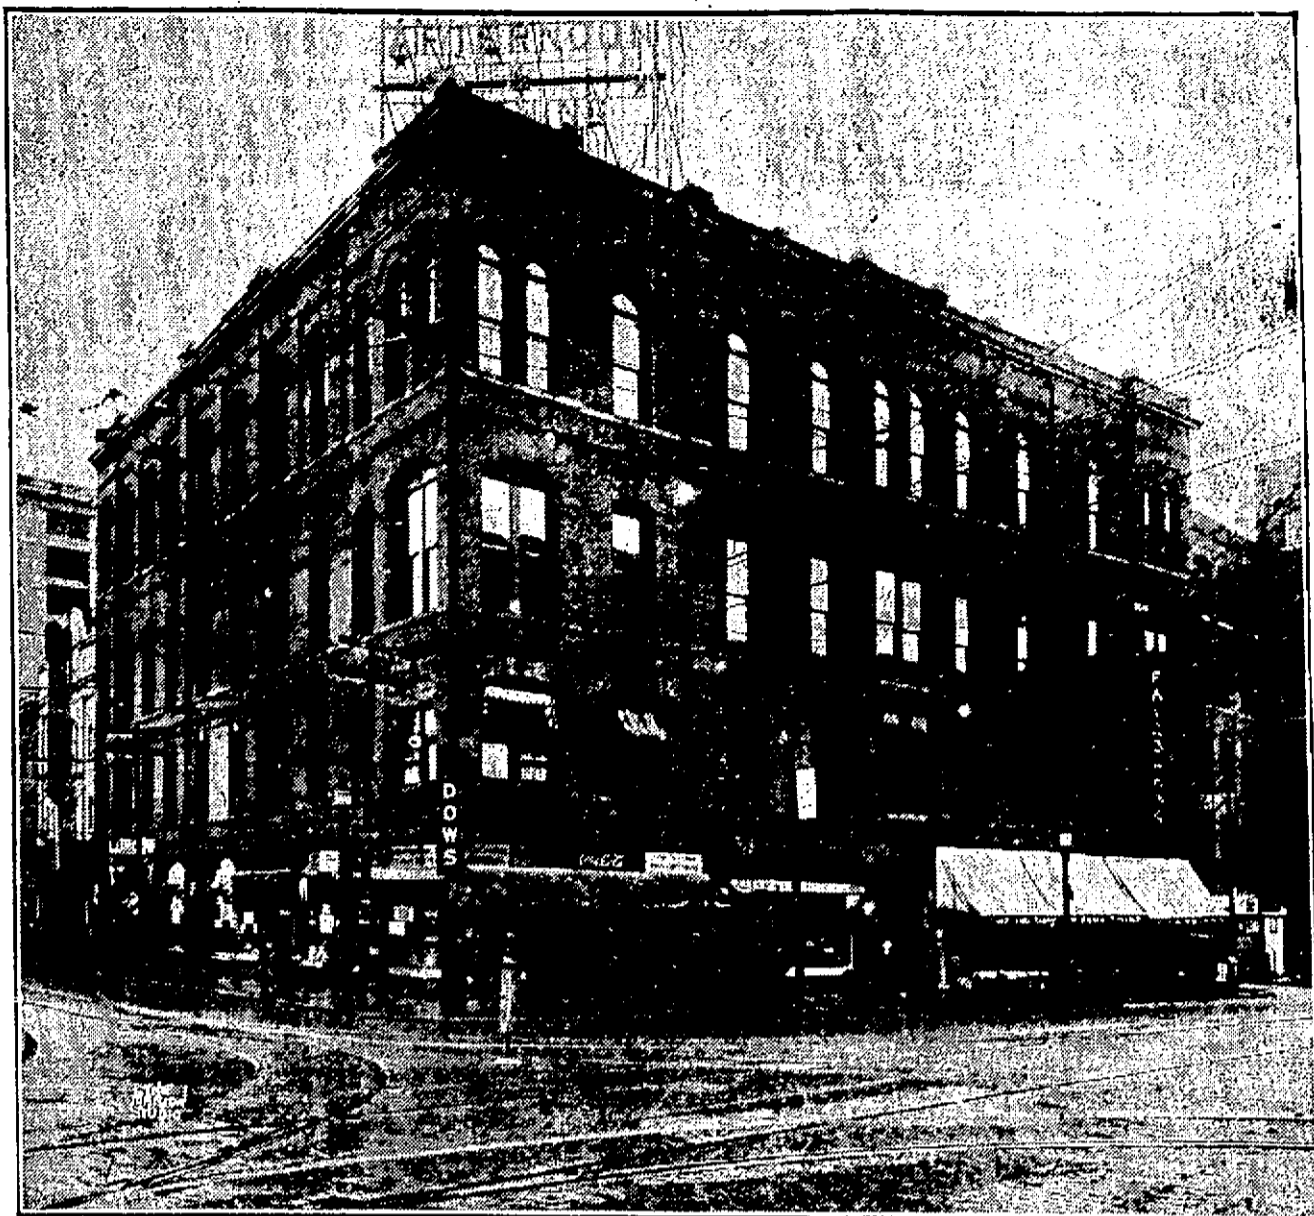

Came the year 1921, when, on Feb. 21, the Fairburns decided upon the purchase of the Runels building, the four-story structure on the corner of the square where the two food stores are located. Extensive alterations were started promptly, the Fairburns demanding an up-to-date office building completely equipped with every modern facility for the comfort of tenants. Today the work of reconstruction is practically completed, and Lowell has a brand new office building and one it can be proud of.

When the Fairburns bought the entire building, there were two halls on the third floor and two on the upper one. These have been made over into large offices, and now the building has 30 well lighted office quarters, many of them leased quickly by waiting tenants.

The building has many novel equipments for the comfort of its occupants. The main entrance has been enlarged and the hallway has a tile "dado" flooring of neat design. The walls are lined with small tiles part way up the sides. There are numerous electric lights. The entrance to the new elevator is wide and ample for all who use the building.

The main stairway is a marvel of beauty, being of expensive marble of beautiful color. The stairs rail of marble is supported by several dozen hand-carved marble posts, each of different design.

The new electric elevator is to run each day from 7.30 a. m. until 10 p. m., with the exception of Sundays, when the hours will be from 7.30 until 6. The electric lighting arrangements are adequate in every way, the latest improvements for lighting each hall and room being installed.

The street doors are of rich cherry, with wide strips of polished brass plating to protect them from the buffets of pedestrians and ample in structure to withstand hard usage.

The offices are handsomely equipped with every fitting to be found in modern office buildings. The walls are of buff color. Each window in the building is fitted with metal weather strips. The doors hold frames of special malleable glass which reflects the light but does not show shadows.

Hot and cold water piping is of the very best material and design. There are numerous closets, the wire "racks," and also an extra feed wire installed for emergency service requirements.

A feature that will be appreciated by tenants of the new office building is a cutter mail chute running from the top floor to the lower hall, where a bronze letter collection box has been installed.

The hallway on the first floor contains a huge directory giving the names and occupations of each office lessee. Another feature of value to strangers will be found in the hall directories on the wall of each floor, listing the names of the occupants of that floor only.

Visitors to Lowell will have no trouble locating the new Fairburn building. On the large "top step" just before you push back the swinging doors and enter the lower hall to take the electric elevator, you can read the name, set in brick-red letters in the tile flooring.

"Fairburn Building." The new quarters merit the inspection of every citizen who has any pride in Lowell's progress as exemplified so profoundly by this great market organization that is today a living, vigorous monument to its founder, George Fairburn.

CONTRACTORS ON BUILDING

The general contractor was the T. W. Johnson Co., of Andover street, who had complete charge of renovating and making the Fairburn building into a handsome block and ideal trading center.

The sub-contractors were the F. S. Payne Co., who installed the modern and up-to-date electric elevator, and Rice & Co., Inc., of Mt. Vernon street, who furnished the iron work and elevator fronts.

The painting and decorating was done by the Lowell Wall Paper Co., of Appleton street, under the direction of Chester E. Chase.

The beautiful entrance and stairway of tile and marble is the work of John J. Dwyer, of the Boston firm of the same name.

The shades for every window in the building were furnished through the Robertson Co., of Prescott street, who have equipped many large buildings with similar goods and office furniture.

The Hobson & Lawler Co., of Middle street installed the heating apparatus, putting in a brand new steam-heating plant and doing all the piping.

The Goodwin Screen & Window Co. equipped the entire building with weather strips of modern design.

Prominent Occupants

In splendid offices on the fourth floor is located John J. Pickman, one of the oldest and best known attorneys in Lowell. He was formerly located in the Hildreth building.

The firm of John J. and Fred S. Harvey also occupies a large and attractive suite with John J. Pickman and Richard Brabrook Walsh as associates. Each has easy access to all offices through room No. 410.

The library in the Harvey firm is one of the largest and most complete in Massachusetts. Close to the offices of the Harvey firm are those of John T. Masterson and those of Maurice Barlosky.

Mr. Masterson is a lawyer long established and Mr. Barlosky has just recently opened his office after successfully passing examinations for the bar a short time ago.

Philip J. Gallon, one of the most successful real estate and insurance men in Lowell, has a splendidly equipped suite of offices on the fourth floor, where also are located the offices of the F. S. Payne company, elevator builders, who equipped the Fairburn building with the latest thing in passenger lifts.

Edward J. Donnelly, member of the school committee and a real estate dealer, has excellent offices on this floor. He represents the Massachusetts Bonding Co.

The laboratory of the Acme Dental works is also located on the fourth floor.

On the third floor, the Nashoba Constructing Co., general contractors, and the firm of Dwyer & Slowe have adjoining offices. George Legrand is president of the Nashoba company, which has offices in numerous leading cities. John J. Dwyer, the assessor, and Charles Slowe compose the firm of Dwyer & Slowe, real estate and insurance.

In one corner of the third floor office section are the quarters of James A. Sheehan, one of the younger real estate and insurance men, who has made a fine reputation as one of the best salesmen in Lowell.

The office of the John Hancock Life Insurance company, Lowell branch, occupies all of the third floor office space on the bridge street side of the building. All departments of this company are under the excellent supervision of Supt. George H. Spillane.

On the right of the stairway is located the office of the National Cash Register company, C. D. A. Grasse being resident manager.

The Marion Studio and the Robert Wood Engraving company have very large and highly attractive quarters on this floor, which brings two popular Lowell concerns under one roof and management. The studio has been decorated under the direction of Chester Chase, who claims that no other studio in New England is more attractive.

The second floor is given more practically to professional people, prominent among whom are Dr. J. J. Datura, physician, and Dr. John F. Golden, dentist, and the combined offices of Drs. Masse and Blanchard, dentists.

The corner store on Bridge and Merrimack streets is occupied by A. W. Dows Drug Store. The Dows name has been connected locally with the drug business for 75 years.

MRS. GOULD DROPS DEAD
ON GOLF LINKS

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 14.—Mrs. George Jay Gould, wife of the capitalist, dropped dead yesterday while playing golf with her husband on the private links at Georgiantown, their country home.

She had just finished a drive at the fifth tee and with her husband was watching the flight of the ball when she collapsed without uttering a word. Mr. Gould turned to her and was astonished to see her lying across the tee. Thinking his wife merely had stumbled, Mr. Gould hastened to assist her to her feet, but when she failed to speak to him he became alarmed and sent the caddy for physicians.

Drs. George W. Lawrence and Irwin R. Hanco reached the links quickly. A brief examination convinced them that Mrs. Gould was dead and that heart disease had been the cause.

Mrs. Gould appeared to be in excellent health when she walked to the links with her husband a few minutes before noon. She showed no traces of exhaustion and chatted with her husband as they progressed to the fifth hole. Apparently Mrs. Gould had over-exerted herself and had made no mention of it to Mr. Gould.

Mr. and Mrs. Gould attended services yesterday morning in All Saints Memorial church and on their return to Georgiantown dressed for the golf links.

News of their mother's death was sent immediately to the seven children, five of whom were in New York. The other two, Lady Decies, formerly Helen Vivian Gould, is in London, and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, formerly Marie Gould, lives in Philadelphia. A cable message was sent to Lady Decies. Mrs. Drexel reached Georgiantown in the afternoon as did the other children, Mrs. Edith C. Wainwright, Mrs. Gloria Gould and Kingston, George and Jay.

Went Home on Stage
NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The body of Mrs. George Jay Gould, formerly Edith Maughan Kingston of Brooklyn, who died suddenly of heart disease yesterday while playing golf with her husband at their country estate in Lakewood, N. J., was brought to the Gould home here today.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The beautiful oratorio, "The Prodigal Son," was presented before a large congregation in the First Baptist church by the members of the choir and chorus last evening. The soloists were Mr. Reid, bass, and Mrs. H. J. Large, soprano; Mrs. F. N. Stokes, contralto; Albert Guerin, tenor. Wilfred Kershaw was at the organ. The oratorio was given under the able direction of Warren T. Reid. At the conclusion of the singing Pastor Babcock expressed the appreciation of the congregation to the members of the choir and chorus. At present the pastor is treating in a series of sermons two important subjects, "Why I believe what I believe" is the topic for his morning sermon, while in the evening addresses, Dr. Babcock speaks on "Household Religion."

ELIOT UNION CHURCH

In his sermon at Eliot Union church last night, Dr. Tuttle pleaded for the cultivation of a taste for the fine things in life drawing a striking contrast between the "jazz" music now so popular and exquisite music. The speaker's talk was preceded by happy solos rendered by Mrs. Lucille Delcourt of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The ball went sailing in the air. It fell so early, they knew not where. But what the dickens did they care? The game was over!

ARMS CONGRESS DELEGATES BUSY

Hope to Agree Today On At Least a Tentative Program
of Procedure

Next General Session Tomorrow—Delegates Study
Hughes' Proposals

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—With the next general session of the conference on the limitation of armaments scheduled for tomorrow, heads of the various delegations hoped to agree today on at least a tentative program for procedure. For the purpose of arranging preliminary details, two important meetings were to be held during the day—one this morning to discuss the program for armament negotiations, the other this afternoon to shape up procedure for the forthcoming discussions of far eastern questions.

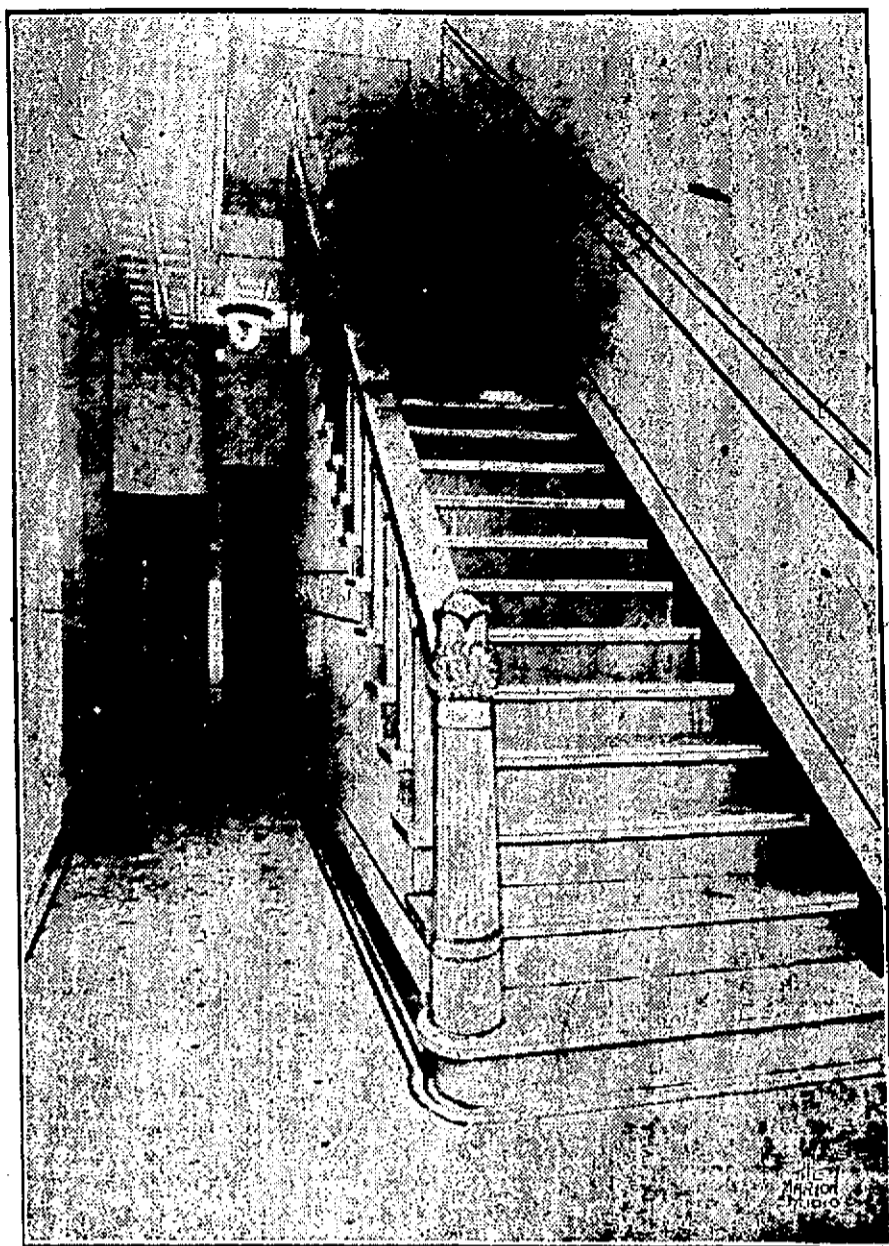

Heads of the American, British, French, Italian and Japanese delegations as members of the committee on program and procedure for limitation of armaments, were to be participants in the morning meeting while heads of the delegations of all nine nations represented at the conference are members of the committee on program and procedure for far-eastern questions, which meets in the afternoon.

A meeting of the American advisory committee of 21 also had been called for this afternoon at which Chairman Sutherland will announce the personnel of the six sub-committees already authorized to handle special subjects before the conference.

Preliminary to further conference sessions, delegates today continued their study of Secretary Hughes' proposal for the immediate reduction of the British and United States and Japanese fleets and for a 10-year naval holiday. While spokesmen for Great Britain and Japan continued to confine themselves to guarded comment, the American delegation was encouraged by the attitude of the representatives of the other two powers affected by the proposal, and were confident that there was at least no possibility of a flat rejection of the plan and that it would form the basis of whatever agreement is reached.

C. S. Makes Greatest Cut
Naval officers in discussing the proposal emphasized as an outstanding feature the fact that the United States would be left without battle cruisers, while Japan and Great Britain would each retain four of these ships, the newest addition to capital fighting craft. By suggesting such a program, it appears that the United States sought to convey concrete assurance of a peaceful purpose with which it has entered the conference as declared by President Harding in his opening address.

London Comment
LONDON, Nov. 14.—The American

plan for a 10-year naval holiday and the scrapping of all but a limited number of warships calls for much less sacrifice on the part of Great Britain than by the United States and Japan. In the view of the naval correspondent of the Daily Mail:

The proposed sacrifice, he says, would be a heavy one for Japan and the United States, but comparatively trifling for Great Britain, as the latter has not yet incurred any great outlay on the four new ships just ordered. The real question is whether Japan will be content to accept conditions which placed her navy in a position of permanent inferiority.

Other correspondents point out that Great Britain has already taken the lead in the reduction of naval armaments, her progressive scrapping of warships since the armistice having amounted up to last April to more than 500 vessels. Thus far little expert opinion, as distinct from editorial views, has been published here. All other news is subordinated to despatches describing the effect produced

In America and the attitude of the various delegates toward the American proposals. of President Harding and Mr. Hughes are fully reported, while other proceedings of the arms conference, was among the questions examined by today's feeling of the heads of delegations.

Real Duke To Show Movie Fans How An Aristocrat Acts

THE DUKE OF MANCHESTER. HE SAYS HE WILL SHOW THE MOVIE THAT NOBLES NEITHER LOOK NOR ACT LIKE IMBECILES AS THE SCREEN USUALLY PORTRAYS THEM.

BY JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The Duke of Manchester is really serious about his intentions of entering the movies to show the world, especially the American movie public, how a real aristocrat looks and acts.

This department's correspondent in London recently interviewed the Duke of Manchester on the subject.

"There is no mystery about my reasons for entering a photoplay career," said the duke. "There is no class in England so affected by conditions since the war than the old nobility."

"It is no longer possible to live on our estates with the present burden of taxation and the only way for us to make ends meet is to go into the labor market and compete with others for what is going."

"I was not trained for the life that now seems necessary. Movie acting is the only thing I am able to turn to for the living necessary to my position in life."

"Nowhere in the photoplay is there more room for improvement than in the portrayal of the life of the aristocrat. The tendency is to make the average lord look like an imbecile. There are none better qualified to show the aristocrats as they are than those who have been born in the purple themselves. I shall be glad to find a new career in the movie world if for no other reason than it will enable me to correct popular conceptions of how a duke behaves or how he looks."

The duke is negotiating with a leading American producer. He says he is asking a large salary to renounce his present life.

Cryptic remarks might be made about the duke choosing the movies as an easy field in which to turn up a fortune. Passing that, we consider his reaction on the movies.

It may be interesting to note that a real duke doesn't leave his spoon in his coffee cup as the dukes often do. A duke in the movies generally is toggled out with a sack across his waistcoat, a monocle, spats and a stove-pipe hat, even if he is taking an after-breakfast constitutional. Probably the Duke of Manchester will appear in golf togs or some such informal dress for informal occasions. Ideal dukes do that, you know.

And he may not wear a drooping coffee-strainer or a misplaced eyebrow for a mustache.

Further, the duke may appear as hero of a movie, a character of noble purpose, of serious intent. The Duke of Manchester is right when he says the movies make aristocrats appear as imbeciles.

However, the most interesting thing will be a comparison of the manners and ethics of a real aristocrat with the etiquette of the average screen player. The latter is often conspicuous by its absence.

Saw a big yellow and black butterfly at Fifth avenue and 42nd street the other day. If a movie director would show a butterfly on Fifth avenue at this time of year, or any other, he would be accused of nature faking.

C. Francis Jenkins, pioneer inventor in the movies, has developed a camera and a method of taking 1600 pictures a second, he says. If this is so, the movies will reveal to us things in continuous motion which the human eye cannot detect.

"All For a Woman" is a German "super production." A mob breaks down a door with axes. As the door is rent asunder the paper-mache of which it is made is exposed. The illusion of reality is lost for the audience immediately breathes the atmosphere of a movie studio instead of that of the revolutionary period of 1793 when wooden doors, stout ones, were quite the vogue.

Cuts and Flashes
Norma Talmadge is to film "The Duchess de Langeais" by Honore de Balzac.

Charles Bryant will direct "Nazimov," his wife, in "A Doll's House" and "Salome."

"The Man From Home" is being filmed in Rome, Naples, Sorrento, and Capri by George Fitzmaurice, James Kirkwood and Anna Q. Nilsson play the leading roles.

REASONABLE PRIDE

See how proudly he stands. So would you if you wore that little medal you see on his coat. He's Joseph Lowmyer, New York, oldest wearer of the Congressional medal, who represented the Civil War Veterans at the burial of America's unknown soldier.

TO TEST ACCURACY OF EINSTEIN THEORY

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Experiments perfected recently and by means of which it is hoped to test the accuracy of the Einstein theory, were described in a paper prepared by Prof. Albert A. Michelson of the University of Chicago to be read today before the National Academy of Science.

The apparatus developed by Prof. Michelson consists of a mechanism for the more accurate measurement of the velocity of light, which he says he hopes to have perfected by next summer so that the exact speed may be measured within two miles per second. As to the Einstein theory he said he did not know of any definite facts developed this summer at the Mount Wilson observatory in California, which either proved or disproved it. His experiments are not yet completed.

Aluminum HARD THICK SHEET Double Boiler
On or before Nov. 26th for ONLY

$1.98 (Regular price $3.35)

Another money-saving opportunity

—another opportunity to get a "Wear-Ever" utensil—one that is most popular and most useful—a cooking utensil that will give years and years of daily service in YOUR kitchen—one that will enable you to prove the wisdom of looking for the "Wear-Ever" trademark on the bottom of every cooking utensil that you buy.

And always remember that if a "Wear-Ever" utensil that costs $1.00 were made only slightly less thick and of metal a very little softer—a difference in hardness and thickness you could not tell by looking at the utensil nor by feeling it—that $1.00 "Wear-Ever" utensil could be sold to you for less than 70c—a fact worth remembering if you are tempted to buy aluminum utensils simply because they are cheap.

Armament Shares Are Affected

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Armament shares on the stock exchange today showed effects attributed to the proposals of Secretary of States Hughes at the armaments conference in Washington. The whole list of such shares was marked down in anticipation of selling, which, however, had not appeared in any force up to the noon hour.

Murder and Suicide Follow Quarrel

BOW, N. H., Nov. 14.—A murder and suicide, said by the police to have resulted from a quarrel, occurred here late last night. Raymond Garland, a farmhand, is alleged to have committed suicide after shooting and killing Giles Emerson of Bowdoin, Mass. Garland was employed on the farm of Harper Giles, an uncle of the murdered man. The police said jealousy was responsible for the shooting.

SALES BY E. F. SLATTERY, JR., Edward F. Slattery, Jr., Real Estate and Insurance, Strand building, reports the following sale made last week:

The sale of the property situated at 19-21 Central street, known as the Harrington hotel. The building, which is of brick construction, is five stories in height, containing twenty-five sleeping rooms, together with restaurant, grill room and lobby. The assessed valuation on land and buildings is $2418 square feet. The total area involved is 2418 square feet. The sale was made for Gordon T. Warner of Waterbury, Conn.; Cyril F. French and Ellen E. Dana of Pawtucket, Rhode Island; and the purchaser is John J. Hilly of this city, the well known tailor, who will immediately renovate the first floor, where he will continue his tailoring establishment. This sale was made in conjunction with the office of T. H. Elliott.

NELSONIAN CLUB

The Nelsonian club met last Thursday night at the home of Miss J. Owens on Broadway for the purpose of presenting and surprising Miss Esther Carr, who is soon to be the bride of Mr. Arthur Davis, with a gift. After Pres. J. Wrenn had made the presentation, solos were given by Mrs. Marquette and Mr. Aikens accompanied by feature of the entertainment was a mock marriage in which Mrs. Payette and Mr. Lester Dolher acted as bride and groom. Miss J. Owens and Mr. J. Podgorski acted as witnesses. Best man, Miss Margaret McKenney, and flower girl, Miss May Stone, acted as ring bearer. Mr. Ed. Podgorski took the part of minister. Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Wrenn, Sec. M. Stone, Mrs. Payette, Miss D. Webb, Miss L. McKenney, Miss D. Wolf and Miss D. Marchand. The party broke up at a seasonable hour, wishing the bride-to-be every happiness and thanking Mr. and Mrs. LeFebvre for their hospitality.

MAY CLOSE "COW PATH" ROAD WAY TO CANADA

Boston & Maine Wants to Acquire Old Acton "Short Line"

Railroad Men Say "Cow Path" Road Has Not Been Profitable

One of Middlesex county's oldest railroad lines—the "cow path" road as it has long been familiarly termed by railroad car-jerkers—known as the Nashua & Acton railroad, a one-track line running between Nashua and Concord Junction, may be closed to all traffic within a short time.

Railroad authorities controlling the old line that is now but little used for either passenger or freight traffic, are not talking about the matter,
but men familiar with Boston & Maine traffic conditions and employers who know the real condition of affairs on the old Nashua road, are prophecying that before long this once prosperous little one-track road will be closed to all traffic.

Lowell railroad men and stockholders in Boston & Maine securities believe today that the Boston & Maine railroad corporation, through its president, J. H. Hustis, has petitioned the legislature for the necessary mission that will permit it to acquire the old Acton "short line" and "unite or merge" the corporation with the petititioning road. The first official announcement that the Boston & Maine was planning to acquire the right, property and franchise of the Nashua & Acton line, appeared in a legislative "notice," appearing in a Boston evening newspaper Saturday.

The Sun is informed by railroad men familiar with traffic conditions on the old line that it has been unprofitable for years. In the charter of this little Nashua & Acton road there is a phrase placed there by old-time law makers when the road was first granted, which stipulates, briefly, that trains must be run on this road practically as long as man remains on the earth, although the phraseology is different. The franchise of the old line is the franchise of an old short line road in the state of Rhode Island, which reads:

"This road shall be maintained and run as long as water runs and grass grows."

Old time railroad men can remember when the Nashua & Acton road was a profitable little line. A great deal of freight was transported from southern New England points via Concord Junction and thence to Nashua, where it was forwarded to northern points and to Canada line connections. It was one of the best paying little roads anywhere. The road was run on a very profitable basis.
Conditions changed, however, when the Concord Junction transfer was relegated to the discard. Northern freight was routed straight through to Lowell from Boston and southern freight was routed via Concord Junction and Nashua via the "short haul" across lots via Concord Junction and Nashua was no longer popular, and gradually the road's traffic declined.

In former years there were three trains a day between Nashua and Acton, both ways. They were always well patronized. Traffic fell off heavily with the advance of motor traffic and transfer of freight from Concord Junction to Nashua and the efforts controlling the road sought to abandon all passenger traffic using the line for freight only.
But the old charter of the road would not permit cutting off passenger traffic at least one train in both directions must be run, daily, and the Boston & Maine railroad controlling the line as one of its subsidiaries, was compelled to maintain some kind of a passenger service and carry out its charter provisions.

Arrangements were finally made to attach a single passenger car to a freight train that left Nashua in the morning. Now the Concord Junction passenger service is run by the Boston & Maine railroad, returning at night.
Sometimes five passengers are carried.
Sometimes none. Night after night the "cow path" road is run, the train going through the sparsely settled country on the track of many curves, but with one or two passengers and very little freight, yet requiring a full train crew to keep the train moving and to keep the line in shape.
The petty railroad traffic that has been run for a year or two of standing joke among the farmers of the countryside where the road passes through.

The Nashua & Acton road is 24.3 miles long. Very little passenger traffic is ever carried on the line and freight traffic has been far from satisfactory for years. The road, starting from Concord Junction, has Acton, North Acton, East Littleton, Pine Ridge, West Littleton, East Groton, Dunstable, Otterton "Street," and Nashua union station.

For some time there has been no morning service on the line as in former years. A mixed train leaves Nashua about 3 o'clock each afternoon. Only one passenger car is attached. It arrives at Concord Junction about 4:45 on the return trip to Nashua at 6:10.

If the charter provisions can be changed by the legislature, it is probable, railroad men say, that the road will be relegated to the discard.
The passing of the old "short line" will be generally regretted by residents along the way, for most of the farmers in that sparsely settled section of old Middlesex used to set their watches by old Engine 18 or Nos. 9521 and 9522, as the trains were denoted on the timetable.

Gardner and Caderone Were Going to Join the British Army

Young Men Arrested in Manchester Arraigned in District Court Here

Lorenzo Gardner, 18 years old, of North Adams, and Anthony Caderone, a world war veteran, of Providence, told Judge Enright in district court this morning they were on route to Canada where they were to join the British army when arrested in Manchester, N. H., Saturday, for an alleged larceny committed in Lowell.
According to the story related by the police and the complainant, Samuel H.
Stanley, a N.Y., N. H. & H. railroad officer to the court, Stanley was sleeping on a bench in the local depot Friday night when his pistol valued at $22.50 was taken from under his coat.
When he woke up Stanley was told the two defendants, who had taken a 3 o'clock Saturday morning train for Manchester, had been lying on bench near him. Suspecting them of the larceny a message was conveyed to the Manchester police to arrest them. They were taken to Lowell yesterday and booked on charges of larceny.

Gardner pleaded guilty this morning, but Caderone offered a plea of not guilty and later on the stand cleared himself of the charge. The court ordered him dismissed but imposed a three months' suspended sentence to the house of correction on Gardner. Caderone testified they were on their way to Canada when they stopped in Lowell to see a friend.

As there were no trains till early Saturday morning the pair slept in the station. The witness stated he did not know the gun had been taken until Gardner on the train told him he had found a pistol. The latter said he picked it up from the floor near where Stanley was sleeping. He did not know it belonged to the plaintiff, he stated. Caderone produced army papers showing he had been in the service and intended to re-enlist. A tangle arose when the court called Gardner's attention to expenses of $7.40 which were to be paid by him. The defendant had no money, he said, while his companion had a little more than a dollar. Gardner stated he has been in the North Adams, but he doubted if he could pay the money as "she never liked me very much, the trouble is," he told the court. "The trouble is with you," the justice retorted.

He also has an aunt living somewhere in Boston, Lorenzo added, but just where he could locate her he did not know. Finally the court agreed that Gardner could send the expense money as soon as he earned it, which he agreed to do. How the pair is going to Canada without funds the court was at a loss to understand. The youths appeared highly determined to get there, regardless of means.

WAS BURIED WITH MILITARY HONORS

The remains of the late Philippe
Forge, a former member of the 3th Spruce Squadron, U.S.A., were this morning buried with full military honors. The funeral took place from the home of his parents, 135 Alken street at 9:30 o'clock and at 10 o'clock a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Jean Baptiste church by Rev. J. A. Nolin, O.M.I., assisted by Rev. Armand Baron, O.M.I., as deacon and Rev. Aurelien Mercil, O.M.I., as sub-deacon. The choir, under the direction of Joseph Paradis, who also presided at the organ, rendered the Gregorian chant, the solo being sung by Mr. Paradis, Dr. J. E. Nolin, Mr. X. Frenday and Etienne Bernier.
At the offertory Miss Anna Marie sang "Pie Jesu," and at the elevation Mrs. Marie Jacques rendered "O Marium Passionis." At communion "Miseremini Mei" was sung by George Herbert and at the close of the mass Mrs.
H. A. Archambault sang Faure's "Crucifixus."

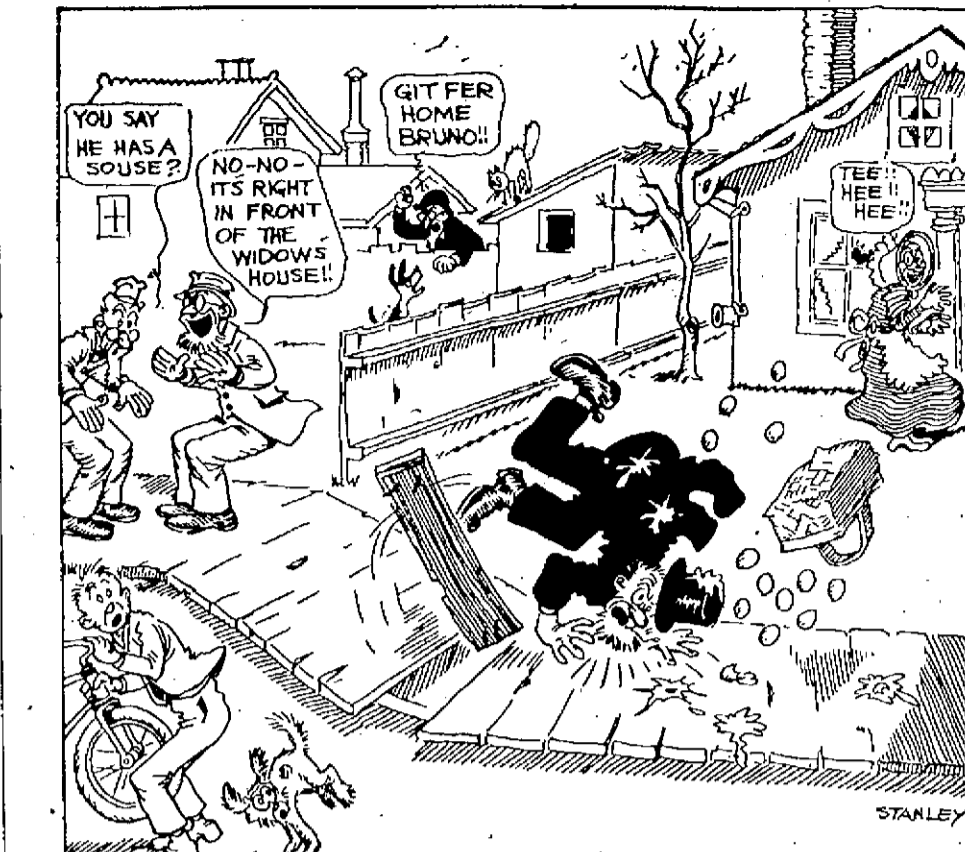

The bearers were the following:
ex-service men: Auguste Guillaud, Camille and Hervé Rolvers, Ernest Paquette, Emile Lenoix, Joseph A.
Gauthier. The firing squad was composed of the following headed by Ell
B. Hart: John J. Donovan, Anthony Joy, Edward H. Sullivan, Philip Falcon, J. L. Brassard, O. M. J. Three volunteers were in the firing squad and "taps" was blown by Eugene Lionel Renaud, while Bugler Alfred Levesseur rendered the echo. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Amide Archambault & Sons.

MANCHESTER MARTYRS' LOWELL LEGIONAIRES VACCINATING CANINES

Anniversary Observance By Irish National Brotherhood and Traynor Association

The anniversary of the Manchester martyrs was observed fittingly by a joint session of the Irish National Brotherhood and the Traynor association yesterday afternoon in their quarters in Middle street. The anniversary was taken as an occasion for memorial services for other martyrs of Ireland as well.

At the business meeting which preceded the memorial exercises several members were initiated and other business of a routine nature attended to. A memorial service for the Irish martyrs in the church of the Sacred Heart on Thanksgiving morning at 10 o'clock was announced. At this mass members of all Irish societies are invited to be present and to assemble in the Traynor Association's quarters in Middle street to march to the church.

As presiding officer for the afternoon's exercises, Stephen Flynn introduced Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan as the principal speaker. The history of Ireland's wrongs was given an eloquent recital and an ardent tribute was paid to the memories of the Manchester martyrs and other martyrs who have given their all for the cause in past generations.

An excellent reading by Dennis Brassill followed the address. Michael J. Sharkey spoke at length on the day's significance and the timeliness of the observance. Peter J. McKenna commented on the tenets bearing on the cause from the time of the Manchester martyrs to the present, saying that the period has changed, but the Irish ideal has remained steadfast.
Irishmen will never be satisfied until they secure freedom in full measure.

Many others contributed brief remarks in keeping with the occasion, including Frank McMahon, John Curran, William Collins, James O'Sullivan, John Hendricks, Philip Keon, Dennis Crowley, Eugene Queenan, and John Barrett. Songs were heard from James O'Sullivan, William Collins, Michael Dalton, Philip Keon, Mr. Mor-rises, Mr. Keefe and a recitation by George F. Brennan. The closing of the exercises came with the singing of "God Save Ireland" and "The Soldier's Song."

DEATHS

HAMILTON—Levi Hamilton died at his home, 21 Fourth street, yesterday.
He was 65 years 3 months and 12 days.
He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Etta Hamilton. The body was removed to the rooms of Undertaker George W. Healey.

Members of Local Post Participate in Foch Reception and Parade

A detachment of members of Lowell Post, 57, American Legion, left on the 12:45 train today to participate in the monster reception that is being accorded Marshal Foch in Boston this afternoon. Incidentally the Legionnaires will march in the parade in Boston's streets behind the colors of Lowell post. The local organization was highly complimented when three prominent members were picked to occupy honored positions in the line of march. State Historian John J.
Walsh is chief of staff to State Vice-Commander William Doyle, of the American Legion, while Stephen C.
Garrett, vice-commander of Lowell post, and George P. Toye, also an active member of the local contingent, are members of the staff of General Charles Cole, chief marshal of the parade. Cole is state commander-elect of the American Legion.
Adjutant Robert J. Rutledge was in charge of the Lowell detachment, the boys assembling at the station in uniform and boarding the train in a body.

FUNERALS

NEYLON—The funeral of Anna Ney-lon, who died at the home of her parents, 329 Central street, took place yesterday. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery. The body was removed to the rooms of Undertaker Geo. W. Healey.

DEANGELO—The funeral of Ribello DeAngelo took place Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of the deceased, 11 Right lane, Clinton, Mass., and was largely attended. The cortege proceeded to St.
John's church where at 3 o'clock a mass of requiem was sung by Rev.
James McMahon. The choir under the direction of Mrs. Frank McDonald rendered the Gregorian chant, the solo in the mass being sustained by Mrs.
M. J. Carney, Mrs. Lawrence Carney, and Miss Winifred O'Grady. The bearers were Dr. Charles M. Rouhana of Lowell, Dr. Thomas J. Kenney, and Joseph Ruane of Clinton, Thomas
J. Carney, William Walsh and William Riley of Boston. There was a profusion of spiritual and floral offerings.
The burial was in the family lot in St.
John's cemetery under the direction of Undertakers James E. O'Donnell & Sons.

FRIDETTE—The funeral of Joseph Fridette took place this morning from his home, 145 Grand street at 1:15 o'clock. The cortege proceeded to St. Patrick's church where at 2 o'clock a mass of requiem was sung by Rev.
Leon Lamotte, O.M.I. The choir was under the direction of the Rev. Frank McDonald. The Gregorian chant, the solo in the mass being sustained by Mrs. M. J. Carney, Mrs. Lawrence Carney,
and Miss Winifred O'Grady. The bear-

Arrangements Made to Vaccinate Lowell Dogs—Distemper Is Spreading

Have you had Rover vaccinated yet?
You had better get busy, then, and put a shot of the new prophylactic juice into Rover.

For the humane society announced today that Lowell canines are suffering from the well known distemper that starts in dog circles every year about this time, only reports received at society headquarters today say that the affliction is spreading faster than it has in others years, and something must be done at once if Lowell "house of man" are to remain on four feet.

Veterinary Surgeon William S. Ea-don, attached to humane society headquarters, announced this morning that arrangements have been made to vaccinate Lowell canines. A brand new anti-toxin is to be used to fight the disease. While owners of dogs are not compelled to have the work done, it is almost imperative, Dr. Eadon says, if owners of dogs want to keep their pets from getting the disease.

The vaccination process is simple.
Rover gets in the regular hypodermic way, a new vaccine being used that has proven ideal in fighting the distemper in other cities.

Dr. Eadon reports today that dozens of Lowell dogs are afflicted with the "fall and winter" malady. In an interview, he said:

"It is safe to say that fully 55 percent of the local animals down with the distemper will succumb to its ravages. It is a hard disease to fight.
Dogs, you know, are very neighborly.
They come around the streets, run their back down to stoop and have a regular trail around their neighborhood. They get the distemper in many ways. It can be caught right off the owner's clothes. It is very general heretofore just now."

"The symptoms can be readily noted.
The dog is restless, he feverishly coughs and loses appetite. Breathing is hard, the eyes and nose run continuously and the animal has abdominal trouble. All owners of canines would do well to have their dogs vaccinated at once. Arrangements have been made to explain to owners of the animals just what the distemper signs are and give any advice I may be able to give."

LOWELL CASE IN THE SUPREME COURT

City Solicitor William D. Regan was at the supreme judicial court in Boston today representing the city of Lowell in the case of City Treasurer
Frederic K. Lourie vs. Frank Hanchett for collection of taxes.

The taxes involved are personal property taxes assessed in 1916, amounting to $557.64. Mr. Hanchett claimed that he lived in Dunstable and had no legal residence in Lowell.
The case was taken to the superior court and a decision obtained in favor of the city. Mr. Hanchett filed exception and succeeded in having the case ordered to the supreme court.

60,000 GARMENT WORKERS STRIKE ASSOCIATION

Called Out In Protest Against Piecework System and Increase in Hours

All Efforts at Arbitration of Issues in New York Dispute Fail

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Sixty thousand garment workers were called out on strike this morning in protest against the piecework system and an increase from 41 to 49 hours a week which was to be put into effect today by their employers. There were many indications that the struggle might be a prolonged one.

Officers of the International Ladies Garment Workers' union met their representatives in the 3000 shops involved early this morning, and gave them direct instructions for the conduct of the strike.

All efforts at arbitration of the issues involved have failed. Secretary of Labor Davis, United States senators and State Industrial Commissioner Sayer, have ineffectually tried to conciliate employers and workers.

Union leaders declared last night that the workers' demands are in excellent shape. In preparation for a five months' struggle they said they would seek to raise a $3,000,000 fund for relief of the suffering and starving families. Officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and other unions have promised to aid the Garment Workers' union by contributions from their members, they said.

Lowell Stores to Be Represented at Fall Meeting and Banquet

Association Is Anxious to Increase Its Membership In This City

At least three of Lowell's greatest dry goods stores will be represented by managers at the fall meeting and banquet of the Massachusetts Retail Merchants' association, to be held at Young's hotel, Boston, tomorrow evening, at 6 o'clock.

The local members of the association are The Chaffoux company, the
A. G. Pollock company and the Bon Marche Dry Goods company. General Manager Louis E. Studley of the Chaffoux store is a director of the association and is also chairman of one of the most important committees—the legislative.

Director Studley told The Sun this morning that the association is very anxious to increase its membership in Lowell and vicinity. He hopes the newspapers will publish news of dry goods trade happenings, and conditions from time to time, and believes that every retail goods merchant in the city should join the organization.
Arrangements for the banquet were completed this morning. A reception will precede the dinner, and dress will be informal. A unique musical program will be furnished by Pietro Mordegita, piano accompanist; Miss Jane Golding, violinist and soprano; and Miss Christine Wisner, reader and pianist.

The speakers of the evening will be Attorney General J. Weston Allen, whose home will be "The Business Man's Relation to Public Service" and George W. Coleman, president and dean of Babson's institution, whose topic will be "The New Order of Business."

Director Studley informed The Sun that special attention is being called to the fact that all business women are eligible for membership and he would like to see more members from Lowell. Numerous association members are to take their wives to the Boston meeting.

The circular letter sent out by the officers announces that the association was formed "to foster the retail trades in Massachusetts and the interests and well-being of those engaged therein; to reform abuses relative thereto; to secure freedom from unjust and unlawful exactions; to diffuse information as to matters of interest to the retail trades; to procure, where desirable, information and certainty in the customs and usages of the retail trades; to promote greater co-operation among retail merchants; to foster the interchange of ideas and systems; to consider and concentrate opinions upon questions affecting the financial, commercial and other interests of its members; and to promote more friendly intercourse among persons engaged in the retail trade, and between them and those dealing with them."

Winifred Wetherbee is secretary of the Massachusetts Association, with headquarters in Room 205, No. 6 Beacon street, Boston.

LIQUOR CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT

With a charge of illegally keeping intoxicating liquor already pending against him in the superior court, Eustache Varannes, of Dunstable street, pleaded guilty to a new complaint of illegally selling liquor before Judge Enright in district court today. He was fined $150. Varannes, however, only came prepared to pay the fine in installments. He was released with the court's consent promised to pay the $50 balance within a week. Federal Officer Sheldon and Sergeant Winn late Saturday night succeeded in getting Varannes to sell them a half pint of moonshine for fifty cents.

The officers also arrested Michael Wojcik, of Spring street, Saturday night, alleged to have sold a pint of moonshine for $1.25.

In court today counsel for Michael entered a plea of not guilty and to allow the state analysts of the liquor to be tested. He asked that the case be continued until the analysts have made their report. According to the officers the fluid was effectively colored to make it look like honest-to-goodness whiskey.

SUDDEN DEATH TODAY OF MRS. LABRIE

Mrs. Amelia (Albert) Labrie, widow of the late Theodore Labrie, who for many years was sexton of St. Jean Baptiste church, died suddenly at her home, 419 Moody street, this forenoon. The body was later viewed by Medical Examiner T. B. Smith, who attributed death to natural causes.

Mrs. Labrie spent last evening at the home of her son, Eugene, and did not complain of being ill. This morning she arose at her usual hour and seemed to be in a happy mood when her children left for work. At about 10:30 o'clock, a neighbor, Mrs. Joseph Dinhols entered the Labrie flat and found the woman lying on the floor near the stove, life extinct.

Deceased, who was 65 years of age, had been a resident of this city for the past 37 years. She was well and favorably known in the district in which she resided, and the news of her sudden death will be a keen blow to her many friends. She was a member of the Third order of St. Francis and the Ancient society of St. Joseph's parish and is survived by a daughter, Miss Helen Labrie; three sons, Napoleon, Joseph and Eugene and eight grandchildren.

IMPORTANT FEATURE OF "BLUE SKY" ACT

The chamber of commerce today in a statement issued by Secretary Wilson, calls attention to one feature of the new "blue sky" act governing the sale of stock securities that local agents may profit thereby.

Under chapter 493 of the new laws governing the sales of securities and stock issues of all kinds, all salesmen must register, but the mere registration of an agency with the state authorities does not mean that the state may be misled by the registrant. For instance, registration shows only that the man is a broker. What he may be selling is not approved by the state by such registration. Six months' leave-y is given for registration.

To the Voters of Lowell

Intense love for my home and the city's welfare, its conservative and economical progress, gravely compromised at the present time, and the loyalty of my numerous friends and supporters, ARE THE ONLY MOTIVES that prompted my eleventh hour decision to be a candidate for mayor.

WITH the help of God and the advice of men of experience, ability and sound judgment, I trust to be able to improve conditions. I do not claim the panacea to cure all the ills affecting the city, but I WILL DO THE VERY BEST I CAN.

Trusting in your best judgment,
Sincerely yours,
R. MIGNAULT.

TEN PERISHED IN MYSTERIOUS FIRE

Blaze of Unknown Origin Wrecks Five Story New York Tenement House

Eight Bodies Found Huddled Near Doorway — Many Injured

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Ten lives were lost and more than a score of persons injured in a fire of unknown origin which partially destroyed a five-story tenement house on West 17th street before dawn today. The building was occupied by 15 families, mostly Armenians and Greeks. Eight bodies were found huddled together near a doorway on the fifth floor of the building. Two men and one woman were seriously injured, while 30 others were treated for abrasions and shock.

Many of the people who lived in the tenement groped their way to windows, where they clung to ledges and screamed for help.

NEW CHARGE AGAINST ATTORNEY LEVENSON

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—A charge that Harry E. Levenson, an attorney, against whom disbarment proceedings are pending, conspired with William J. Corcoran and others to employ women of loose morals to entrap men and extort money from them, was added to the allegations against him when the case came up in the supreme court today.

Further action was postponed until Friday, pending the filing of specifications asked by counsel for Levenson.

A motion by Daniel H. Conkey, another attorney, whose disbarment had been asked that the case against him be transferred to the superior court, was taken under advisement. Judge Decourcy announced his decision would be given Thursday, intimating that he believed the court had no power to make the change.

Arguments also were heard today on a petition of William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex county, now living in New York, for permission to resign from the Massachusetts Bar. No decision was given, counsel for Corcoran being granted permission to amend the petition. Action for the disbarment of Corcoran is pending before the court.

BIG LIQUOR RAIDS NEAR PITTSBURG

PITTSBURG, Kas., Nov. 14.—Four thousand gallons of whisky, eight hundred quarts of "home-brew" beer, eight hundred gallons of mash and a large quantity of whisky were seized by prohibition enforcement officers and county officers in raiding operations yesterday at mining camps near Pittsburg. Ten men are in jail at Girard. The raiding was continued today.

MASTER IN BERGDOFF CASE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—The United States district court today decided to appoint a master in the controversy between Allen Property Custodian Miller and Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, mother of Grover C. Bergdoll, convicted draft dodger, over the accounting of her property. The custodian contends Mrs. Bergdoll should have accounted for $101,317, whereas she accounted for only $16,000.

Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, O.M.I., of the Immaculate Conception church, was a member of the reception committee at the reception yesterday for Marshal Foch in the hall of flags at the state house, Boston, today.

PUBLIC NOTICE

"In the summer of 1905 I was suffering with rheumatism and a general breakdown of the system. The doctors were giving me strychnine for breakfast, dinner and supper. About the time that I thought my time was up on earth I received some of your circulars and at once ordered a box of Tekol Tablets. I found it to be exactly what I needed, and the next day I was up and about. I have used five or six boxes of Tekol and can heartily recommend it for rheumatism, heart trouble, rheumatism, loss of vitality and as a general brace for run-down systems. I am fifty-one years of age I am a stronger, healthier man than ever before in my life. The tonic effects of Tekol are far superior to whiskey, and there are absolutely no bad after-effects. Tekol is a panacea for despondency, blues and brain fog. In fact, it is far superior to anything I have ever seen for a general run-down condition of the system."

O'SULLIVAN GETS FIRST PLACE IN DRAWING CONTEST

Candidates Draw for Positions on Ballot — Drawing Took Place This Afternoon in Aldermanic Chamber

The drawing for places on the ballot at the primary a week from tomorrow took place this afternoon in the aldermanic chamber at city hall. Miss Mary Mahoney, a clerk in the office of the election commission, drew the names from the box, Chairman McOsker read them off and Clerk Allard recorded them in the official order. The result of the drawing for mayor was as follows.

Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan,
George H. Brown,
Perry D. Thompson,
Samuel Scott,
John J. Donovan,
Rodrigue Mignault,
James E. Donnelly.

SOME EXCITEMENT TODAY AT OFFICE OF ELECTION COMMISSION

Candidate for Councilor Declared Out of the Running by Commissioners Announces That He Will Run on Stickers

There was plenty of excitement for a time at the office of the election commission this morning when Joseph J. Sweeney, who had been declared out of the councilor fight in ward 5 on account of insufficiency of signatures, appeared at the office in company with a lawyer.

In checking the names on Mr. Sweeney's papers it was found that out of 87 names contained thereon only 40 would serve the purpose for which they were affixed. Of the 13 which were discarded, several were names of those who had signed other councilor papers in the same ward and as these papers had been checked before.

Britain and Japan to Accept "In Principle" American Proposals

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Great Britain's acceptance "in principle" of the American proposals for limitation of naval armament, was definitely forecast today in a statement on behalf of the British delegation. Japan's acceptance "in principle" at least, has been forecast by statements by Baron Admiral Kato and others of the Japanese delegation.

Great Britain's principal consideration, it is understood in framing the reply which Mr. Balfour will make tomorrow, has been the question of what was to be done to bring France and Italy within the scope of the plan for limitations. The American delegates, it is understood, impressed their British colleagues with the advisability of first disposing of the question as it affects the three principles—the United States, Great Britain and Japan. The conference of the heads of the five principal powers was adjourned at 12:30 o'clock after having been in session for an hour and a half.

Mrs. Sanger and Miss Windsor Freed

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Margaret Sanger and Miss Mary Windsor were discharged today by City Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan when police officials failed to produce evidence in court to substantiate charges upon which they were arrested last night when they resisted efforts of the police to break up a birth control meeting. Both women were taken to the police station last night and charged with disorderly conduct. Later they were released without bail.

When court opened this morning the complaint clerk in Magistrate Corrigan's office refused to draft a formal charge of disorderly conduct on the ground that the evidence was insufficient and when the police insisted he referred the matter to the magistrate. Captain Thomas Donahue, who ordered the arrests last night, was summoned to the hearing and on his failure to appear at the hour set, Magistrate Corrigan freed both defendants.

70 Corporations and Individuals Guilty

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Seventy corporations and individuals, composing what is known as the Tile and Mantle combine today pleaded guilty in the federal court to violating the Sherman anti-trust law. They were indicted last August as the result of an investigation into the building trades industry by the Lockwood legislative committee.

Mail Pouch With $26,000 in Checks Found

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—A mail pouch containing $26,000 in checks, which disappeared on Oct. 15, while enroute from Dedham to Boston, was found by post office inspectors beside the tracks near the Back Bay station of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. today. All the letters had been opened. Small amounts of cash in two registered letters had been taken. The checks contained in the pouch were being sent by the Dedham National bank to Boston banks for clearance. Payment on them had been ordered stopped. The largest was for $17,000. Post office officials said they believe the pouch was placed on the railroad tracks within a few days.

NEW MEMORIAL DEDICATED

Marks Beginning of Fulfillment of Provision of Washington's Will

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Speaking today at the exercises attending the laying of the corner stone for the new Victory Memorial, President Harding dedicated the structure as "a gathering place for Americans; where Americans begin the fulfillment of one of the striking provisions of the last will of George Washington, which set aside a bequest for the founding of an institution to disseminate learning, culture and a proper understanding of right principles in government."

The president's address was given largely to an analysis of the less well known attributes of the first president which, he said, made Washington "on his private and personal side, a very model of good citizenship."

"It is an impressive fact," Mr. Harding said, "worthy of our especial thought, that in the century and a half since Washington became the leader, the heart and soul of the struggle for independence and unity, this nation has so many times found occasions to record devotion to the precepts which he laid down for its guidance. So today, after more than a century's delay, we are come to pay tribute to the foresight which first encouraged and endowed the institution here established—an institution which is to be alike a monument to those who sacrificed in a noble cause, and a beacon to shed afar the light of useful knowledge and grateful understanding among men."

It has seemed to me that our studies of Washington have been too much from these public sides from which we view him as the military chief, the inspired leader of the colonies, the statesman and guide of constitution-making times, the welding force which hammered fragments of communities into a great nation, as the first president; and as the author of that body of domestic and foreign policies which he bequeathed in his farewell address. I think it may be said that if on the one side Washington was the great personal force that wrenched apart the two chief branches of the English-speaking race, he was on the other the greatest personal factor in saving this continent to Anglo-Saxon domination; and in doing that, he contributed very greatly to making possible the wide-rung family of English-speaking nations. If as leader of the revolting colonies in '76, this time aided by France, he tore them from the grasp of England, it is equally true that two decades earlier he had saved them from the possible domination of France. I am sure that today our faithful friends and trusted allies of France and England alike would agree that in both cases, viewed in the light of subsequent events, he served mankind well.

"But among the documents which attest his wisdom, there is one to which little study has been given. I mean his last will and testament. On

Court Room Crowded Long Before Opening of Trial—Bitter Contest Expected

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Roscoe C. ("Fatty") Arbuckle, favorite motion picture comedian, went to trial today on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, motion picture actress, September 8. Scores of witnesses on both sides awaited the call to the stand. The crowds began to surge early through the narrow corridors on the third floor of the Hall of Justice when the trial court is located. The admissions were limited to approximately 300, which included more than a score of newspapermen.

For more than a week the contending sides have had their decks stripped for action, and the eagerness with which they called all possible evidence indicates a hard and bitter contest.

TAKE BODY FROM RIVER

Police Recover Body of Man Supposed to Be Michael Reynolds

The body of a man supposed to be Michael Reynolds was pulled from the Concord river late this afternoon by the police.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the police were notified a man's coat and hat were found near the Sixth arch bridge. Lieut. Palmer and Inspectors Kennedy and Walsh went to the scene and dragged the river. The body was recovered shortly after 3 o'clock.

In the pocket of the coat was found a pocketbook with the name "Michael Reynolds" on it. Shortly before the body was found a Mrs. Reynolds identified the clothes as belonging to her husband. She has not seen the body, however, so there is no positive identification as yet. There was no evidence of foul play. The body is at the undertaking rooms of O'Connell and Fay, and the medical examiner has been notified.

TO ASK HARDING TO RELEASE DEBS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—An engagement was made today with President Harding by eight members of the World War Veterans' association and others who won Congressional Medals of Honor or Distinguished Service awards during the late war to present memorials asking the pardon of Eugene V. Debs, now serving sentence in Atlanta penitentiary.

The memorials also asked the release of 149 other men confined in federal prisons after conviction upon various charges having to do with the obstruction of the government's activities during the war.

A. G. Cooper and John M. Levitt, respectively national chairman and chairman of the eastern division of the War Veterans' association, were among those who presented the proposals.

Holdup and Robbery in Liberty Square—Other District Court Cases

"Something ought to be done about that gang by the police. It is no doubt the worst element in Lowell," such was the opinion and characterization of a certain crowd expressed by Judge Thomas J. H., charged with drunkenness.

Connolly, while in an intoxicated condition, was held up and robbed of $250 outside a barroom in Liberty square Wednesday night, the day after.

Colleges Confer Honorary Degrees—Parade of Former Service Men and Women

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—Ferdinand Foch, marshal of France, was given a victor's welcome to Boston today. Cheering thousands lined the streets to pay homage to the commander-in-chief of the allied armies as he was whisked from place to place to receive official welcomes and to have honors bestowed upon him. Every time he stopped he found more thousands waiting to acclaim him.

Marshal Foch arrived in a snow storm which later changed to rain but he took every objective in this phase of "the battle of America." His presence in the city was officially proclaimed by the firing on Boston common of a field marshal's salute of 19 guns.

Greeted at South Station

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—Marshal Foch, acclaimed by thousands, was the guest today of Greater Boston. The lengthy program, prepared for his entertainment, started with the presentation of a gold medal by Governor Cox and a key to the city by Mayor Peters. Chief among other functions were the conferring of honorary degrees by Harvard and Boston universities and Boston college, and a parade of former service men and women.

Ready to greet him on arrival at the South station in his special car from Providence, was a reception committee comprising city, state and American Legion officials. A troop of cavalry was provided for the escort of the marshal's automobile to the state house to receive the state's official welcome and to the city hall for reception by the mayor.

Boston college was next to claim the attention of the allied generalissimo. The degree of Doctor of Laws awaited him there. The exercises were also timed so as to permit him to return to the city in season to be the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the city and the Legion at the Copley Plaza hotel.

The first event on the afternoon program was the presentation to Marshal Foch of a miniature replica of the monument erected by the 104th infantry at Westfield, designed by Bruce Wilder Saville from a photograph showing the regiment's "colors" being decorated by the French. Maj. Gen. William C. Hayes, retired, former commander of the 104th, was to make the presentation from an old box car drawn in front of the Y. P. (Yankee Division) clubhouse and filled with overseas veterans.

Parade at 3 o'clock.

"THIS MORNING I FOUND SOME OF THE WIGGLEFIN PEOPLE DEAD"

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
"Nick," said Cap'n Pennywinkle, when the twins had returned from an important errand, "something happened last night and I don't know where it was."

"Yes, sir," answered the little boy politely.

"It happened in the ocean, but the ocean is a big place so that doesn't mean much. Also it made a terrible noise. It woke me up and it woke Curly up, but it wasn't thunder. It was louder than thunder. Moreover, this morning I found some of the Wigglefin people dead. A loud sound in the water kills fishes, because it breaks the floaters they carry inside of them to balance with."

"It might have been a torpedoblast out practicing," said thoughtful Nick.

"No," agreed the Cap'n.

"Or it might have been a bombing

BOSTON CITIZEN WAS READY TO GIVE UP BUT IS NOW WELL MAN

"The way Tanlac has rid me of a case of rheumatism of twenty years' standing seems more like the work of a miracle than that of a medicine," said Thomas L. Gannon, 56 Warwick street, Boston, an ex-captain for the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad for the past ten years.

"It just seemed like every bone in my body ached, and I was so bad off all last winter that I hardly left the house. My knees were so stiff and swollen it was all I could do to bend them, and they pained me as if they would drop off. I couldn't raise my right arm to comb my hair, and it was impossible to lie down comfortably. When I could not bear the weight of the bed clothes on me, was nervous, weak and played out, and was about ready to give up in despair."

"Well, what Tanlac has done for me seems almost unbelievable, but it's every word the truth. It has relieved me so completely of the rheumatism and limbered up my knees and joints, so that I could get out on Boston common and clip off a hundred yards dash with most anybody. Why, I'm as sound as a dollar now, and feel 'top top' in every way. It's certainly a blessing to be strong and healthy like I am now, and I owe it every bit to Tanlac."

plane," the little boy suggested. "All very good," said Cap'n Pennywinkle, "but I don't think so. It was too dark. What I'm afraid of is that it's a new island and that it might not stick up far enough!"

"You see," went on the fairyman, "every once in a while we get a new island, and do you know, we have an awful time finding it. Worse 'n' finding a needle in a 10-ton haystack."

"And do they make a noise?" asked Nick.

"Do they? Yes, indeed. You see, there are volcanoes under the sea as well as on land, and when they explode and a lot of rocks 'n' things come bursting out, they pile up on each other clear to the top of the water and that's an island. If it doesn't get up to the top, but stays just under the water, it is dangerous. So, Nickie, we must find that island and learn if it's a safe one. If it isn't, we'll have to build a lighthouse or put a bell-buoy on it."

WAS TENDERED BACHELOR PARTY

George Picard, a well known business man of the West Centralville district, who on Thanksgiving will be married to Miss Irene Parent, a charming young woman of this city, was tendered a bachelor party at the home of his father, Mr. Edw. Picard, 36 Hudson street, Saturday night. The affair was attended by about 150 friends of the young man, and all spent a most enjoyable evening.

As a token of esteem on the part of his many friends the young man was presented a purse of gold, the presentation address being delivered by E. S. Desmarais. Mr. Picard responded in appropriate terms and an evening of pleasure followed. There were vocal and instrumental selections by E. S. Desmarais, Leo Sylvestre, Frank Lambert, Joseph Harvey, J. Tessier, E. J. Larachelle and others. In the course of the evening refreshments were served and the party broke up at a reasonable hour after all present had extended their best wishes to the bride-to-be. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Sam Parent, chairman; Frank Lambert, Emer Herbert and Luther Picard.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR LADIES NIGHT

The committee in charge of the ladies' night entertainment, of Lowell Council, Order of Columbus, has completed all plans and a most successful affair is anticipated. Grand Knight John E. Hart will be general manager, and Frank C. Green floor marshal.

The committee in charge of the "Star party" by Bishop Delany assembly will hold a meeting tonight to check up the cards returned by the members. It is evident that the affair is to be a pronounced success, judging from the interest aroused.

Hon. P. F. Flaherty, the new state deputy of the R. of C. in Maine, is well known locally as a member of the Portland council, and is said to be quite an ardent worker.

The tryout of the cast of the high school play will take place this week at the high school hall. The high school play this year is Penrod and is adapted from the famous story of Booth Tarkington. Work on the play begins in earnest this week. The cast in all probability will not be announced until next week. Then Miss Mary C. Joyce, the director of all the high school dramatics, will know the ability of her cast and make it known. The cast of Penrod will include 18 boys and girls. The play will take place at the Opera House Jan. 30 and 31, through the extreme courtesy of Mr. Schaeke, the owner. Tickets for the Lawrence-Lowell game on Thanksgiving day morning were sent to the down river school by Faculty Manager James F. Conway today. A large delegation of fans from Lawrence is expected to witness the game. Mr. Conway is also starting work on putting out a program for the game. The lineup of the two teams and the picture of the rival captains will be included in it.

The November issue of the Review will be published and put out by Tuesday, November 23.

A party of Miss Stevens' third hour English class will be held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock in the hall. The committee in charge is composed of James Hartley, Charles Connor, Grace Hall and Hazel Yeomans. A debate will be held in the school hall Friday afternoon. The question is: Resolved, That disarmament would tend toward internal prosperity. The affirmative will be upheld by Geary, Crowley and Court, while the negative will be upheld by Lipschitz, Arlinsky and McCarty.

BREAK UP BIRTH CONTROL MEETING

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Margaret Sanger and Miss Mary Winsor of Philadelphia were arrested last night after they were alleged to have defied the police by addressing a mass meeting in Town hall in the interests of birth control. The police broke up the meeting.

The two women were taken to the West 47-st. police station, where technical charges of disorderly conduct were made against them. A crowd of several thousand persons followed them to the station house, many of them hissing and jeering the police, and it was necessary to call out reserves to disperse them.

The two women later were paroled in the custody of their counsel for their appearance in the West Side court today.

BIG AUDIENCE AT COLONIAL HALL HEARS HELEN DAVIS AND VICTOR YOUNG IN EDISON TONE-TEST

In a test of direct comparison, made last Wednesday night at Colonial Hall, before a large audience, the New Edison scored a complete and convincing triumph.

Helen Davis, the famous mezzo-soprano, sang in direct comparison with the RE-CREATION of her voice by the New Edison. To the ear, there was no difference between her living voice and her re-created voice.

This is the most drastic phonograph test known. No other phonograph has ever sustained it. No other phonograph has even attempted it.

The New Edison's marvelous performance of last Wednesday night vindicates everything that has been said or claimed for its perfect realism.

Half-way through her song, she suddenly stopped singing. The New Edison, at her side, took up her song,—and continued it alone.

Singer and phonograph thus alternated, throughout the song.

The only way the audience could be sure which was singing, was by watching Miss Davis' lips,—so exactly like the living voice was the RE-CREATED voice.

Victor Young made the same test of comparison with the RE-CREATIONS of his piano selections. Again the same result—there was no difference between the RE-CREATED performance and the living performance.

Proof was piled upon proof! Evidence was massed on evidence! The end of the concert found the audience absolutely and completely convinced, through its own personal experience, that there is no difference between an artist's living performance and its RE-CREATION by the New Edison—that listening to the New Edison is, in literal truth, the same as listening to the living artists.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

Only one question can still bother your mind. This question we now answer.

The instrument used in last Wednesday's tests was not a special model. It was an Official Laboratory Model, taken from our regular stock. Every Official Laboratory Model in our stock is guaranteed to sustain the same test of direct comparison with living artists.

You can have an Official Laboratory Model in your home. You can own an instrument which will do everything done last Wednesday in the test. Come in. Hear the wonderful Official Laboratory Model for yourself. Learn about our Budget Plan, which puts our Official Laboratory Model into your home for no more than you would "put down" for a talking machine.

GETTING RID OF A NASTY TEMPER

How Gude's Pepto-Mangan Relieves Ill Humor of Bad Health

When ill humor becomes chronic and a man or woman who should be genial becomes known as a "grouch," nine times out of ten the cause is physical. When blood gets weak and full of poisons it leaves the body weak, the face pale, and causes a tired feeling. There is no endurance. Nerves get all flattered, because in a weak-blooded condition the body is not nourished sufficiently with the oxygen that rich red blood supplies.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is a blood-builder and when taken in steady doses for a while it causes a flood of fresh red blood cells to stream through the body, bringing robust health and strength. With good blood, rich and red, there are no "grouches." Life looks good and pleasures are keenly enjoyed.

Druggists have Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid and tablet form. Be sure to get the genuine with the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package.—Adv.

GREATEST BATTLESHIP

Superdreadnaught Maryland Went Onto Rockland Trial Course Today

ROCKLAND, Me., Nov. 14.—The superdreadnaught Maryland, designated by Secretary of State Hughes as one of the battleships which will escape the scrap heap, provided this country's bold promises are accepted by the armament limitation conference, went onto the Rockland trial course today for the beginning of her official standardization test.

The program mapped out by the board of inspection and survey called for three runs at 17, 19 and 21 knots speed over the mile course and five runs at maximum speed to be followed if time permitted, by some of the backing and steering tests.

Motion picture men were at their wit's end to devise some method of obtaining more, and better pictures than any which previously have been made, for these are to be exhibited before the conference in Washington Thursday, showing the world's greatest battleship in a supreme endeavor to better the speed of 21 knots which is required of this type.

The Maryland is said to have already done this unofficially, but as the craft had not been standardized the results were not marked by dependable accuracy.

Excelling in every other department of naval architecture and equipment, the Maryland has the distinction of being the first battleship on trial with armament of 16-inch guns. When these weapons do their barking along the New England coast in the runs from Rockland to Boston Wednesday, real shells will come from the muzzles, each weighing 2100 pounds and having a carrying distance of 20 miles.

The big electric propelling motors are of a different design than those of the Tennessee, which craft attained a speed of 21.24 knots on a similar trial off Rockland in the early summer. The Maryland's trial displacement today was announced at 32,400 tons which is slightly greater than that of the Tennessee.

The Maryland is in command of Captain Charles F. Preston, and the board of inspection and survey is headed by Rear Admiral C. P. Pinkett. In spite of the threat implied by the proposed 10-year naval holiday, practically every steel shipyard in the country is represented by the 150 observers on board.

For skin blemishes use RESINOL. Soothing and healing. It reduces irritation and usually restores the skin to its normal healthy condition.

CARDINAL ISSUES STRONG PAS-TORAL ON INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

Rights and Duties of Employer and Employee Laid Down—Work and Christian Principles of Justice and Charity the Remedy

In all the Catholic churches in the city yesterday, and in fact all churches of the Boston diocese, a long pastoral letter was read from His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell on "Religious Ideals in Industrial Relations" of which the following is a part:

To establish peace in the world Christ came among men. The pagan nations, ignorant of God and His laws, had attempted, with but small measure of success, the reconciliation of human nature. The rights and duties, they knew no law but the law of force. Brutal tyranny stalked abroad.

Gods there were, but none with power to help the weak. There was a god of war and a god of wealth, god of beauty and a god of pleasure. There was no god of poverty, of humility, of pain. Envy, jealousy, hatred of man for man, of tribe for tribe, of nation for nation naturally followed the rule of might. This was no place for justice and charity. These emanate from God—and when life is banished from society, peace and good will among men are banished with Him. Modern paganism, too, has its gods. Peace is not among them.

The heart of the world is tired of strife. Peace—peace is on every lip, the echo of every heart. But there is no peace, and there will be no peace until the cause of strife is removed. It would be false optimism to say, "All is well," when we know that the selfishness of men has kept pace; that the gap between rich and poor is constantly widening; that the very basis of society is being disrupted; that irreligion and infidelity are blighting away the very foundations of faith.

Not with a wall of pessimism do we raise our voice but with affectionate warning. Modern paganism has done its work, but the God of our fathers is with us still. He will save us. We have but to put into practice the justice and charity of Christ. When Christian ideals rule the world, then, and not till then, we shall have peace. "Jerusalem, Jerusalem, if you didst but know the things which are for thy peace!"

The existence of deep-seated discontent and far-reaching resentment in the industrial world of today is not to be questioned. Wage earners are restlessly weary. They are apprehensive. They strike as of daily occurrence; great strikes threaten national disaster; class consciousness is on the increase; class hatred is being fomented by unscrupulous agitators.

The Remedy for Strife
Over a quarter of a century ago Leo XIII. with unerring instinct placed his finger on the sore spots of the modern industrial world and offered religious ideals for labor and capital.

He pointed out that large numbers of workers were destitute and that "excessive pressure on the indigent and the destitute for the sake of gain, and to gather one's profit out of the need of another, is condemned by all laws, human and divine. To defraud anyone of wages that are his due is a crime that cries to the avenging angel of heaven. The rich must religiously refrain from cutting down the workman's earnings, whether by force or by fraud, or by sordid dealing, and with all the greater reason for the laboring man is, as a rule, weak and unprotected, and because his slender means should be proportioned to their scantiness be accounted sacred."

No one can doubt that had the voice of the Pontiff been heeded the world today would be immeasurably better off. But the new paganism of materialist philosophy has passed the portals of the schools and has poisoned the very sources of civil and industrial life. "Might is right," "the survival of the fittest," "the battle to the strong"—these are principles of action in the industrial world.

For the way that brings prettier teeth

Do as millions have done—make this ten-day test. See how film removal beautifies the teeth. Learn how it makes safer teeth. Brush your teeth in the modern way and watch all the good effects.

Film makes teeth dingy

That viscous film you feel is the teeth's chief enemy. Most tooth troubles are now traced to it.

It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Old brushing methods did not effectively combat it. So very few people have escaped discoloration and decay.

Germ-breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Two ways to fight it

Dental science has now found two effective ways to fight film. They are combined in a new-day tooth paste—Pepsodent—made to meet modern requirements.

Pepsodent
PAT OFF
REG. U.S.

The New-Day Dentifrice

The scientific film combatant, approved by modern authorities and now advised by leading dentists everywhere—to bring five desired effects. All druggists supply the large tubes.

Each use of Pepsodent brings five effects which dentists now desire. It attacks the film. It keeps the teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

It increases the salivary flow, which is Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That to digest the starch deposits which otherwise may form acid. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Thus Pepsodent is bringing to millions whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. Leading dentists everywhere are now urging its adoption.

Results are delightful

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

All the effects are delightful. All are now considered essential. See and feel them for awhile. Read the reasons for them in the book we send. Then decide for you and yours between the old ways and the new. Cut out the coupon now.

prosecution of the war. There were mistakes and treachery and greed here and there, but they were exceptional. This shows that they can work together in peace and harmony for the common weal.

be particularly sad at this time, when the world has been torn apart, when large sections of Europe have been devastated, when families and people are dying, if we, the workers in world production, should lose this blessed opportunity of rendering service to stricken humanity, friend and foe alike; if we were to refuse to furnish weapons of destruction should fall so lamentably in the work of reconstruction.

The Fundamental Mistake
The fundamental mistake in the attempt at solution is a mistake in the point of view. Statesmen and economists have persisted in regarding the problem as a merely economic one. Economic, philanthropists and statesmen can alleviate distress. They cannot heal the wounds of society. These lie too deep.

For underneath the turmoil lies a wrong philosophy of life, a misunderstanding of the destiny of man and his relations to his Creator. The question of human and divine rights involved in the industrial issue of the day is a moral question. The well-being of individuals and families is concerned. The reciprocal rights and duties of these nations must return to truth, to a sincere and persevering effort to practice Christian virtue, justice, equity, brotherly love. The principles underlying social order must permeate the existence of God and the immortality of the soul. God is Creator and Lawgiver. His laws may not be broken, and his commandments must be followed. His sanctions are inevitable.

Social action must be based on love of God and love of his neighbor. Without peace and brotherly love, no solution to the difficulties with which we are beset.

Labor
In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread. "If any man will not work, neither let him eat." There is no place in the modern world or in society for the idle. Activity of either production or service is obligatory on all.

This is an obligation which springs from the need of society, but even more so from the need of the individual. Work is our protection against moral, intellectual and physical atrophy. The rich man is not freed from this obligation. He is released from the common burdens, but by this very fact he is the more obliged to serve society.

To enjoy work, however, man must be maintained in a state of physical efficiency. Suitable wages are necessary that he may have food, clothing, shelter and recreation. Demands on endurance must be reasonable. Working conditions should be pleasant and healthful as far as possible.

The workman thus treated should be honest, subordinate, devoted to the interests of his employer, and considerate of his associates. He should be conscious that he is carrying out the divine command to labor. If society is to be improved the worker must do his part. The church is not afraid to demand that the laborer fulfill his rightful obligations. He should be honest in his labor. Just agreements made with the employer should be faithfully kept. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

The worker should safeguard the property of the employer as if it were his own. He should make the interest of the firm his interest. He should be reasonable in disputes and urge his claims in a fair and just way. We have counseled workers to be just and charitable. We preach the same commandments of Christ to employers. We would even urge them to do more than justice, demands and to emulate the charity of Christ and His apostles which know no limit or bound.

As an obligation, not of charity, but of strict justice, in which if they fail they will be answerable to God, if not to men, the employer should see to it that of their profits a fair amount is set apart for the wage of their workmen, that they, too, may live and may support their families.

Employers should be faithful to the agreements which they have made. Let them remember that before God, who is no respecter of persons, all men are equal. Let them see the image of God in the workman, for His God has created every man to His own image and likeness. Let them have regard for the dignity of the workman, his right to health, to safety and to recreation, that he may restore the energy expended in toil. Let them see to it that ample time is given not only for requisite recreation but for the due performance of civil, domestic and religious duties.

Workers' Rights
The evils and abuses of the present industrial system cannot be too strongly deplored. The aloofness of the employer from the worker, the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few, the oppression of the worker, are abuses which, while not universal, are still altogether too common. Stories of excessive profits and low wages, of heartless dismissals, of inhuman disregard of labor, are a disgrace to our democratic state.

Happily, there are exceptions. Some industries are conducted in a manner which reflects credit on capital, health, morals, culture and the economic prosperity of the workers are regarded. These exceptions make us realize that what is needed is transformation of men and methods. Greed and avarice must be checked whenever possible.

Defense Against Oppression
Labor unions exist to protect the weak against the strong, to help the employee in collective bargaining, to defend the interests of the worker against the aggression of powerful and organized capital. Strong and well conducted unions generally see to it that agreements are kept.

The hostility to employers, the tendency to drift toward radicalism or into harmful political activity, the fostering of useless strikes, the limiting of output, the demand for wages independently of merit and skill, are evils incidental to unionism, but are necessary. The more intelligent and better disposed trade unionists greatly deplore these abuses and earnestly seek to remedy them. They are striving to establish industrial peace.

However, until due recognition and help come to the worker from state or employer, he will be justified in self-defense in resorting to strikes. It is a natural right of man to give or withhold his labor. It is man's defense against injury and oppression. Man's right to strike is then a natural right.

A strike can be just and may be necessary. A strike is not war, save deceptively, but like war it should be considered a last resort. Workmen should think, long and earnestly, before using this weapon.

Strike Court of Last Appeal
They must see to it that the strike is just; that fellow-workmen are not intimidated by their action; that no just contract is violated; they must weigh well the chances of success; they must ask themselves if their prospective gain will compensate for the suffering and loss inflicted on themselves, their family, and the public at large.

Experience shows that a large number of strikes have failed and failure has often been disastrous to the worker and has always lowered the prestige of the union. Partial failures have ended in compromise which might often have been reached by arbitration without the bitterness of conflict.

When moral principles are not involved, expediency may be consulted, and even though there be cause for the strike, public sentiment or necessity may make action inopportune and seriously endanger the chances of success. Wise counsel and prudence, exercised recently in the calling off of the threatened railway strike, should then prevail. Even victory at times does not compensate for losses sustained in conflict. The strike, like war, can be justified, but, like war, it is the court of last appeal.

The state has the right to suppress a civil war, but a strike should never be a civil war. Sometimes incidental to a strike, but not at all necessary, and greatly to be deplored by true friends of labor, are intimidation, disorder, riot and violence. A strike of itself does not imply any disturbance of the peace.

The state should always maintain discipline and order, but the state has no right to prohibit a just strike. That is a natural right of man. It is man's natural defense. It existed prior to the state itself, and is a right which no society can annul.

Justice Done Not Enough
Religious ideals, then, which alone will bring lasting peace in industrial relations are the ideals of Jesus Christ—justice and charity. Justice alone is not sufficient. Justice looks to order and peace, but a world ruled by justice alone with its rigid standards would be a cold world.

Christian charity is not almsgiving. It is unselfish love. It is not mere philanthropy or humanitarianism. These can never take the place of true charity. "And if I should deliver all my goods to feed the poor and if I should deliver my body to be burnt, and have not charity it profiteth me nothing."

Charity sees Christ in every man: "As long as you did it to one of these my least brethren, you did it to Me." Charity is the characteristic and distinguishing mark of the Christian. "By this shall all men know that you are my disciples, if you have love one for another." It springs not from mercy but from love; not from pity with which men regard inferiors, but from the noble Christian sentiment that we are all brothers in Christ.

The latter closed with this appeal: We appeal to the justice and charity of the American people to take up this work of Christ—the restoration of peace and confidence in the industrial world today.

Let America, a true republic, lead in this work and by the force of its just and charitable public sentiment give an example of practical Christianity to the world—that all men may know that this government of the people, by the people and for the people, respects the rights of God and man, and consequently will not perish from the earth.

which reflects credit on capital, health, morals, culture and the economic prosperity of the workers are regarded. These exceptions make us realize that what is needed is transformation of men and methods. Greed and avarice must be checked whenever possible.

Defense Against Oppression
Labor unions exist to protect the weak against the strong, to help the employee in collective bargaining, to defend the interests of the worker against the aggression of powerful and organized capital. Strong and well conducted unions generally see to it that agreements are kept.

The hostility to employers, the tendency to drift toward radicalism or into harmful political activity, the fostering of useless strikes, the limiting of output, the demand for wages independently of merit and skill, are evils incidental to unionism, but are necessary. The more intelligent and better disposed trade unionists greatly deplore these abuses and earnestly seek to remedy them. They are striving to establish industrial peace.

However, until due recognition and help come to the worker from state or employer, he will be justified in self-defense in resorting to strikes. It is a natural right of man to give or withhold his labor. It is man's defense against injury and oppression. Man's right to strike is then a natural right.

MAKES COMEBACK

Fighter Fit to do Battle
Again

"Mickey the Fighter," a regular dog and the terror of Tyler street and vicinity, is back on all four feet again and meeting all comers. Announcement was made today that Mickey had been cured of a chauliwood ear and several rib lacerations received about three weeks ago in a bad jam with a silver.

Veterinary Surgeon Eaton said he was afraid Mickey might not survive his experience, for the silver missed fire right afterward and nearly overturned a telephone pole. Mickey was in really bad shape when his young owner, whose name Mr. Eaton did not secure, brought him into the humane society clinic rooms. The ear was finally adjusted and no more was made to open the gas box, where a good many canines are given tickets to the happy hunting grounds.

For three weeks—and every second day—the Mickey of Tyler street and nearby backyards was brought faithfully by its anxious little owner to the society rooms and had his wounds several rib lacerations received about three weeks ago in a bad jam with a silver.

three weeks ago in a bad jam with a silver. Mickey and his owner went away. Late last week, the door of Mr. Eaton's office was pushed open suddenly, nearly causing the surgeon to spring for his trusty Colt. It was Mickey the Fighter—cured and happy, and barking joyously—back again to see Eaton and ask him, in dog language, how's everything.

Mr. Eaton called to Mickey, but he gave another yelp, turned tail and fled. The veterinarian actually believes that the canine came back to thank him for dragging him out of an early grave.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By Theatres Own Press Agents

B. F. KELT'S THEATRE

A bill of extraordinary merit will be produced at the B. F. Kelt theatre this week, and in the very forefront will be the wonderful Aristoclast pictures shot in Washington on Friday. These will show not only the solemn procession from the rotunda of the capital to Arlington National cemetery, but many of the finer details attending upon the funeral of the "unknown soldier." They are said to be very wonderful pictures, and they will attract a well-merited attention on the part of Lowell citizens.

Harry Hayden & Co. in "The Love Game" have a sweet little dramatic comedy. Hayden is rated as one of the very best juvenile actors on the stage today, having been associated with the Deafos forces in "The Boomerang" for some time. He is the author of the comedy, and he has brought to it one of the very best of companies. This will be an event in a way, as the number of first class comedies of this type are exceedingly rare.

In "Georgia on Broadway" there will appear Maude Powers and Vernon Wallace, an attractive pair, who will demonstrate much of that mellowness which goes with the life and the song of the southland. They are typical of the better life below the Mason & Dixon line, and they give not an iota of the real slice, for they are Southerners.

Holler skating comedy is the hardest in the world to put over, for a person on skates can't always tell just how he is going to tumble. Jack McLaughlin and "Gilt" May Carson will demonstrate, however, just how they can extract the last ounce of fun from roller skating falls. The act is a perfect scene in the playhouse, and you want a little bit of fun and music look over Viola Rudell and Edward Dunigan, whose "Revueettes" are of the nicest possible type. They are entertainers of sweetness and versatility and (Lynwood Wilbert) is an unusually funny man. Hina & Grill will close the bill with gymnastic work, season's Fables, "Primitive Life" and "Fable Weekly" will also be shown.

THE STRAND

A photoplay of unusual excellence, "The Search Ring," featuring Alice Joyce, will head the bill at The Strand today. "Fair in Love" will be the other attraction.

OPERA HOUSE

Mother love and devotion, a theme generations old, and quite as popular and interesting as the playhouse ever and is at present enjoying a wonderful success melodrama, "Over the Hills," which is to be presented this week by the Lowell Players at the Opera House. The piece is founded on Will Carleton's famous poem, "Over the Hills in the Poor House," and also from the companion poem, "Over the Hills From the Poor House." One of the greatest motion pictures of all times has been made from the poem and is at present enjoying a wonderfully successful run in all of the large theatrical centres of the country. This together with the fact that the play is to be produced in 20 different theatres of the country during this week, attests to its popularity and favor with the theatregoers. The story is a simple, little recital of events, with mother love foundation for the action. A mother and her two sons are found living together. One of the boys is the black-sheep of the family, while the other is a snob. The latter makes a fortune during the latter returns, after serving his sentence, he finds that his brother has attempted to disinherit his mother and drive her from her home. He not only establishes his innocence but brings his mother back into her own and points out to her a bright and happy future. One of the best pieces of the season.

TAKES CARE

Mrs. Taylor's Sickness Ended
by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Roxbury, Mass.—"I suffered continually with backache and was often depressed, had dizzy spells and at my monthly periods it was almost impossible to keep around at my work. Since my last baby came two years ago my back has been worse and no position I could get in would relieve it, and doctor's medicine did not help me. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have found great relief since using it. My back is much better and I can sleep well. I keep house and have the care of five children so my work is very trying and I am very thankful I have found the Compound such a help. I recommend it to my friends and if you wish to use this letter I am very glad to help any woman suffering as I was until I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. MAUDE E. TAYLOR, 5 St. James Place, Roxbury, Mass.

Backache is one of the most common symptoms of a displacement or derangement of the female system. No woman should make the mistake of trying to overcome it by heroic endurance, but profit by Mrs. Taylor's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"You men and women who think yourselves intellectual because you lack feeling may see your mistake if you remember that the further Dante descended into hell the colder became the hearts of those suffering there," said the pastor.

Features of the evening service beside the pastor's sermon theme included an excellent violin solo, concert by Ralph Smalley and the rendition of songs by the choir. Miss Ella Leona Gale was assistant.

Rev. Mr. Thomas declared that the power of the "Divine Comedy" rested upon the vivid and significant portrayal of the three estates in the life hereafter. Dante's hell is not a hell of fire as preached by some clergymen even at this day; it is a hell of ice resulting from that greatest of all sins, coldness of heart. It is a hell not made by God, but by the sinners themselves, the pastor said.

"Dante's heaven was described as a happy place in which one may meet not alone the angels but our relatives and friends."

Returning from the exercises at Harvard, Marshal Foch was to visit Cardinal O'Connell at the latter's residence on the Boston side of the Charles river.

N. U. Breaks Precedent
In the evening, Boston university will bestow upon the marshal the first honorary degree ever conferred by the university, a doctorate of laws. The ceremony will take place at a convocation in the Boston arena. The marshal will be a guest for a short time of the Military Order of the World War at their annual dinner, and will end his activities for the day at the governors' dinner to be given at the Copley-Plaza and will entrain at 10 o'clock for Princeton, N. J.

Arrives in Snow Storm
Marshal Foch arrived in a snow storm. After brief welcoming ceremonies at the South station, which included an address in French by Lieut. Gov. Alvan C. Fuller, he was taken through the street crowds in an automobile to the state house.

Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the First Army corps area, and of the Yankee Division overseas, and Rear Admiral Albert Cleave, commander of the First Naval district, with their staffs, met the marshal on his arrival and accompanied him to the state house. There an infantry band and a composite company of national guardsmen were on duty as a guard of honor.

Formally Received by Gov. Cox
Standing in the Hall of Flags, at the state house, surrounded by the battle-scarred standards of Massachusetts troops carried in several wars, Marshal Foch was formally received by Gov. Cox.

"One who confidently put his trust in God, a military genius with strength of character, yet simple, kindly, true and devoted to the highest ideal," was Gov. Cox's characterization of Marshal Foch, in his presentation of the state medal to the French chief.

Recalling his conduct in the world war, and the victory that came under his command, the governor added: "Marshal Foch, as we stand in your presence, we can visualize that victory. You personify as no other can, not alone the mighty armies, but the cause of allied free men. With gratitude we lay our tribute at your feet. We acclaim you and our joy is boundless for 'Behold! Here at our hearthstone the embodiment of the unconquerable soul of our beloved friend, France, triumphant!'"

Pays Tribute to Our Boys
At city hall the marshal was greeted by Mayor Peters and members of the city government. Handing him a gold-embossed key to the city, a foot long, the mayor said:

"This city is your home, as is every city, town and hamlet in our country. Wherever courage, patriotism, self-sacrifice and devotion to the principles of freedom are held high, there you will find home."

Marshal Foch in his brief reply in French, paid tribute to Massachusetts soldiers.

As he completed his remarks, the marshal's attention was directed to the galleries where wounded American soldiers and army nurses were gathered to witness the ceremony. He saluted them and remarked his pleasure at their presence.

Entering the Hall of Flags the French commander had passed between a group of 1560 Gold Star Mothers on the one side and one of ambulance drivers who saw service in France on the other.

Exercises at Boston College
Swinging out to Newton through the snow, Marshal Foch found the exercises at Boston college moved indoors because of the storm. After Rev. William Devlin, S. J., president of the college, and its faculty had greeted him, back by the student body in caps and gowns, the party went to the Administration building, where Father Devlin conferred on the French leader the degree of Doctor of Laws. He saluted him as a fellow graduate of a Jesuit college, as he did so.

Marshal Foch, in response, said that the ceremony was back 50 years of his life to his own school days. Turning to the undergraduates, he continued: "But life is now terminating for me. It is beginning for you. Perhaps I can help you with some of my observations. We can't always have things as we would wish them, but we can remain true to certain ideals. So long as we hold fast to God and country, we shall come in to a safe port. If you would make your country greater still, let France and America take up and carry on the work of civilization together."

The students gave him a long cheer as he concluded.

Try This New Treatment in Tablet Form—Watch
the Quick Results

Everyone has heard of the apparent wonders performed by yeast in restoring thin, sickly, and run-down people to health. And now it is found that even more surprising results are brought when yeast is taken with iron, the great blood-builder.

People who for years have been weak, pale, anemic, and run-down are regaining their strength and health almost as if by magic through this remarkably effective combination of yeast and iron. Due to modern methods of food preparation, vitamins are lacking in most of our commonest foods—and that is why so many of us become sickly and run-down.

The preparation in which these two great health builders have been combined is known as Ironized Yeast. This contains highly concentrated brewer's yeast which is far more effective than ordinary bakers' yeast because it contains all the vitamins. Vitamins, as we all know, is the mysterious element which science has found to be so absolutely essential to health. Due to modern methods of food preparation, vitamins are lacking in most of our commonest foods—and that is why so many of us become sickly and run-down.

If you are suffering from loss of strength, if your food has no taste for you, or if you are irritable, thin, pale, nervous, or generally run-down, then Ironized Yeast is the answer. Ironized Yeast will in most cases bring a decided improvement within three days. It will usually clear up fatigue or multiply complexions within ten days. From day to day come enthusiastic reports of what it is doing for people.

It is packed in patented San-lapé packages and will keep indefinitely. Its cost is no more per dose than common yeast. Each package contains 10 days' treatment and costs only $1.00—or just 10¢ a day. Special directions for children in each package. Made by the Ironized Yeast Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

Among government financiers the belief is spreading that the process of deflation has been carried altogether too far, with the result that business has suffered unnecessarily. There is now an indication of an effort to reverse the process and to offer loans at lower rates of interest and to more liberal in extending credit to business men of undoubted solvency.

An indication of this tendency is found in the new issue of treasury certificates at 4 1/2 per cent. Evidently the treasury department has discovered that high rates of interest are destructive of business and low rates an encouragement.

The process of providing cheaper money is also favored by the Federal Reserve banks which carried the deflation idea to an invidious extreme. It appears that English financiers are likely to follow the same process inasmuch as London dispatches report that Lloyd George now favors mild inflation. In his speech at Inverness, he stated that there are many able men who believe that Britain and America have gone too far in the matter of deflation.

The two elements of high taxation and restriction of credit are among the worst handicaps to business recovery; and until there is some relief in both directions, it can hardly be expected that prosperity can be restored.

Lower discount rates will help struggling business concerns and will increase confidence which had been reduced during two years of severe liquidation. The Federal Reserve banks now realize that they can safely reverse their policy to some extent. The only danger to be guarded against is that if the new movement be overdone, it might lead to an outburst of speculation that would bring damaging results. This, however, will doubtless be carefully guarded against by those in charge of the banks. It is true, however, that practical business men hold to the idea that the evil effects of deflation can best be overcome by deeply cutting national expenditures and increasing individual production. The greatest possible production at reasonable cost is the demand of the hour. It will help unemployment and it will result in an increase in the purchasing power of the dollar.

The enactment of the revenue bill by congress will remove a state of uncertainty which will also help business, even though the taxes are not to be reduced to any great extent. As for the tariff, the emergency act is to be in force until the general act is passed, perhaps next spring. It is just as well to delay the general tariff law for the reason that at the present time, the republicans in congress seem unable to settle upon any fixed policy in dealing with the tariff beyond that of piling up unreasonable duties on every line of imports. With the arms conference now in session, congress is not likely to do much business for the remainder of the year beyond finishing up the revenue bill and sparing over a number of idle sessions.

Another crisis has arisen in the Irish situation resulting from the unwillingness of Uistur to join with the rest of Ireland under a central parliament. Uistur has already made very positive declarations of "no surrender" but so far as can be learned, Uistur is not required to make any concessions that would be regarded as a nullification of her rights. The trouble with Uistur is that her people have been so pampered by the British government that they feel almost insulted at being asked to join with the rest of Ireland on what may be supposed to be an equal basis. Under the rule of Great Britain for practically the last century, Uistur has been in the ascendant in Irish affairs and she is now asked to enter a national parliament while retaining her own provincial legislature.

Both Lloyd George and former Premier Asquith said repeatedly that it was unthinkable to coerce Uistur; but if Uistur is allowed to dominate the government of the British empire as it has done to a great extent since 1914, there is going to be more trouble in England and considerably more in Ireland. The result will be fully as bad for England as for Ireland, should the present outlook for peace and a satisfactory settlement be smashed by the obstinacy of a recalcitrant minority. It is noticeable that Donar Law has come out of his retirement to lead the die-hards against yielding to the appeals of the premier, and as for Sir Edward Carson, who is ill, it is understood that as usual, he stands by Uistur as against the rest of Ireland. Thus at the moment when a satisfactory settlement of this acrole controversy is hoped for, obstacles arise that threaten to blast once more the hopes of the friends of peace both in Ireland and in England. It remains to be seen whether Lloyd George can bring the Uisturians to join in the new scheme under which Ireland as a united and self-governing nation would live in peace and harmony to work out her national destinies free from the incubus of alien misrule.

DISCARD THE UNFIT

One week from tomorrow the voters of Lowell will be called upon to select from the long list of candidates those whom they would prefer as public servants during the next two years. In spite of the fact that it has been stated over and over again, that each voter will have the right to vote only for as many candidates as there are offices to be filled, yet there seems to be much misunderstanding upon this point.

for one ward councilor and for nine candidates for the school board. That will make 17 in all; but it must be remembered that nine ward councilors are to be elected and, therefore, on the final ballot on election day, there will be 12 candidates for councilor at large, 18 for ward councilor and 18 for school committee. These, with two candidates for mayor, will make a total of 50 names to be on the final ballot. The two candidates getting the highest vote in the majority contest will be the winners and twice the number to be elected to the council and school board will be nominated at the primaries next Tuesday.

There the great sifting process will begin and unless the voters exercise good judgment in selecting the best and most capable men or women, their mistakes are likely to be reflected in the final results as it is not always possible at the final election to correct the mistakes made at the primaries. It is, therefore, of the greatest importance that the voters shall attend the primaries in full numbers. The present prospect is that the primaries will bring the largest vote ever cast in the history of the city. That will have at least one good result in that the candidates chosen will reflect the choice of the electorate. Whether the selection be good or bad, the electorate alone will be responsible.

There has been much said of the necessity of better government and the hope has been expressed that the new charter would bring good results; but in order to attain that end, it is necessary that the voters discard absolutely all unfit candidates and vote only for those who are strictly honest, and who from training and experience are capable of conducting the city's business with tact, foresight and efficiency.

THE WAITING ROOM

Editor Sun:

I am glad you have taken up the question of having a waiting room at the square, as it is sorely needed by patrons of the street cars. I think it is a shame to have women and children exposed to the storms on the sidewalks while waiting for cars that are very often off schedule time. A waiting room is a public necessity and it will be much more so when the big auditorium is opened for public meetings at which thousands of people will be present. I hope you will succeed in forcing either the company or the city to establish a waiting room at the square.

Sincerely yours,

J. F. C.

In reference to the waiting room question, there is certainly great need of a waiting room at the square, and if the street railway company cannot provide one, then the city government should attend to it. The city provided a comfort station in the vicinity of the square; and during the coming winter, a waiting room will be needed quite as much. Since the waiting room was abolished, hundreds of people contracted severe colds, some of which developed into pneumonia, through waiting for cars on Merrimack square.

How long is this state of affairs to continue? That will depend upon the temper of the people and whether they will continue to tolerate present conditions. The lack of a waiting room is a serious handicap to business in the stores as women do not care to stand on the sidewalks waiting for cars while loaded with bundles in very cold or stormy weather.

The only solution of the difficulty is a waiting station that will save the public from dangerous exposure to the elements in very cold or stormy weather.

President Harding certainly made a strong and a really eloquent speech in opening the arms conference. He put the aims of the movement in the most convincing and appealing terms and apparently won the spontaneous applause of foreign delegations.

Thus far the conference goes well, but it has some very difficult matters to settle in the Far East before it can make any progress in the direction outlined by President Harding. Japan has penetrated certain parts of China, Mongolia and Siberia and her right in Shantung will be sternly disputed, although she claims to have come legally by the German rights in Shantung. Germany took that territory by force and compelled China to sign a treaty giving her control of the peninsula. Japan claims that in taking Shantung during the war, she has the same rights previously possessed by Germany; but no such decision was made by the executive council of the allies and the United States naturally should have some voice in such matters as we were associated with the allies on equal terms during the war.

This and other questions affecting the rights of Japan in certain islands in the Pacific, will all come up for settlement. But unless the differences of Japan and China can be reconciled and the "open door" policy maintained in China, the conference will accomplish little in the direction of limiting armaments. It will at least show the attitude of the various powers in reference to territorial designs and the possibility of future wars.

Two Stories

The story of the jobber, with a high-pitched voice, to whom the broker said, after a lift, "I am no longer on squeaking terms with you," fits in with the story of a chief clerk who had a row with his employer one afternoon. Next day when the clerk got to the office he was surprised to find that the head of the firm was not feeling well and would not be at the office that day. "O, dear me," said the clerk, "I hope it's nothing trivial."

Didn't Pay It

He was giving his new airplane a trial, and all went well until he found himself directly over a football field where a game was in progress. There was a sharp report and a moment later he was lying on the ground with a group of officials bending over him. As he slowly opened his eyes the club secretary, with a sigh of relief, touched him gently on the shoulder. "Ah," he murmured, "I'm glad you've come round! I don't think you paid your admission, did you?"

Matrimonial Advertisement

"I want to advertise for a man," said a woman approaching the advertisement counter in the newspaper office. "I want a man to carry coal in the winter, shovel snow, mow the lawn in summer, tend the flowers, mind the children, wash dishes, sweep the front porch, run errands, and all that kind of work—in short I want a man who will always be around the place and can be called upon for any kind of hard work he is to be a robust and reliable, of good appearance, not over 30—'Pardon, madame,' said the clerk, 'we cannot accept matrimonial advertisements.'"

Wise Old Lady

The old lady was timidly inspecting the stock of spectacles. "How much are these?" she asked, selecting a pair.

"A dollar and a half, madam."

"That's much more than the case!"

"Well, the case makes little difference. Suppose we say $1.15."

"What! Is the case only worth five cents?"

"Yes, madam," firmly.

"Well, I'm very glad to hear it! It's the case I want."

And placing a nickel on the counter, the old lady took up the case and walked timidly into the street, while the optician gasped for breath.

Looked Suspicious

A literary family to which a seventh child had just come to a country house, and for a time a good deal of the care of the other six children devolved upon the father, who had Spartan ideas as to the upbringing of his sons. One morning he carried his 7-year-old to the creek near his home to give him a cold plunge. The child objected justly to this proceeding, but was firmly held and dunked notwithstanding. At the instant of the dunking, however, a brawny hand seized the Spartan father by his shoulder and fung him back, while the angry voice of the farmer, who was his nearest neighbor, roared in his ears: "Hazel! None of that! I'll have the law on you for this!" For some time the father endeavored to convince the farmer that he was not trying to drown the child; but even then he was not wholly convinced. To the very last minute he kept shaking his head skeptically and saying: "Well, I dunno about that, I dunno. You got six besides this."

Age Speaks

My blood is cool within my veins, I am not rash or eager, No longer do I strive and storm, My mind is calm, my strength is meagre, Sometimes I am forgetful, I pass my days in quiet rest, Too passive to be fretful.

Life is synonymous with peace; I feel no urge to action, Gone are the days when I was hot To fight for freedom's faction, With tranquil mind I now look back At youthful aberrations; But I would give some years of life For some of youth's temptations!

MAN ABOUT TOWN

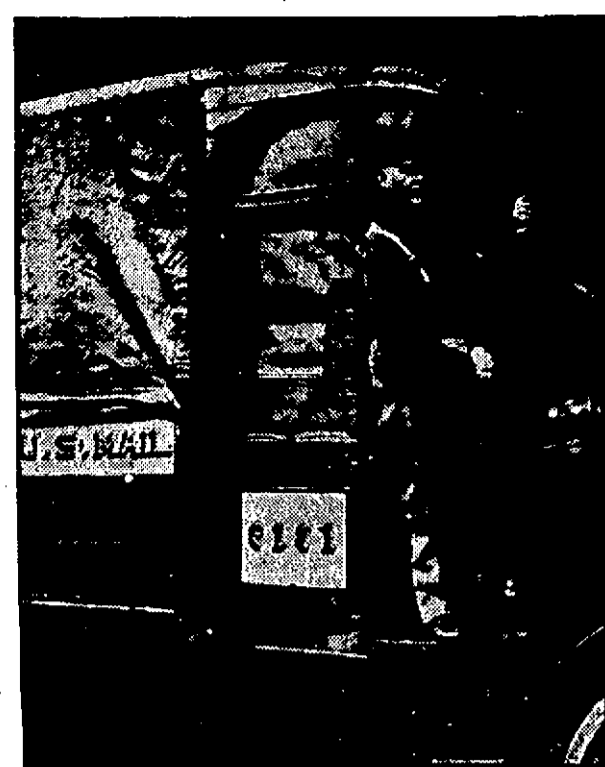

In making the rounds of city hall, it is difficult to find a place at this time where so much is done with so little fuss and feathers as in the election department. From the time the charter was accepted by the voters on Oct. 15 until last Wednesday, when the last of the candidates' nomination papers were filed, the election office was a very busy place, from 9 a. m. until closing time. Since Nov. 1 there have been six days of registration for the voters, not to speak of special sessions throughout the city, and the work of the commission has been practically doubled. Yet Chairman McKosker, the other commissioners and the rest of the office force have always found time to treat every visitor, no matter what his errand, with perfect courtesy, although their tempers must have been sorely tried on many occasions. Now, with a primary election coming which promises to keep them on the move from early on the morning of Nov. 22 until the returns are completed some time the following morning, not to speak of the intervening preliminaries such as fixing the candidates' positions on the ballot, the printing of ballots, the arrangement for election supplies and many other items too numerous to mention, they face the issue cheerfully, refusing to be disturbed by the prospect of some exciting incidents. They expect it should be mentioned that they are preparing to register voters for the city election, starting on the day after the primary.

Marshall Poch is acclaimed as the savior of New England today. He cannot come to Lowell, but if he did, he would get a rousing welcome as the greatest military genius of his time and a great democratic leader.

At 7:30 Tuesday evening there will be a meeting of the Ladies' sodality.

Rev. John A. Hogan sang the late mass at St. Columba's church yesterday. The early masses were celebrated by Rev. James P. Somers.

TO CARRY U. S. MAIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Preparations for guarding valuable mail at local postal stations and in transit with an armed force of marines were completed last night with the arrival of 201 marines under Lieut. Whittle, from Quantico, Va., making a force of 265 marines and four officers available for the postal authorities.

Capt. Norman Bates said last night that 65 marines will be used to guard the 40 trains leaving New York every day with valuable mail. The others will be used to guard the loading platforms at the various postal stations and ride with the drivers of mail trucks. A force of 75 men will be quartered at the Central postoffice.

Four armored trucks, which will be used for valuable mail only, will be ready for use the coming week.

MR. AND MRS. TUCK

HONORED BY FRANCE

PARIS, Nov. 14.—Edward Tuck, a retired American banker who makes his home in Paris, has been made a commander of the Legion of Honor, and his wife, who was Miss Julia Stell, an officer of the legion, in recognition of their work in caring for the wounded during the war.

Mr. Tuck, who was born in Exeter, N. H., in 1842, founded and maintains the Stell hospital at Ruell, and is a member of the advisory council of the American Red Cross in Europe.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem Youth Eternal

Lord, keep me young, though my joints get creaky,
My hair turn gray and my eyes go bad,
Though the valves of my heart get somewhat leaky,
Yet my spirit still be a spirit glad.
For arteries harden and thaws grow rusty
And the strength may be as a spring that's sprung,
But the mind and the soul may still be lusty
If You, dear Master, will keep me young.

Lord, keep me young, though the years may chill me
And love be only a tale that's told,
Life will have glamor and glow to thrill me
So long as the heart of me isn't old;
If my voice shall be too cracked for singing,
If my feet no more in the dance are flung,
I still can list to the laughter ringing
And find it good—if You keep me young.

Let me never sit in the corner, frowning
On fun and frolic and gaiety,
Let me rather smile at the joyous clowning
Of youth that merrily winks at me;
Then I shall not shudder at strength departed
Or growl and grumble with acid tongue,
But dream again with bliss light-hearted
If You, dear Master, will keep me young!

LOWELL MUSICIANS

ELECT OFFICERS

For the fifth consecutive year Timothy F. McCarthy was yesterday elected president of the Lowell Musicians' association, local 83, A. F. of M. The result surely attests to the esteem in which the president is held by his fellow members. Others to be elected were: William H. Looney, vice president; John F. Moran, secretary-treasurer; Eugene Cote, sergeant-at-arms; Thomas F. Poole, Henry Lavigne, Finer Biren, William Atken, Charles P. Miner, Bert Williams, John Gilchrist, executive board; Joseph H. Hibbard, trustee for three years.

VISITING ROTARIAN

WILL SPEAK HERE

Lowell Rotarians are planning to extend a hearty welcome to Rotarian "Ed" Kelly, of Springfield, Ohio, at tomorrow's noonday meeting at the Boys' club rooms.

He has just returned from a trip to Europe and the Far East, and is going to have something interesting to talk about in connection with business conditions across the ocean. Harold P. Howe is to entertain Mr. Kelly while he is in Lowell.

A feature of Tuesday's program after dinner will be an exhibition by Everett G. Ingraham, Massachusetts state pool champion.

Delegates to the national convention in New York city on December 10 and 11 were elected at the meeting of the Friends of Irish Freedom held last night. P. J. Mahoney and Timothy F. O'Rourke were the delegates elected. Thomas H. Daly was in the chair, and a great deal of routine business

WAS FOUND DEAD IN

CHAIR AT HER HOME

After missing her for several days neighbors of Mrs. Elizabeth Sherman, Saturday night, broke down her door at 7 Chesnut square and found the woman seated in a chair by the stove, dead.

Medical Examiner Thomas B. Smith pronounced death due to natural causes. Mrs. Sherman was 70 years old. She had lived alone for a long time and little is known of her family connections. Perusal of letters in the house causes the belief she has relatives in Billerica and Brookline.

MATHEW TEMPERANCE

INSTITUTE MEETING

At the regular meeting of the Mathew Temperance Institute yesterday afternoon arrangements were made for a Thanksgiving card party for the members, to be held on the Tuesday night before Thanksgiving. Turkey will be given as prizes to the winners. The committee in charge is: P. Frank Kelly, William F. Ryan and Thomas J. Durkin.

Considerable business was transacted at this meeting, two members being admitted and several propositions for membership received. Reports were heard from the ladies' night and musical show committees. President Arthur N. Flaherty was in the chair.

After the meeting Director Paul J. Angelo held a short rehearsal for the chorus who will participate in the coming musical show. Mr. Angelo outlined his plans for the event and promised to have all his music ready by next Sunday, when work will be commenced in earnest.

judges. At first, might appealed to the Cuban players. They knew the judge. As a matter of fact Ruth accomplished the very thing he set out to do. He made the Athleticists positive that he would manifestly unfair rule. I am positive Judge Lambeth entertains that opinion. It is almost certain that the Athleticists would have accepted the rule. They would probably have continued to exist. But Ruth had the courage of his convictions.

Origin of Rule

The rule was inspired in 1910 because of the energy showing made by the Athleticists in the world championship. After having won the world championship with what was admitted to be a "cheat" system, the Athleticists were beaten in six out of 10 games by the Cubans. The Athleticists did not desire a "cheat" system after the close of the season and were in poor physical condition. It was unimply in Cuba at the time that the Athleticists were in the world series to have the winner trimmed in such a decisive manner that they caused the legislators against cheating.

It is apparent why the managers do not desire a world champion team from Cuba. They know that the team is a cheat. However, to say that the

Before a crowd of 4000 spectators the Indians and Revere A.C. battled a 10-10 tie yesterday afternoon on Fair grounds. The game was hard fought throughout and the result was in doubt until the final whistle. The Indians got the jump on the opponents and did their scoring in EARLY PART of the game. The Revellers came strong in the final stages and by a great rally managed to level the score. Final goals by Barton : Stohl, touchdowns by Haggerty : Naylor, and goals from touchdown Melnyte and Naylor accounted for the winning both teams. For the pass, intercepted by Haggerty, probably the most thrilling feature of the game. Haggerty went into the air to go the ball, and tore down the field for yards for a touchdown.

 The game was not arranged until late Saturday afternoon, yet it proved one of the best of the season. The craft at quarterback ran the game well, while spectacular work was a turned in by Barton, Haggerty, Lockman and Donnellan. THE

In a fast and exciting game the Hingham mills team of Lawrence, defeated by the Massachusetts soccer team at Hunting park Saturday afternoon.

In the early stages of the game, the Lawrence team had things pretty much their own way, although it failed to push across a score. The Massachusetts mills team, however, found its stride as the game advanced and came on strong in the latter stages of the play.

Although the game was blighted in the second period, no fouls were registered. The Massachusetts mills team was strengthened by the presence of Wallace, former of the Amoskeag team, whose presence as a goal was expected. Yesterday afternoon before a ing of more than two thousand enthusiastic football fans the Celtic side, the home team, were able to secure a victory by a score of 1-0, achieved by defeating the Potters on their home grounds by the score of 2-1 to 0.

The Referees boys displayed conspicuous at every instant. The referee of the game came when John O'Connor caught a long forward pass and raced 40 yards for a touch-down.

In the third period Jimmie Cullen caught a long forward pass and raced forward pass and outstripped the rest of the whole play team for the score of a touch-down. The third came after a series of line plays.

After carrying the ball for a few days, their last touch-down, John O'Connor kicked the three goals of touch-downs. Final score, 2-1 to the Referees. Line-Scott, Captain.

Yale Favorite Against Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 14.—Should Harvard triumph over Yale on gridiron, at the Stadium Saturday, precedent in "big three" football history will be broken. The triangular series has never resulted in a tie, such as would be the case were Harvard, already beaten by Princeton, which in turn was defeated by Yale, become victor in the final game. The statistics which show the unbroken rule of no tie, show also that the crimson cloven has never defeated Yale after losing to Princeton, so that no Yale team which went into its last match undefeated for a season, as will be the case Saturday, has been beaten by Harvard.

The playing of "Hainlo" Maccher, son and Flagg stood out as the first three of the contest, the former player pulling off several big runs. The locals did not start too heavy scoring until the second half. The touchdown was made in the first half, but immediately after kickoff beginning the final half of the game the "Tex" men went at it hard and scored several times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 11.—At a meeting of the American roller polo players held in the city of Providence today the Portland club handed in its resignation to take effect next Saturday. The team is completing the current week. The season given for leaving the league was the high cost of transportation. It was stated that the Portland club was paid for transportation about $200 a week for trans-population alone.

The constitution of the players, Hob Hart and Harold will go to Woonsocket and Barney Doherty will go to the Lawrence club. The latter players will probably report some time this week.

To fill the vacancy caused by the leaving of the Portland team, all three were admitted to the league and will play its first game a week from Monday night. The Fall River team will be composed of the following players: Ed Williams of Woonsocket, Earl Pierce, a brother of Pierce of Providence, Ed Brown, now playing for the Portland team, and a brother of Lawrence team, and Heunifer of Portland's goal tend.

TEXTILE ENDS SEASON WITH 35 TO 0 VICTORY

Playing its last game of the present season before a home crowd the Lowell Textile gridironers pinned a 35 to 0 defeat on the 24 year team from the Lowell Agricultural School on the local campus Saturday afternoon.

The visitors were outwitted by the host players but the game, although a lopsided score, would have been one-sided, was an interesting one to watch, the "Axgie" combination threatening on several occasions to cross the Lowell goal line. However if the first team from Lowell had been left intact towards the end of the game the score would undoubtedly have been larger.

Coach Howell in the second half decided to give some of his second string players a chance and put on the field a team mainly made up of substitute men. These held their own with the aggressive

The Butters and football team would like to hear from any 11th or 12th grade boys in the city. Rangers, St. Patrick's School preferred. Send all challenges through the editor or to the Butters. The Butters will have an evening between 6 and 8 o'clock.

The game last Friday showed that the Lowell team is a good fighting up to the last minute of play even though beaten. The Lowell high team has done well in the rough fighting. Every man on the team fought the best he knew how and it was a very interesting game. The features of the game to Coach Cayley. FORMER LOWELL MAN

For A. P. at Reception to
Jap Delegates

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (by the Associated Press).—Secretary Hughes' pronouncements at the inaugural session of the argument conference "have clarified" the situation, Admiral Baron Kato declared at a reception given last night at the Shoreham by Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador. The reception was arranged to present journalists who are reporting the proceedings of conference to the Japanese plenipotentiaries and had been postponed until last night on account of the assassination of Premier Hara. A number of distinguished Americans, not of the journalistic profession, also were present.

Baron Shidehara introduced Admiral Kato and Prince Tokugawa, and then called upon Frederick R. Martin, general manager of the Associated Press, a former Lowell man, to respond as "the representative of American journalists."

Admiral Kato pointed out that up to the present Japan has had fears which have caused her to continue naval construction, but with fears on both sides obliterated, he was confident that an agreement, so far as Japan and the United States were concerned, could not fail to come.

Prince Tokugawa declared that if any one feared the failure of the conference before leaving Japan that fear had been dispelled since arriving in the United States.

Mr. Martin responding declared that the press was "a powerful factor" in the conference, since its function was "to tell the waiting world what you do here, who leads, who follows, and the results." The "regulators" of the fourth estate, Mr. Martin said, who measured their service "not by the column but by the year," pledged the conference their best efforts so that the world might profit by the deliberations here.

—"Diapepsin"

"Pape's Diapepsin" really does put bad stomachs in order—really does overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in the stomachs—that's just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stomach lumps, you belch gas and crampic sour, undigested food and acid, head is dizzy and aches remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distresses vanish. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous—and the joy is its harmlessness. A large sixty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin is worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It's the most efficient and most efficient antacid and stomach regulator in the world.—Adv.

WOOD ALCOHOL CAUSES
3-DEATHS IN 24 HOURS

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 14.—Three deaths from wood alcohol poisoning have occurred in this city within the last 24 hours. Saturday night J. W. Fay, 40, of Lynn, Mass., a barber, was found dead in his room in Free street, a medical examiner pronouncing death due to drinking the alcohol. James Tracy, 50, of Swampscott, Mass., Fay's room mate, told the police that he warned Fay against drinking any more of the stuff but late yesterday afternoon Tracy was taken from the same house ill from wood alcohol poisoning and died soon after he reached the hospital. In the morning Frank A. Latham of this city was picked up in Monument square by the police and rushed to the hospital, where he died.

WILL HELP TO RAISE

Miss Frances Masterson, assisted by the following committee: Miss Rachel Woolworth, Mrs. Cyrus Woodman, Mrs. Heber Cuthbert, Miss Anna McCarron, Miss Blanche Cheney, Miss Louise Jenkinson, Mrs. William Liddell, Miss Milton Miller, Miss Charlotte Murkland, Mrs. Benjamin Pouzner, Miss Mary Breed.

December 1919. At the Colonial theatre, the Harvard Dramatic club will again give a performance for the benefit of the fund. This is the first appearance of this club in Lowell.

Radcliffe was founded to give Harvard instruction to women. From the opening of the college in 1879 with a group of 21 young women meeting in Appleton Way, Cambridge, her purpose has been undeviating—to give the students the best education attainable.

With the generous co-operation of the President and Fellows of Harvard college, instruction in Radcliffe is given entirely by members of the Harvard teaching force; a large number of even the elementary courses are conducted by full professors. Radcliffe students have thus always had an opportunity to work under some of the greatest scholars of the country. With a small endowment Radcliffe has been enabled to give her students unparalleled opportunities. But this condition has been owing to the devoted interest of the Harvard faculty. The time has come when Radcliffe can no longer in self-respect impose upon their generosity; she must give them a recompense more nearly adequate. Moreover, with the tutorial system, whereby instructors are giving more time to individual students—a system of endless possibilities which Radcliffe alone among the women's colleges is employing—there is an added expense. If Radcliffe is to hold the position which she has had in the past, an increased endowment is imperative.

At 1:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon a telephone alarm was sent in for a slight blaze in the bakery at the corner of Allen and Moody streets. At 6:57 o'clock yesterday morning a telephone alarm was sent in for what was believed to be a fire at 98 Fenwick street, but when the firemen reached the premises they failed to find any blaze. The automatic alarm at the U. S. Tobbin shop in Rogers street accidentally went off at 2:55 o'clock yesterday morning, giving the firemen a needless run to the premises.

GENERAL GUINNEY COUNCIL

A meeting of General Guinney council was held Sunday afternoon, Nov. 12, in the Guild hall. It was called to order by President Mullin at 3:30 o'clock. Communications were received and accepted by the council. A committee of five was appointed to accompany the president to the meeting in Boston. There will be a dance, under the auspices of the council, held in Old Fellows hall Wednesday evening, Nov. 16. It is hoped that this dance will be well attended. It was voted that the meetings be held on the second and fourth Sunday afternoons of every month instead of on Thursday evening. There being no other business, the meeting adjourned to meet Sunday afternoon, Nov. 27, at 3:30 o'clock.

OFFICE BUILDING AND HOME OF FAIRBURN'S MARKET

Rapid Growth of Fairburn Business
in Merrimack Square

Runels Building, Now Known as the Fairburn Building,
Has Undergone Extensive Alterations and is Now
Lowell's Latest Office Building

Lowell's long list of up-to-date office buildings was increased today by the formal opening of the thoroughly renovated and reconstructed four-story structure in the heart of the Merrimack square business district, formerly known as the Runels building and now proudly bearing the name of one of the city's foremost mercantile establishments—Fairburn.

Here is a practically new office building, in the center of the city, equipped with every modern improvement for the comfort of occupants. The four stories contain 50 modern well-lighted offices, and "Service" has been chosen for the Fairburn motto. It is an ideal location in every way, as customers of Fairburn's markets already know. Many of the new offices in the renovated building have been leased by permanent parties. The building is sanitary, well heated and ventilated and "modern" in every part of it from the ground floor entrance to fireproof roofing. In fact, fireproof materials enter very largely into the work of reconstruction.

"Fairburn's market—on the Square." An old familiar name—and not so old, either—with a business title and meritorious appellation for many years popular as a truthful slogan and sure drawing card for thousands of pure food shoppers in Lowell and suburban territory. The advancing years have failed to affect the vigorous quality of this well known concern's splendid constitution, though, strictly speaking, Fairburn's is not at all old in comparison with some business organizations who can add a larger number of years to their mercantile life index cards.

Today the Fairburn market is reaping the reward of energetic management, conscientious service and constant effort to meet the demands of an exacting purchasing public by providing only high class foodstuffs at the lowest possible prices consistent with good management, coupled with an earnest desire, first, last and all the time, to cater to every family pocket-book with the best possible results for all concerned.

The remarkable growth of this Lowell institution—peculiarly Lowell's in every sense of the word—has aroused the admiration of all who have an affectionate interest in ambitious local business concerns. Springing from a mercantile establishment of small area in the square, under the splendid management of that able and far-seeing marketman, the late George Fairburn, the Fairburn's of today, with its spacious quarters, "L" shaped, and with commodious entrances on both Merrimack and Bridge streets, is a monument to rare business ability crowned with success honestly earned and fully supported by the public.

In the earlier years, back in 1892, Fairburn's was located at one time on East Merrimack street. Then came a step forward, when quarters were engaged about where the Page establishment is today. The store was conducted there with continuing success, meeting the increasing demands of more and more customers, until arrangements were made to enter part of the present quarters. Again the store was moved into temporary quarters on East Merrimack street early in 1913, while the better location was being made ready.

In 1914, George Fairburn, founder of this great business, passed away, leaving the prosperous market and its increasing clientele of customers in the hands of his family. A corporation was formed in 1915, the members being George C. Fairburn, manager; Mrs. Annie Fairburn Collins and Mrs. Florence Jordan. It was known as "Fairburn's Market, Inc."

The following year the market proprietors acquired another addition for its quarters, which were fast becoming too small to meet the demands of the purchasing public. In 1918 the store of Grocer P. D. Munn was bought outright on Bridge street, thus giving the Fairburns the well known "L" arrangement that so many customers appreciate today for its handy shopping facilities. With entrances on both Bridge and Merrimack streets, and ample room for quick passage through all of the aisles around the attractive food shopping counters, this store is today splendidly equipped to meet all trade demands for some time to come.

Came the year 1921, when, on Feb. 21, the Fairburns decided upon the purchase of the Runels building, the four-story structure on the corner of the square where the two food stores are located. Extensive alterations were started promptly, the Fairburns demanding an up-to-date office building completely equipped with every modern facility for the comfort of tenants. Today the work of reconstruction is practically completed, and Lowell has a brand new office building and one it can be proud of.

When the Fairburns bought the entire building, there were two halls on the third floor and two on the upper one. These have been made over into large offices, and now the building has 50 well lighted office quarters, many of them leased quickly by waiting tenants.

The building has many novel equipments for the comfort of its occupants. The main entrance has been enlarged and the hallway has a "dado" flooring of neat design. The walls are lined with small tiles part way up the sides. There are numerous electric lights. The entrance to the new elevator is wide and ample for all who use the building.

The main stairway is a marvel of beauty, being of expensive marble of beautiful color. The stair rail of marble is supported by several dozen hand-carved marble posts, each of different design.

The new electric elevator is to run each day from 7:30 a. m. until 10 p. m., with the exception of Sundays, when the hours will be from 7:30 until 6. The electric lighting arrangements are adequate in every way, the latest improvements for lighting each hall and room being installed.

The street doors are of rich cherry, with wide strips of polished brass plating to protect them from the buffets of pedestrians and ample in structure to withstand hard usage.

The offices are handsomely equipped with every fitting to be found in modern office buildings. The walls are of buff color. Each window in the building is fitted with metal weather strips. The doors hold frames of special malleable glass which reflects the light but does not show shadows.

Hot and cold water piping is of the very best material and design. There are numerous electric wire "plugs," and also an extra feed wire installed for emergency service requirements. A feature that will be appreciated by tenants of the new office building is a Cutler mail chute running from the top floor to the lower hall, where a bronze letter collection box has been installed.

The hallway on the first floor contains a huge directory giving the names and occupations of each office lessee. Another feature of value to strangers will be found in the hall directories on the wall of each floor landing, the list containing the names of office occupants on that floor only.

Visitors to Lowell will have no trouble locating the new Fairburn building. On the large "top step" (as before you push back the swinging doors and enter the lower hall to take the electric elevator, you can read the name, set in brick-red letters in the tile flooring:

"Fairburn Building."

The new quarters merit the inspection of every citizen who has any pride in Lowell's progress as exemplified so profoundly by this great market organization that is today a living, vigorous monument to its founder, George Fairburn.

CONTRACTORS ON BUILDING

The general contractor was the T. W. Johnson Co., of Andover street, who had complete charge of renovating and making the Fairburn building into a handsome block and ideal trading center.

The sub-contractors were the F. S. Payne Co., who installed the modern and up-to-date electric elevator, and Rice & Co., Inc., of Mt. Vernon street, who furnished the iron work and elevator fronts.

The painting and decorating was done by the Lowell Wall Paper Co., of Appleton street, under the direction of Chester E. Chase.

The beautiful entrance and stairway of tile and marble is the work of John J. Dwyer, of the Boston firm of the same name.

The shades for every window in the building were furnished through the Robertson Co. of Prescott street, who have equipped many large buildings with similar goods and office furniture.

The Hobson & Lawler Co., of Middle street installed the heating apparatus, putting in a brand new steam-heating plant and doing all the piping.

The Goodwin Screen & Window Co. equipped the entire building with weather strips of modern design.

Prominent Occupants

In splendid offices on the fourth floor is located John J. Pickman, one of the oldest and best known attorneys in Lowell. He was formerly located in the Hildreth building. The firm of John J. and Fred S. Harvey also occupies a large and attractive suite with John J. Pickman and Richard Babcock Walsh as associates. Each has easy access to all offices through room No. 110. The library in the Harvey firm is one of the largest and most complete in Massachusetts.

Close to the offices of the Harvey firm are those of John T. Masterson and those of Maurice Barlosky. Mr. Masterson is a lawyer long established and Mr. Barlosky has just recently opened his office after successfully passing examinations for the bar a short time ago.

Philip J. Grafton, one of the most successful real estate and insurance men in Lowell, has a splendidly equipped suite of offices on the fourth floor, where also are located the offices of the F. S. Payne company, elevator builders, who equipped the Fairburn building with the latest thing in passenger lifts.

Edward J. Donnelly, member of the school committee and a real estate dealer, has excellent offices on this floor. He represents the Massachusetts Bonding Co.

The laboratory of the Acme Dental works is also located on the fourth floor.

On the third floor, the Nashoba Construction Co., general contractors, and the firm of Dwyer & Slawey have adjoining offices. George Legend is president of the Nashoba company, which has offices in numerous leading cities. John J. Dwyer, the assessor, and Charles Slawey compose the firm of Dwyer & Slawey, real estate and insurance.

In the corner of the third floor office section are the quarters of James A. Sheehan, one of the younger real estate and insurance men, who has made a fine reputation as one of the best salesmen in Lowell.

The office of the John Hancock Life Insurance company, Lowell branch, occupies all of the third floor office space on the Bridge street side of the building. All departments of this company are under the excellent supervision of Supt. George H. Spillane.

On the right of the stairway is located the office of the National Cash Register company, C. D. A. Grasse being resident manager.

The Marion Studio and the Robert Wood Engraving company have very large and highly attractive quarters on this floor, which brings two popular Lowell concerns under one roof and management. The studio has been decorated under the direction of Chester Chase, who claims that no other studio in New England is more attractive.

The second floor is given more practically to professional people, prominent among whom are Dr. J. J. Dziura, physician, and Dr. John F. Golden, dentist, and the combined offices of Drs. Masse and Blanchard, dentists.

The corner store on Bridge and Merrimack streets is occupied by A. W. Dow's Drug Store. The Dow's name has been connected locally with the drug business for 75 years.

MRS. GOULD DROPS DEAD

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 14.—Mrs. George Jay Gould, wife of the capitalist, dropped dead yesterday while playing golf with her husband on the private links at Georgiancourt, their country home.

She had just finished a drive at the fifth tee and with her husband was watching the flight of the ball when she collapsed without uttering a word. Mr. Gould turned to speak to her and was astonished to see her lying across the tee. Thinking his wife merely had stumbled, Mr. Gould hastened to assist her to her feet, but when she failed to speak to him he became alarmed and sent the callie for physicians.

Drs. George W. Lawrence and Irwin R. Hance reached the links quickly. A brief examination convinced them that Mrs. Gould was dead and that heart disease had been the cause.

Mrs. Gould appeared to be in excellent health when she walked to the links with her husband a few minutes before noon. She showed no traces of exhaustion and chatted with her husband as they progressed to the fifth hole. Apparently Mrs. Gould had over-exerted herself and had made no mention of it to Mr. Gould.

Mr. and Mrs. Gould attended services yesterday morning in All Saints' Memorial church and on their return to Georgiancourt dressed for the golf links.

News of their mother's death was sent immediately to the seven children, five of whom were in New York. The other two, Lady Decies, formerly Helen Vivian Gould, is in London, and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, formerly Marjorie Gould, lives in Philadelphia. A cable message was sent to Lady Decies. Mrs. Drexel reached Georgiancourt in the afternoon as did the other children. Mrs. Edith C. Wainwright, Miss Gloria Gould and Kingston, George and Jay.

Won Fame on Stage

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The body of Mrs. George Jay Gould, formerly Edith Maughan Kingston of Brooklyn, who died suddenly of heart disease yesterday while playing golf with her husband at their country estate in Lakewood, N. J., was brought to the Gould home here today.

The beautiful oratorio, "The Prodigal Son," was presented before a large congregation in the First Baptist church by the members of the choir and chorus last evening. The soloists were Mr. Reid, bass, and Mrs. H. L. Large, soprano; Mrs. Eva Stokes, contralto; Albert Guerin, tenor. Wilfred Kershaw was at the organ. The oratorio was given under the able direction of Warren T. Reid. At the conclusion of the singing Pastor Babcock expressed the appreciation of the congregation to the members of the choir and chorus. At present the pastor is treating in a series of sermons two important subjects, "Why I believe what I believe" is the topic for his morning sermon, while in the evening addresses, Dr. Babcock speaks on "Household Religion."

ELIOT UNION CHURCH

In his sermon at Eliot Union church last night, Dr. Tutbill pleaded for the cultivation of a taste for the fine things in life drawing a striking contrast between the "jazz" music now so popular and exquisite music. The speaker's talk was preceded by harpist solos rendered by Miss Lucille Delcourt of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The ball went sailing in the air, it fell to earth, they knew not where. But what the dickens did they care? The game was over!

ARMS CONGRESS DELEGATES BUSY

Hope to Agree Today On At Least a Tentative Program
of Procedure

Next General Session Tomorrow—Delegates Study
Hughes' Proposals

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—With the next general session of the conference on the limitation of armaments scheduled for tomorrow, heads of the various delegations hoped to agree today on at least a tentative program for procedure. For the purpose of arranging preliminary details, two important meetings were to be held during the day—one this morning to discuss the program for armament negotiations, the other this afternoon to shape up procedure for the forthcoming discussions of far eastern questions.

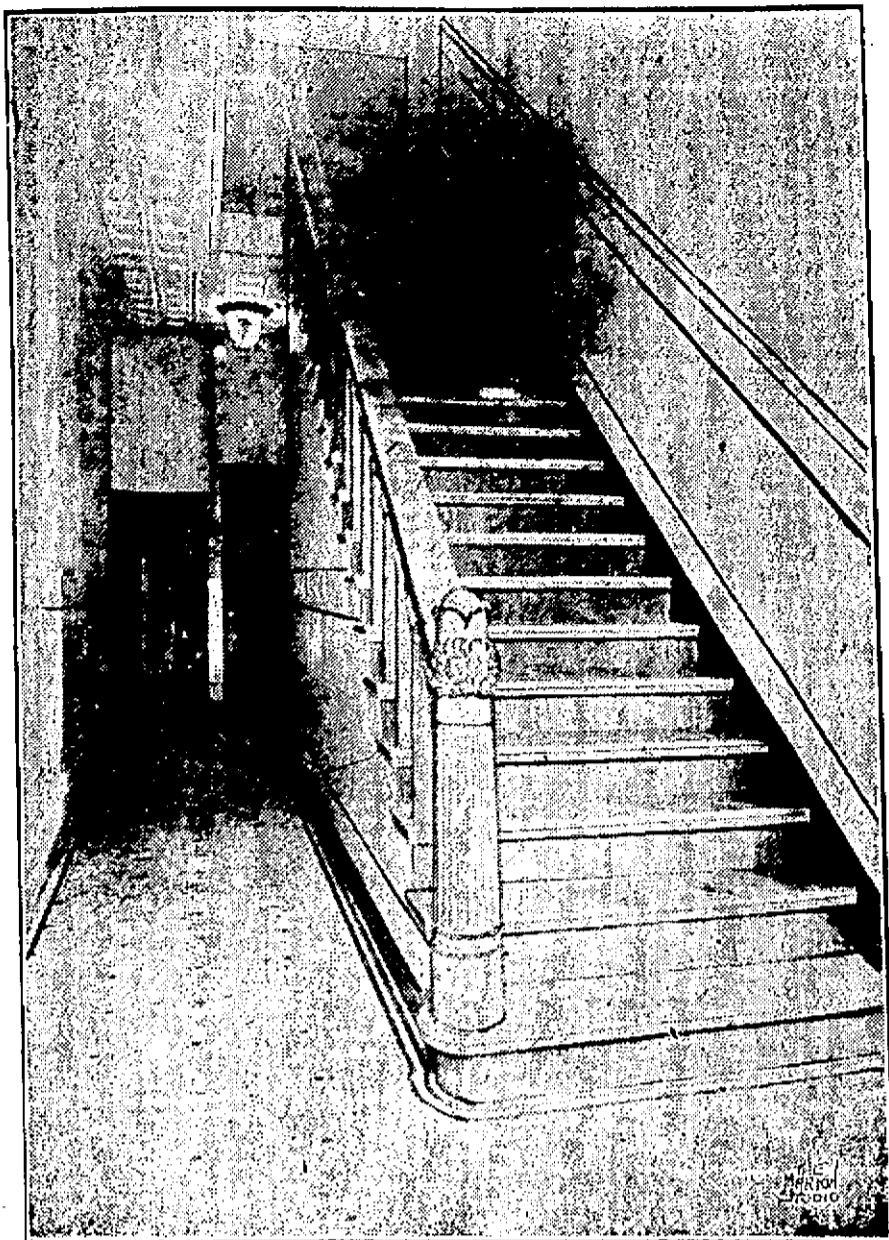

Heads of the American, British, French, Italian and Japanese delegations as members of the committee on program and procedure for limitation of armaments, were to be participants in the morning meeting, while heads of the delegations of all nine nations represented at the conference are members of the committee on program and procedure for far eastern questions, which meets in the afternoon.

A meeting of the American advisory committee of 21 also had been called for this afternoon at which Chairman Sutherland will announce the personnel of the six sub-committees already authorized to handle special subjects before the conference.

Preliminary to further conference sessions, delegates today continued their study of Secretary Hughes' proposal for the immediate reduction of the British and United States and Japanese fleets and for a 10-year naval holiday. While spokesmen for Great Britain and Japan continued to confine themselves to guarded comment, the American delegation was encouraged by the attitude of the representatives of the other two powers affected by the proposal, and were confident that there was at least no possibility of a flat rejection of the plan, and that it would form the basis of whatever agreement is reached.

U. S. Makes Greatest Cut
Naval officers in discussing the proposal emphasized as an outstanding feature the fact that the United States would be left without battle cruisers, while Japan and Great Britain would each retain four of these ships, the newest addition to capital fighting craft. By suggesting such a program, it appears that the United States sought to convey concrete assurance of its unselfish purpose with which it has entered the conference as declared by President Harding in his opening address.

London Comment
LONDON, Nov. 14.—The American

plan for a 10-year naval holiday and the scrapping of all but a limited number of warships calls for much less sacrifice on the part of Great Britain than by the United States and Japan, in the view of the naval correspondent of the Daily Mail.

The proposed sacrifice, he says, "would be a heavy one for Japan and the United States, but comparatively trifling for Great Britain, as the latter has not yet incurred any great outlay on the four new ships just ordered. The real question is whether Japan will be content to accept conditions which placed her navy in a position of permanent inferiority."

Other correspondents point out that Great Britain has already taken the lead in the reduction of naval armaments, her progressive scrapping of warships since the armistice having amounted up to last April to more than 500 vessels.

Thus far little expert opinion, as distinct from editorial views, has been published here.

All other news is subordinated to despatches describe the effect produced

In America and the attitude of the various delegates toward the American proposals. The Washington despatches in this morning's newspapers. The speeches of President Harding and Mr. Hughes are fully reported, while other proceedings of the arms conference, was among the questions examined by today's feeling of the heads of delegations.

PACKING AND BUNDLING TIPS

All Packages Should Be Enclosed in Containers of Suitable Size

Railway Express Company Agent Reports on "Perfect Package" Month

Charles F. Langley, local agent of the American Railway Express company, today made his second report on "Perfect Package" month to the Lowell chamber of commerce. The campaign is on throughout the nation, express companies and freight agents co-operating in splendid fashion with the idea of educating the shipping public as to the correct methods of packing and bundling.

The report given out by Secretary Wells this noon is as follows:

During the week ending Nov. 12, 2441 out-bound shipments were received by the local American Railway express agency. Of this number of shipments, express officials noted 23 exceptions, shipments checked imperfect for one or more reasons. Shippers of these 23 articles were notified of the defects.

What is meant by a "perfect package" is a shipment, the contents of which are carefully packed to prevent any shifting in handling, with all the fragile parts fully protected. It should be enclosed in a container of suitable size, strength and construction to meet classification requirements. The shipments should be legibly marked. Any old marks should be effectually erased and full local address of consignee, city and state shown. The name and address of the shipper should be also shown, and if the value of the shipment declared by the shipper exceeds $50, or in case of a shipment weighing over 100 pounds, if the value exceeds 50 cents per pound, the value must be noted on the shipment.

One classification rule of the express company states: "All shipments must be so prepared or packed as to insure safe transportation, with ordinary care on the part of the express company."

In District Court

ter he came to Lowell from the New Hampshire town with $510 in his possession, he said.

He could not describe any of the alleged hold-up thieves, but emphatically asserted the money was taken away from him by a gang of young men hanging around the corner where this particular saloon is located. He could offer no resistance, he said. It was late and when they seized his roll they fled.

Asked how he got along between Wednesday night and Saturday night, when he was arrested without money the defendant stated he pawned about $25 worth of clothes he had bought in Manchester.

He gave the court the name of the pawnshop.

Connolly presented a pitiful appearance. His face was badly cut and bruised. Judge Enright, after carefully listening to his story, advised him to go to the house of correction for a week that he might be restored to normal condition. The case was therefore put over to Saturday for final disposition, the defendant in the meantime to be confined in the Cambridge institution. The justice then turned to the police and made his statement in reference to the gang of rowdies said to operate in that district. He said he was personally acquainted with existing conditions there and had tried to remedy conditions by sentencing several men whom he knew to be leading factors in disturbances caused in that section.

It is believed the police will maintain a stricter watch in this particular locality.

Incidentally, the justice listened to some pathetic stories, related by wives of defendants, involving sufferings, threats and general abuse resulting from drunken conduct.

Anton Ppyper of Church street was threatening to kill his wife, mother and seven children last night when the police were called and he was taken to a cell. He was booked for drunkenness. Today he was given a suspended sentence of three months to the house of correction.

Wife and stepson testified against Anton Pelyga, also charged with being drunk. His wife would not live with him any more, she told the judge. Pelyga, asked by the court if he would agree to live apart from her and give her $2 a week, refused to concur with such arrangement, thereby drawing a three months' term in the house of correction. He appealed. Just before session adjourned, however, Pelyga asked the court if he might pay $5 a week and live from her. Judge Enright allowed him to leave, the appeal being withdrawn and sentence suspended.

A suspended sentence of three months to the house of correction on Dennis J. Murphy, drunkenness, was ordered revoked by Judge Enright when the defendant's name was called and the police told the court he was on probation for a recent offense.

Philip Jalbert's wife told the court her husband is drunk practically every night, although he works during the day. Jalbert promised he would reform, so the justice imposed a two months' suspended sentence.

Drunken Offenders
Being drunk twice in three days does not constitute two offenses the court ruled in district session this morning when a police officer charged Dennis Collins, of Salem, N. H., with drunkenness on two counts.

"Can't make two offenses out of one," Judge Enright stated, "this was the same drunk."

Collins' companion, Joseph Carov, also of Salem, was likewise arraigned and both were fined $10 and given a week's time to pay it. The police officer, who arrested Collins claimed the defendant was drunk on two days, but would not say if it was the same drunk. But the court ruled it was.

These two defendants were only two of 21 arrested for intoxication over the week-end. Eleven were released by the probation officer, being their first offense.

"Go back to Manchester and stay there," Thomas Lindsay was commanded by the court when he appeared before the bench on a drunkenness complaint. It seemed Thomas was told that once before, but didn't heed the order, as he came down over the week-end and imbibed a bit freely of the intoxicating fluid. He received two months to the house of correction, suspended for six months.

In the non-support case of Peter St. George, a second complaint, the police testified the defendant appropriated for his own use money earned and taken to her mother by a young daughter who is working. The little girl related her story to the judge following which Peter was given four months to the house of correction.

Other Offenders
Clayton H. Stevens was held in $300 bail for his appearance in court tomorrow. He is charged with the larceny of $110 from Adelard Langlois, of Moody street, yesterday. The police have not been ready to try the case.

Albert Shasheen, charged with assault and battery on his wife, requested a continuance that he might obtain a lawyer. His wife also requested a postponement stating she was in ill health. The court set Nov. 15 as the trial date.

Frank Sbis, of Lakeview avenue, did put up a fence as he was ordered to do by the court ten days ago to replace a similar enclosure he was charged with having destroyed, but according to counsel for the complainant, the fence he put up is only a "makeshift affair," and nothing like the fence that originally stood there. Sbis several weeks ago was ordered to move out of a Lakeview avenue house by a new landlord. The tenant didn't take to the idea very kindly, it was brought out in court when the case came up, although he did move, but only after wrecking a fence he said he had put up for the landlord.

Judge Enright gave him a week's time to restore the fence.

In this case a mixup, due to inability to understand English, developed.

When Sbis's name was called a man walked up from a bench to the witness stand and through an interpreter several questions were put to him. The court and the clerk thought the man was the defendant but when the supposed "Sbis" shrugged his shoulders and told the interpreter he was the owner of the house and the man who had been injured by the fence wrecking. Then the mistake was realized. Sbis could not be located and the case was continued to Wednesday.

LOWELL MAN INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT
WOBURN, Nov. 14.—Peter Reardon, 25, of 23 Beech street, Lowell, was brought to the Choate Memorial hospital about 5 o'clock last night by Woburn police officers who were summoned to Burlington, where Mr. Reardon's car was overturned. He is suffering from a lacerated wrist and scalp wounds.

Mr. Reardon's car was ascending a hill near Butters farm when it overturned. Two other passengers in the car escaped injury.

FOURTH DEGREE K. OF C.
Arrangements are practically completed for the "stag" party and reunion of the members of Bishop Delany Assembly, Fourth Degree, K. of C. at the Hotel Waverley, Nov. 17 and 18.

William H. Gallagher allows that it will be a success. The committee in charge has received quite a number of cards from the members, indicating that they will be present and many more are expected. An old fashioned dinner will be served and an entertainment of a high order will be given. The committee includes: Mr. Knights, Thomas J. Fitzgerald, Andrew Molloy, Thomas J. Fitzgerald, Edward F. Saunders, Thomas B. Delaney and John J. O'Connor.

Verdict for Plaintiff

is a plumber, was driving his machine down Chelmsford street when Joseph Miller stopped him and asked him for a ride. The two men rode on until they were opposite the store of John Mulligan when, according to both Mr. Gould and Abraham Wolfe, a witness for the plaintiff, Gould stopped in reply to a signal by Wolfe. The plaintiff alleged the defendant and his brother Carl, both plumbers, jumped into his machine and severely beat him.

Gould gave his version of the affair on the stand and said he was incapacitated from work for three months, the result of the alleged beating.

Wolfe corroborated Gould's story and said he, Wolfe, attempted to stop the fight. Elj Alfred, Wolfe's son-in-law, took the stand and said he was called to the fight by Mr. Wolfe and that he succeeded in pulling one of the Fineberg brothers off of Mr. Gould. Dr. Ginsberg was called as an expert witness and testified as to his treatment of the plaintiff.

Joseph Miller, who was riding with Gould, was a witness for the defense and testified Gould said to him he was going to stop his machine and give the Finebergs all they were looking for.

Myer Fineberg was called and said he tried to stop a fight between his brother and Gould. Carl Fineberg was not a witness. John Mulligan was called as a witness for the defense and told of seeing the fight from his doorway.

Witnesses for the plaintiff say they saw a brick in Carl's hand and Wolfe claimed Carl picked the brick up from a pile in his, Wolfe's, yard. It is said Gould was struck in the back of the head with the brick.

Settled Out of Court
Atty. B. J. Maloney announced today that he had settled out of court two cases, actions of contract brought by S. Belanger & Sons Co. against Nicholas Cazanas. The cases, listed to come up for trial before the present session of the superior court, are the result of work done on the Greek school in Nashua. One case, called for $1200 and the other for $100.

OUT OF DANGER
Thilla and Stephen Dixon, aged 5 and 7 years, who were overcome by illuminating gas at the home of their parents in Waverley late Saturday afternoon, are reported today as being out of danger at St. John's hospital. The accident occurred while the parents were away.

CANDIDATES ACTIVE

SATURDAY NIGHT

The expectations of the public were realized Saturday night, when many of the candidates started out in earnest to place their candidacies before the people at various points throughout the city. Fervid oratory, philippics, diatribes against officialdom, past and present, and utopian plans for the administration of the municipality's affairs were poured forth for the delectation of the audiences at each point. Large crowds gathered everywhere to hear the orators.

At Toward's corner the program was especially diverting. This is one of the favorite forums in municipal campaigns and on Saturday night the attendance was all that could be desired. Candidates for every office were among the speakers at this spot and each was treated with a strictly impartial but none the less cordial interest. Arguments of every variety and on almost every subject were presented, and all were warmly applauded.

Saturday night was but a preliminary, however, of what is yet to come. On every night this week and on Monday night of next week the candidates will be equally as active, and on Saturday and Monday nights, with the campaign drawing to a close, they will outvie each other in clamoring for the public's attention. Even yet all the candidates have not been heard from, including many who have won considerable fame as outdoor campaigners. At least four of the mayoralty candidates are adept at stump-speaking and up to date but two of them have made their bow. It was rumored at city hall this morning that Commissioner Donnelly will make his debut as a public speaker before the end of the week, but while Mr. Donnelly would not absolutely deny the report he refused to give it his confirmation. Mayor Thompson has definitely decided to make a start some night this week.

THE RED CROSS ANNUAL ROLL CALL
Several Lowell stores have been designated to receive subscriptions to the Red Cross annual roll call campaign which is to continue until Thanksgiving and for the distribution of literature and supplies. Chairman George R. Chandler in charge of the drive in Lowell and vicinity announces that the following stores will act as "sub-stations" for the receiving of subscriptions:

The J. L. Chaffoux Co., Green's Drug store, A. G. Pollard Co., Bon Marche Dry Goods Co., the Gagnon Co., the S. H. Harrison Co., 166 Central street, and M. L. and A. Caron, 514 Merrimack street.

Removal of Bodies of Americans

BREST, Nov. 14.—Disinterment of the bodies of American soldiers buried here during the war has been completed. The army authorities have forwarded to the four permanent American cemeteries in France 1080 bodies, removal of which to the United States was not requested by relatives.

THE NEW ENGLAND HUNTERS CLUB

The New England Fox Hunters' Club started its 15th annual fall meet and hunt this morning, opening headquarters in Winchendon for the first time. The hunt will continue until about Saturday night. Among the local hunters is George Flag who is to act as assistant master of hounds. Reservations were made for 114 hunters at the Winchendon hotel, where the hunters round up at night and tell the stories that make the hunting game interesting. Card tournaments will start after 5 o'clock and everybody is ready for the week's campaign. More than 40 hounds are on the trail.

The territory around Winchendon is said to be a splendid fox hunting section and other game also abounds there. Tomorrow evening, officers for 1921-22 will be elected when the foundry election is called. Wednesday evening the people of Winchendon are going to hold a country dance and all the hunters have taken along their dress suits with their khaki outfits. George S. Reed of Woonsocket, R. I. is president of the club, Dr. H. B. Osgood of Fitchburg, secretary, and F. O. Rule of Nashua, master of hounds. James Gooch, of 506 Bridge street, one of Lowell's best game trackers, comes in with reports of fine luck out around the Lakewood section. He captured a black duck there Saturday, and also a cock pheasant, one rabbit and a partridge. Gooch trailed a fox for a short time and took a shot at him, but without success. Foxes are reported scarce in that territory.

M. J. Doyle of Moody street, reports he knows that he is not a deputy fish and game warden and was not out hunting near Nashua last week. A Boston paper stated that one "M. J. Doyle, deputy fish and game warden of Lowell, Mass., and John Allerton of Lawrence were on a hunting expedition. Allerton was later nabbed for hunting without a license and fined $25 in Salem, N. H., police court, according to the newspaper. The Lowell man, however, was not the man named in the despatches.

TO DENY MOTION OF STATE OF NO. DAKOTA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Chief Justice Taft announced today that the supreme court would deny the motion made by the state of North Dakota against the Chicago & Northwestern and other railroads involving the right of the Interstate Commerce commission to increase rates in the state. The motion was to cancel the recent order setting the case for hearing.

HEAD STUFFED BY CATARRH? USE A HEALING CREAM

If your nostrils are clogged, your throat distressed, or your head is stuffed by nasal catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure, antiseptic, germ destroying cream into your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing inflamed, swollen membranes, and you get instant relief.

How good it feels. Your nostrils are open. Your head is clear. No more sneezing, sniffling, dryness or struggling for breath. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from any drug store. Colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up. Relief is sure.—Adv.

FORMER LOWELL MAN ARRESTED IN MAINE

In connection with a liquor raid in Saco, Me., yesterday, the police of that town arrested a man who gave his name as Ubaldo Dube of Lowell. Such a name is not contained in the 1921 directory but it does show in the directory of two years ago. It gives a number on Middlesex street below the Boston & Maine depot as the address. The plant uncovered by the police was one of the most complete yet found by the police in the state, according to reports that reached here. Still, smash and bottled moonshine were seized besides other paraphernalia that goes to make up a first class distillery. Dube, according to newspaper reports, was in the building when the raid was made and was placed under arrest.

TWO KILLED AS AUTO HITS POLE

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Nov. 14.—Miss Maude MacDonald, 21, of 260 North Washington st., and Sheldon Dore, 21, of Attleboro and Medway were killed early yesterday morning in an automobile accident on the Foxboro Turnpike. William MacDonald and Kenneth L. Hills, both of Attleboro, who were with them, were severely injured, but it is thought they will recover.

The four attended a dance in Red Men's hall Saturday night. After the dance they went for an auto ride. When near Robinson hill, Dore, who was driving, evidently failed to see a turn in the road and crashed into a telegraph pole.

an occasion such as brings us here today, it is not inappropriate to direct attention for a few moments to this remarkable instrument. "Washington was not only a great soldier and a great statesman; he was also a man of great business affairs, and an eminent humanitarian. Provident and always methodical, he amassed a fortune, which has been rated by many as the greatest of his time in all the country. But plainly it was not his belief that society is best served by the transmission from generation to generation of such huge aggregates of wealth. The terms of his will, after devising minor and largely sentimental bequests to many relatives and friends, directed that the residuary estate should be divided into 23 equal shares, to be distributed among the heirs whom he named. Thus it comes about that an estate which he left to his family, wisely administered, might have become very large, was deliberately so distributed that in a few years its entire was gone and its portions had been absorbed into the general body of the country's wealth. If that process of disintegration and absorption involved some loss, it is probable that in the sum of the nation was gained by the policy of Washington. "Washington was a model citizen, shines forth with a peculiar radiance from this last testament. The first provision is that his debts shall be paid promptly. All the world now knows the example that makes generous provision for his wife; and then comes the direction that at her death, all his slaves shall be given freedom. "Next follow devices of funds to aid education of poor or orphaned children and for the endowment of a 'University in a corner' part of the United States. Another specific bequest goes to Liberty Hall academy, now Washington & Lee university at Lexington, Va. A list of debtors are forgiven their debts. To each of five nephews he gave one of his swords with an injunction not to use them for the purpose of shedding blood except it be for self-defense or in defense of their country and its rights, and in the latter case to keep them unsheathed and prefer falling with their hands to the relinquishment thereof. There is no selection of words whereby more eloquently to express the full duty and obligation of a good citizen to his country. Let us be thankful that the spirit of that injunction has been borne in upon the nation he founded and animates it even to this day. "As a child of good citizenship and patriotic purposes this last will and testament has been an inspiration many times to me. I commend its thoughtful reading to whoever would emulate his example. Indeed, as we are gathered here, representatives of a grateful and reverent nation, to sign the consummation of one more public beneficence inspired by him, I can think of nothing more appropriate than to urge the study of the farewell address and the last will and testament, as compliments of each other. Neither of them can be fully appreciated without the other. The farewell address was the last word of the statesman, the founder. The will and testament was the last word of the Christian citizen, the loving husband, the devoted father—and the provident man of business.

"I am prone to believe they contain a chart by which the captains and pilots of a world in distress, seeking harbor from battering storms and raging, unknown dangers, might lay the course of civilization itself. "Within a brief century and a half, the American people under Washington's inspiration, have created a great nation, added in the dominion of liberty and opportunity and may hope, afforded a helpful example to the world. It has not been accomplished without heavy sacrifices. At fearful cost, we had to wipe out an ambiguity in the constitution and establish union where disunion threatened in a conflict well nigh as wide as the world, we were called to draw the sword for humanity and the relief of oppression. Very recently we have paused to speak tribute to those who sacrificed in that struggle for our civilization's preservation. We cannot too often or too earnestly repeat that tribute; and we consecrate this institution as a memorial and a shrine to the memory of all the future of the services and sacrifices of our heroes of the world war."

STOCK MARKET

The following is a complete report, giving high, low and closing quotations:

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Shares of companies whose operations may suffer curtailment, should the disarmament proposals of the United States government be carried out, were moderately heavy at the opening of today's stock market. Bethlehem Steel fell 1 1/2 points, Crucible Steel 1 1/4 and United States Steel 1/2 point. Otherwise, the market was fairly strong, mostly for oil and equipment. Standard Oil of New Jersey added 3/8 point to last week's steady advance and most of the other oil, domestic and foreign, Mexican Petroleum excepted, were higher by fractions to a point. Prices developed irregularly later, however, as pressure against oil and oil products were felt. During the early reversal, in which trading was active, Standard Oil of New Jersey reacted four points and declined about 3/4 point. Equipment was extended. Some of the transcontinental and coal shares fell one point each. The list rallied before noon, however, the recovery was uneven. Paying the fall in call money from 5 1/2 to 5 per cent, Mexican Petroleum and European oils scored 3/4 point. United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, chemical, drug, shipping and textile groups, were strong, notably United Drug, American Linseed, preferred, and the Gulf Oil common and preferred. American International and American Woolen, these gaining one to almost four points.

Trading of former war favorites assumed larger dimensions at mid-day. Bethlehem Steel increased its decline to 2 1/4 points, Crucible showed a loss of two points and related issues were lower. Oil, particularly Standard Oil of New Jersey became more reactionary and Mexican Petroleum cancelled its rise.

Industrials, rails and specialties were at lower prices of the day in the final hour, although call money rates eased to 4 per cent. Closing was weak. Government bonds and other domestic bonds were irregularly lower.

MAY CLOSE "COW" PATH" ROAD WAY TO CANADA

Boston & Maine Wants to Acquire Old Acton "Short Line"

Railroad Men Say "Cow Path" Road Has Not Been Profitable

One of Middlesex county's oldest railroad lines—the "cow path" road as it has long been popularly termed by the railroad car-jerkers—known as the Nashua & Acton railroad, a one-track line running between Nashua and Concord Junction, may be closed to all traffic within a short time.

Railroad authorities controlling the old line that is now but little used for either passenger or freight traffic, are not talking about the matter, but men familiar with Boston & Maine traffic conditions and employees who know the real condition of affairs on the old line, are prophesying that before long this once prosperous little one-track road will be closed to all traffic.

Lowell railroad men and stockholders in Boston & Maine securities believe today that the Boston & Maine railroad corporation, through its president, J. H. Hustis, has petitioned the legislature for the necessary permission that will permit it to acquire the old Acton "short line" and "cow path" or merge the corporation with the existing road. The first official announcement that the Boston & Maine was planning to acquire the rights, property and franchises of the Nashua & Acton line, appeared in a legislative "notice," appearing in a Boston evening newspaper Saturday.

The Sun is informed by railroad men familiar with traffic conditions on the old short line road that it has been unprofitable for years. In the charter of this little Nashua & Acton road there is a phrase placed there by old-time law makers when the road was given a franchise, which states that the road is to be run on the old line, although the phraseology is different. Railroaders recall a section of the franchise in the state of Rhode Island, which reads:

Old-time railroad men can remember when the Nashua & Acton road was a profitable little line. A great deal of freight was transferred from southern New England points via Concord Junction, where it was forwarded to northern points and to Canada line connections. It was one of the best paying little roads anywhere in this section, however, when the Concord Junction transfer was relegated to the discard. Northern freight was routed straight through to Lowell from Boston and southern New England points. The short haul "across lines" via Concord Junction and Nashua was no longer popular, and gradually the road's traffic declined.

In former years there were three passenger trains a day between Nashua and Acton, both ways. They were always well patronized. Traffic fell off heavily with the advance of motor traffic and transfer shifts, and finally the officials controlling the road sought to abandon all passenger traffic using the line for freight only. But the old charter of the road would not permit cutting off passenger traffic. At least one passenger train in each direction must be run, daily, and the Boston & Maine railroad controlling the line as one of its subsidiaries, was compelled to maintain some kind of a passenger service and carry out its charter provisions.

Arrangements were finally made to attach a single passenger car to a freight train that left Nashua in the morning. Now the single train has been running through Concord Junction each afternoon, returning at night. Sometimes five passengers are carried. Sometimes none. Night after night the "mike" has been rolling along through the sparsely settled country on the track of many curves, with but one or two passengers and very little freight, yet requiring a full train crew to keep the road and loaded in shape for the petty railroad traffic that has been for a year or two a sort of standing joke among the farmers of the countryside where the road passes through.

The Nashua & Acton road is 24.3 miles long. Very little passenger traffic is ever carried on the line and freight traffic has been far from satisfactory for years. The road, starting from Concord Junction, hits Acton, North Acton, East Littleton, Pine Ridge, West Littleton, East Grotton, Dunstable, Otterton Street, and Nashua union station.

For some time there has been no morning service on the line as in former years. A mixed train leaves Nashua about 3 o'clock each afternoon. Only one passenger car is attached. It arrives at Concord Junction about 4:30, leaving on the return trip to Nashua at 6:10.

If the charter provisions can be changed by the legislature, it is probable, railroad men say, that the road will be relegated to the discard. In passing of the old "short line" will be generally regarded by residents along the way, for most of the farmers in that sparsely settled section of old Middlesex county to set their way to the city.

Gardner and Caderone Were Going to Join the British Army

Young Men Arrested in Manchester Arraigned in District Court Here

Lorenzo Gardner, 18 years old, of North Adams, and Anthony Caderone, a world war veteran, of Providence, told Judge Bright in district court this morning they were en route to Canada where they were to enlist in the British army when arrested in Manchester, N. H., Saturday, for an alleged larceny committed in Lowell.

According to the story related by the police and the complainant, Samuel H. Stanley, a N.Y. N. H. & H. railroad officer to the court, Stanley was sleeping on a bench in the local depot Friday night when his pistol valued at $22.50 was taken from under his coat. When he woke up Stanley was told the two defendants, who had taken a 3 o'clock Saturday morning train for Manchester, had been lying on a bench near him. Suspecting them of the larceny a message was conveyed to the Manchester police to arrest them. They were taken to Lowell yesterday and booked on charges of larceny.

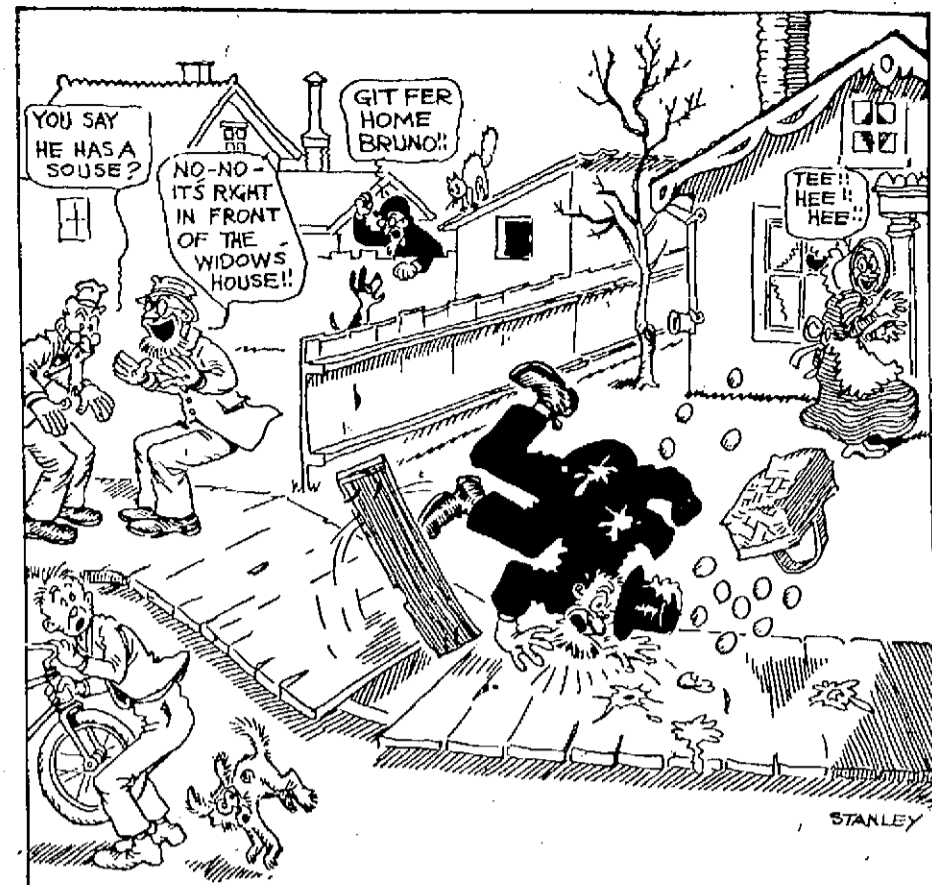

Gardner pleaded guilty this morning. Caderone offered a plea of not guilty and later on the stand cleared himself of the charge. The court ordered him dismissed but imposed a three months' suspended sentence to the house of correction on Gardner. Caderone testified they were on their way to Canada when they stopped in Lowell to see a friend. As there were no trains till early Saturday morning the pair slept in the station. The witness stated he did not know the run had been taken until Gardner on the train told him he had picked a pistol. The latter said he was sleeping. He did not know it belonged to the plaintiff, he stated. Caderone produced army papers showing he had been in the service and intended to re-enlist. A tangle arose when the court called Gardner's attention to expenses of $1.40 which were to be paid by him. The defendant had no money, he said, while his companion had a little more than a dollar. Gardner stated he has a grandmother in North Adams, but he doubted if she would pay the money. The trouble is, he told the court, "The trouble is with you," the justice retorted.

WAS BURIED WITH MILITARY HONORS

The remains of the late Philippe Forget, former member of the 4th Spruce Squadron, O.M.I., were this morning buried with full military honors. The funeral took place from the home of his parents, 138 Allen street at 9:30 o'clock and at 9 o'clock a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Jean Baptiste church by Rev. A. Nolin, O.M.I., assisted by Rev. Amable Baron, O.M.I., as deacon and Rev. Aurelien Mercier, O.M.I., as sub-deacon. The choir, under the direction of Joseph Paradis, who also presided at the organ, rendered the Gregorian chant, the solos being sustained by Mr. Paradis, Dr. J. E. Nolin, At the offertory and Eulogie Bernard sang "Te Deum" and at the elevation Mrs. Maria Jacques rendered "O Merito Passiois." At communion "Misere Mini Me" was sung by George Robert and at the close of the mass Mrs. H. A. Archambault sang Faure's "Crucifixus."

The bearers were the following: ex-service men; Auguste Guilbault, Camille and Hervé Boisvert, Ernest Paquette, Ethel Lanoux, Joseph A. Gauthier. The firing squad was composed of the following headed by Eli H. Hart: John J. Donovan, Anthony Joy, Edward H. Sullivan, Philip Fallon, Joseph L. Brassard, Joseph E. Coughlin, George A. McCarthy, Charles Vincent. The following detachment represented the Carpenters' union: Michael A. Lee, Thomas Deslites and Henri Duprez. Burial was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery, where the communal prayers were read by Rev. L. Brassard, O. M. I. Three volleys were fired by the firing squad and "taps" was blown by Bugle. Monel Renaud, while Bugler Alfred Levasseur rendered the echo. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Amedee Archambault & Sons.

Anniversary Observance By Irish National Brotherhood and Traynor Association

The anniversary of the Manchester martyrs was observed fittingly by a joint session of the Irish National Brotherhood and the Traynor association yesterday afternoon in their quarters in Middle street. The anniversary was taken as an occasion for memorial services for other martyrs of Ireland as well.

At the business meeting which preceded the memorial exercises several members were initiated and other business of a routine nature attended to. A memorial mass for the Irish martyrs in the church of the Sacred Heart on Thanksgiving morning and invited to be present and to assemble in the Traynor Association's quarters in Middle street to march to the church.

As presiding officer for the afternoon exercises, Stephen Flynn introduced Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan as the principal speaker. The history of Ireland's wrongs was given an eloquent recital and an ardent tribute was paid to the memories of the Manchester martyrs and other martyrs who have given their all for the cause in past generations.

An excellent reading by Dennis Brassil followed the address. Michael J. Sharkey spoke at length on the day's significance and the timeliness of the observance. Peter J. McKenna commented on the events bearing on the cause from the time of the Manchester martyrs to the present, saying that the period has changed, but the Irish ideal has remained steadfast. Irishmen will never be satisfied until they secure freedom in full measure. Many others contributed brief remarks in keeping with the occasion, including Frank McMahon, John Curran, William Collins, James O'Sullivan, John Hendricks, Philip Keon, Denis Crowley, Eugene Quennean, and John Barrett. Songs were heard from Michael Dalton, Philip Keon, Mr. Morrissey, Mr. Keefe and a recitation by George P. Brennan. The closing of the exercises came with the singing of "God Save Ireland" and "The Soldier's Song."

60,000 GARMENT WORKERS STRIKE

Called Out In Protest Against Piecework System and Increase in Hours

All Efforts at Arbitration of Issues in New York Dispute Fail

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Sixty thousand garment workers were called out on strike this morning in protest against the piecework system and an increase from 41 to 43 hours a week which was to be put into effect today by their employers. There were many indications that the struggle might be a prolonged one.

Officers of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union met their representatives in the 3000 shops involved early this morning, and gave them full instructions for the conduct of the strike.

All efforts at arbitration of the issues involved have failed. Secretary of Labor Davis, United States senators and State Industrial Commissioner Sawyer, have ineffectually tried to conciliate employers and workers.

Union leaders declared last night that the workers' finances are in excellent shape. In preparation for a five months' struggle they said they would seek to raise $3,000,000 fund for relief of the strikers and their families. Officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and other unions have promised to aid the garment workers' struggle by contributions from their members, they said.

LIQUOR CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT

With a charge of illegally keeping and selling liquor already pending against him in the superior court, Enslinhaus Versames, of Dunster street, pleaded guilty to a new complaint of illegally selling liquor before Judge Bright in district court today. He was fined $150.

However, only came prepared to pay $100, it seemed. He paid that much and with the court's consent promised to pay the $50 balance within a week. Federal Order Sheldon and Sergt. Winn late Saturday night succeeded in getting Versames to sell them a half pint of moonshine for fifty cents.

The officers also arrested Michael Wojcik, of Spring street, Saturday night, alleging that he sold a pint of moonshine for $1.25. In court today counsel for Michael entered a plea of not guilty and to allow the state analysis of the liquor the case was put over to Nov. 18.

The police say Wojcik sold moonshine of a legal variety, according to the officers, the fluid was well colored to make it look like honest-to-goodness whiskey.

SUDDEN DEATH TODAY OF MRS. LABRIE

Mrs. Amelia (Albert) Labrie, widow of the late Theodore Labrie, who for many years was sexton of St. Jean Baptiste church, died suddenly at her home, 449 Moody street, this forenoon. The body was later viewed by Medical Examiner T. B. Smith, who attributed death to natural causes.

Mrs. Labrie spent last evening at the home of her son, Eugene, and did not complain of being ill. This morning she arose at her usual hour and seemed to be in a happy mood when her children left for work. At about 10:30 o'clock, a neighbor, Mrs. Joseph Dubois entered the Labrie flat and found the woman lying on the floor near the stove. Life extinct.

Deceased, who was 65 years of age, had been a resident of this city for the past 37 years. She was well and favorably known in the district in which she resided, and the news of her sudden death will be a keen blow to her many friends. She was a member of the Third order of St. Francis and St. Anne's sodality of St. Joseph's parish and is survived by a daughter, Miss Helen Labrie; three sons, Napoleon, Joseph and Eugene and eight grandchildren.

LOWELL CASE IN THE SUPREME COURT

City Solicitor William D. Regan was at the supreme judicial court in Boston today representing the city of Lowell in the case of City Treasurer Fred H. Boughie vs. Frank Hatchett for collection of taxes.

The taxes involved are personal property taxes assessed in 1916, amounting to $567.64. Mr. Hatchett claims that he lived in Dunstable and had no legal residence in Lowell. The case was taken to the superior court and a decision obtained in the city's favor. Mr. Hatchett filed exceptions and succeeded in having the case ordered to the supreme court.

MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION

Lowell Stores to Be Represented at Fall Meeting and Banquet

Association Is Anxious to Increase Its Membership In This City

At least three of Lowell's greatest dry goods stores will be represented by managers at the fall meeting and banquet of the Massachusetts Retail Merchants' association, to be held at Young's hotel, Boston, tomorrow evening, at 6 o'clock.

The local members of the association are The Chalfoux company, the A. G. Dillard company and the Bon Marche Dry Goods company. General Manager Louis E. Stanley of the Chalfoux store is a director of the association and is also chairman of one of the most important committees—the legislative.

Director Stanley told The Sun this morning that the association is very anxious to increase its membership in Lowell and vicinity. He hopes the newspapers will publish news of dry goods trade happenings, and conditions from time to time, and believes that every retail goods merchant in the city should join the organization. Arrangements for the banquet were completed this morning. A reception will precede the dinner, and dress will be informal. A unique musical program will be furnished by Pierre-Mordella, piano accompanist; Miss Jane Golding, violinist and soprano; and Miss Christine Wisner, reader and pianist.

The speakers of the evening will be Attorney General J. Weston Allen, whose topic will be "The Business Man's Relation to Public Service," and George W. Coleman, president and dean of Babson's Institution, whose topic will be "The New Order of Business."

Director Stanley informed The Sun that special attention is being called to the fact that all business women are eligible for membership, and he would like to see more members from Lowell. Numerous association members are to take their wives to the Boston meeting.

The circular letter sent out by the officers announced that the association was formed "to foster the retail trades in Massachusetts and the interests and well-being of those engaged therein; to reform abuses relative thereto; to secure freedom from unfair and unlawful exactions; to diffuse information as to matters of interest to the retail trader; to procure, where desirable, information and certainly in the customs and usages of the retail trades and interests related thereto; to promote greater co-operation among retail merchants; to foster the interchange of ideas and systems; to consider and concentrate opinions upon questions affecting the financial, commercial and other interests of its members; and to promote more friendly intercourse among persons engaged in the retail trade, and between them and those dealing with them."

Winslow Wetherbee is secretary of the Massachusetts association, with headquarters in Room 505, No. 6 Beacon street, Boston.

IMPORTANT FEATURE OF "BLUE SKY" ACT

The chamber of commerce today in a statement issued by Secretary Walls, calls attention to one feature of the new "blue sky" act governing the sale of stock securities that local agents may profit thereby.

Under chapter 435 of the new laws governing the sales of securities and stock issues of all kinds, all salesmen must register, but the mere registering of an agency with the state authorities does not mean that the state approves the stock or securities that may be handled by the registrant. For instance, registration shows only that the man is a broker. What he may be selling is not approved by the state by such registration. Six months' leeway is given for registration.

To the Voters of Lowell

Intense love for my home and the city's welfare, its conservative and economical progress, gravely compromised at the present time, and the loyalty of my numerous friends and supporters, ARE THE ONLY MOTIVES that prompted my eleventh hour decision to be a candidate for mayor.

WITH the help of God and the advice of men of experience, ability and sound judgment, I trust to be able to improve conditions. I do not claim the panacea to cure all the ills affecting the city, but I WILL DO THE VERY BEST I CAN.

Trusting in your best judgment,
Sincerely yours,
R. MIGNAULT.
